David and Goliath, Asiatic. Of $83.70, He Got 75c. At Last Some Good News. War, Says Governor Murray.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE DAVID and Goliath fight goes on in Asia with Japan as David, but there is a difference, however. The Asiatic Goliath refuses to lie down and die.

A wise American says:

"I don't think Japan will have the easy time she expected. Her first wars were too easy. She went through China like a knife through soft cheese, when China was busy absorbing opium forced on her by a 'Christian nation.'"

She went through Russia with ease, when Russian grand dukes and others in charge for the czar drank more champagne in three months than the rest of the world drank in two years.

China has had warlike exercise in her many internal fights of late, and many Japanese will never return from Shanghai or Manchuria.

THE SAME WISE person remarked:

"The Japanese will find themselves in financial difficulties."

Three things count in war, INTELLIGENCE, COURAGE, CASH.

Japan has plenty of the first two, not much of the third.

"Japan has little or no gold left. And you can't finance war on paper money. Japan's main asset is the silk worm, and that, with low prices and the Chinese boycott, doesn't amount to much now."

That is too gloomy a view of Japan's resources and wealth, which have grown gigantically since the Meiji era. Besides, when Alexander the Great attacked Persia, the richest country in the world then, he was "as poor as Job's turkey."

China will be disappointed if she depends on Japan's poverty.

HOW WOULD YOU like to be a farmer and raise lambs for a living? A farmer sold seven lambs to a Chicago packing house, total price $3. Insurance, commission and inspection charges cost $2.25. The farmer got 75 cents net for his seven lambs.

The Department of Agriculture, thanks to Secretary Hyde, investigated and learned that consumers paid for the seven lambs $83.70. Remember that the farmer got 75 cents of that amount as his share.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, put that information on the front of his "Capper's Weekly," that goes to half a million farmers. How do you think they feel?

The country is cursed with inefficient, costly distribution, while production goes on, without limit, and we have too much of everything from sugar to oil.

ONE ENCOURAGING word comes out of Asia's trouble. Secretary Stimson, after sending many warnings to Japan, tells Senator Borah that the United States, which "surrendered its commanding lead in battleship construction, and agreed not to fortify Guam or the Philippines, at the Washington conference," may cancel all that foolishness of the so-called "nine-power treaty." Heaven speed the day of cancellation.

GOV. "ALFALFA BILL" MURRAY, so-called by Oklahoma admirers, announcing his presidential candidacy, said:

"I shall say what I feel like saying."

Today he says this government's attitude is "pro-China and anti-Japanese," whereas it should not be anything but "pro-American," which isn't a bad idea.

He thinks our government's policy may produce "war with Japan within a year."

MR. MURRAY adds that farmers and small manufacturers "have been stripped of the privilege of credit," and unless something is done, we shall have in America "either centralized military despotism, or a turn to Lenin, where all are economic slaves."

THE TALK of world disarmament is interrupted by France announcing that she will spend for war preparations more money this year than last.

A French newspaper cartoon shows France threatened by huge guns in "ussia, other guns and airplanes in Germany, many guns and ships of England, all sorts of weapons in Italy, plus the power of the United States, and writes in large letters on the cartoon:

"Et on veut que La France desarme." "And they want France to disarm."

PRESIDENT HOOVER takes very patiently the calm, callous way in which the New York Stock Exchange ignores his protest against short selling, that discourages business, injures value and diminishes credit, by discouraging loans.

The President is patient. It is not hard to guess what one of his predecessors, Theodore Roosevelt, would have said, or how his teeth would have snapped as he said it, if he had been snubbed by the exchange.

HOWEVER, THERE are several ways of obtaining results and President Hoover, in the long run, may find a way to stop gamblers that conspire against values and prosperity by "selling short" what they haven't got.

Mr. Whitney, head of the exchange, says short sales have kept the exchange open. Comparisons are odious, but bank burglars have kept safes open.

THE COWARDLY brutality of pigeon shooting has been abolished and the country gets

5 Bus Tickets for $1, Slash Of Dime a Month on Light Bills Planned by Phillips

BULLETIN.

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, today proposed to City Council a voluntary reduction of 1 cent per kilowatt hour for the first 10 kilowatts by the Duquesne Light Company to domestic consumers, and that five bus tickets would be sold for $1 in place of a straight 25-cent fare. The light cut will mean a 10-cent saving per month to the average user. Phillips estimated the reduction in receipts on electric light at $260,000 a year and on bus fares, $150,000.

City Council today was to meet officials of the Philadelphia Company for a showdown on the company's position towards quick reduction of electricity and gas rates in the Greater Pittsburgh district.

Just before the conference, news reached Council members that the Philadelphia Company was contemplating a reduction from 25 cents to 20 in bus rates. Such action was indicated in the company's canvas of West End residents for approval of a new bus line with 20-cent fares.

President Frank R. Phillips, of the Philadelphia Company, with his aides, were to confer with members of Council at 2 p. m. Co-operating in Council's barrage of questions to be fired at the public utilities representatives, will be City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang, in charge of public utilities legislation.

ANSWER PROMISED

At an initial parley held behind closed doors last Thursday, Phillips promised a definite answer for today on whether his company and its subsidiaries would meet the apparent pressing demands for lowered electricity and gas rate costs in conformity with reduced living costs for 1932.

In a political radio talk over WCAE last night, State Senator James J. Coyne declared the public utilities should be "willing to take it on the chin" as well as the public and should voluntarily petition the Public Service Commis-

JAPANESE MARINES, THE ATTACKING INVADERS, ADVANCING INTO ACTION . . . . NOTICE THE SHELL-WRACKED BUILDINGS

INVADERS BOMBARDED AS RESERVES SAVE KIANGWAN

By MORRIS J. HARRIS

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26.—(Friday.)—The rolling thunder of heavy guns crashed on the Chapei front early this morning as the Chinese, victorious in yesterday's terrific engagement in the Kiangwan sector, bombarded the enemy base in Hongkew park.

Shells dropped along the northern boundary of the International Settlement, new pillars of smoke and flames rose from the ruins of Chapei and the Japanese answering fire made the morning a pandemonium.

The fighting appeared to have shifted from the Kiangwan sector where the Japanese made considerable advances yesterday (Thursday) but lot all the ground they had gained when the Chinese, apparently reinforced by fresh men from Chiang Kai-Shek's 88th division, launched a counter-attack which won back nearly everything the Japanese had taken.

DAY'S DOINGS IN WAR ZONE

Associated Press.

The battle around Kiangwan see-sawed back and forth today as the early gains of the Japanese were wiped out in a surprise.

Two or three divisions were expected at any time from Japan and there were some reports that part of the reinforcements already had arrived. It was generally believed the full force of the Japanese army would be thrown into action early next week.

The censor was busy in Tokio but from the news which did leak through it was obvious a major troop movement was in progress.

Japanese officials took issue with several points of Secretary Stimson's outline of American policy, asserting that Japan had done nothing to violate its treaty obligations and insisting that the only difference between American and Japanese policy toward China was a difference of methods.

Among the other neutral powers the reaction toward the Stimson statement was generally favorable.

The American consul at Shanghai has prepared plans for evacuation of Americans in case of emergency and the German consulate near the Japanese consulate in Hongkew was evacuated today on the strength of yesterday's warning that the vicinity would be dangerous for foreigners.

CHINESE HOLD ON

All through the night and early this morning a strong wind carried to Shanghai the sound of machine gun and rifle fire at intervals on the Kiangwan front. The Chinese, holding that village against the full power of the enemy, were still hanging on.

The ground which the Japanese managed to hold brought the western bulge of the right flank to a point due north of the western tip of Kiangwan. Every man not needed for the defense of other fronts had been thrown into the wedge driven into the Chinese force a mile north of Kiangwan.

Before they called a halt for the day the Japanese had gained about 600 yards in the face of vicious machine gun fire from the defenders along the central and south factors. At the north, near Woosung Creek, the Chinese were fighting on even terms.

Despite the fact that they had lost much of the day's gains, the Japanese high command described the day's advance as a "substantial victory."

At the Chinese headquarters there was jubilation over the resistance of the Kiangwan troops.

The Japanese morning communique placed the day's casualties at 80 killed or wounded and said the Chinese losses probably would run between 300 and 400. The Japanese also took 15 prisoners.

Tokio Rushing Troops For Decisive Blow

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Japan's decision to send a stronger, heavier force against the Chinese at Shanghai is being rapidly translated into action (which the censors forbid foreign correspondents to describe) and there is supreme confidence that the decisive blow can be struck before the Chinese can be reinforced.

The great majority of Japanese officials and laymen alike are convinced that the only solution to the admittedly grave situation at

Renaldo Indicted On Passport Charge

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Duncan Renaldo, film actor, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of making false statements on a passport.

The indictment charged that Renaldo was a subject of Rumania and not a citizen of the United States, as he stated on his passport taken out March 14, 1929, when he went to Africa on film location. His true name is Vasile Tumitree Dughieanas, the indictment said.

Beer Drinkers Strike Against Price 'Czar'

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—"Beer strikers" today claimed that 12,000 Berlin saloons had answered their call to refuse to sell beer until the government price czar, Carl Goerdeler, lowers the tax and prices of Germany's favorite beverage.

Berlin saloons began taking up the "strike" about a week ago after many other cities throughout the country had begun to feel the pinch of anti-beer tax campaigns.

FIGHT FOR DRY POLL BEGINS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Resorting to extreme parliamentary tactics to secure consideration of a state-control prohibition amendment, the House anti-dry blocs today filed a discharge petition making a vote mandatory if signed by 145 members.

Representative Linthicum, of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic anti-drys, presented the petition. If the 145 signatures are obtained, the House will vote on whether the home-rule constitutional amendment sponsored by the organized Democratic and Republican anti-drys, but rejected by the Judiciary Committee 14 to 9, shall be considered on the floor.

Upon the announcement that the petition was pending, Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, said:

"Come on; let's sign it."

Amid considerable confusion half a hundred representatives, including two women members, Representatives Pratt, of New York, and Kahn, of California, Republicans, filed down into the well of the House and began to sign the petition.

Pinchot Spurs Drive To Defeat Hoover

Confers With Borah And Johnson; Own Candidacy Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—An anti-Hoover presidential campaign in the Republican primaries was discussed today by Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, in a round of conferences with Senate Republican Independent leaders.

There was a conviction at the Capitol that the Pennsylvania Governor was seriously considering going into the presidential race himself, but he declined absolutely to discuss politics when seen by newspapermen.

CONFERS WITH SENATORS

Pinchot saw Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Johnson, of California, who have been frequently and prominently mentioned as possible Republican opponents of Mr. Hoover.

Neither Borah nor Johnson would talk about their separate conferences with Pinchot, but it is believed neither offered great encouragement to the anti-Hoover campaign, taking the view that it is almost an insurmountable obstacle to defeat a President for renomination. Each has been urged before to get into the race.

Also there was every indication that Pinchot urged Borah and Johnson to go into the campaign themselves.

MOVE EXPECTED SOON

The Idaho Senator has taken the position that he will make no open campaign; that if his name is put up in states not requiring the consent of the candidate he will take no notice of it.

The Pennsylvania primary is in April and if Pinchot is going to enter the race it is considered here to be about time for him to be making open moves.

Both Borah and Johnson have been in frequent opposition to the policies of President Hoover.

EDISON DROPS WILL CONTEST

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—William L. Edison, a son of the late Thomas A. Edison, announced today that a settlement had been reached in the suit he had filed contesting a portion of his father's will. Edison said the settlement was satisfactory.

Edison announced last October, shortly after the death of his famous father, that he would contest certain provisions of the will relating to the distribution and handling of the amount left to him. He had declared he provision was "unfair."

TEN MILLIONS RELIEF NEED

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, today said the operating committee had estimated $10,000,000 would be needed for relief work in Allegheny County within the next 12 months. He said:

"About $10,000,000 more will be needed as far as can be determined. It means that about $4,000,000 more will have to be contributed to cover the period to March 1, 1933."

Alfonso Reported As Ceding Throne

MADRID, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—It was learned today from reliable sources in high monarchist circles that two documents have been circulated among monarchists recently, in one of which former King Alfonso XIII cedes his right to the Spanish throne to the traditionalist pretender, Alfonso Carlos.

In the other document, these sources said, Alfonso Carlos names former King Alfonso, prince of Asturias and his rightful heir to the thrones of Spain, France and Portugal. The throne of the latter two kingdoms already has been claimed by the pretender.

Doctor's Wife Free In Poison Charges

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Charges that Mrs. Marie Kegel, vivacious brunette, sought to poison a chief witness in her husband's impending divorce suit were quashed today by Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal Court.

Gerald Lee, grocery clerk, accused of complicity with Mrs. Kegel, was also exonorated.

Woman Dies After Choking on Candy

Mrs. Florence Eckhardt, 39, 518 Borland street, died early today when she choked on a piece of candy, according to a Coroner's report.

Efforts of members of the household to remove the candy failed. A physician arrived 10 minutes later and pronounced Mrs. Eckhardt dead.

Aimee Carrying Gospel Into Panama Jungle

COLON, Panama, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, high priestess of the Four Square Gospel, was preparing today to teach Christianity to the inhabitants of the Panamanian jungle.

The indomitable Aimee has already made a gracious contact with the natives. Supplied with chewing gum, beads and colored prisms of glass, the evangelist entered the jungle community of Escobal and was immediately surrounded by a mob of howling, naked children who plagued her for gifts while their elders, somewhat disconcerted by the sight, stood and gaped.

Turning to the International News Service correspondent, who had accompanied her, Mrs. Hutton declare:

"Here's our field. We expect to establish missions in the jungle communities.

"Man has conquered science, but the jungle is his supreme unsurmountable barrier. We'll overcome it, though.

"I plan to operate a radio station in conjunction with Panama City, broadcasting the word of God into the jungles where receiving sets in each mission will pick it up."

Thompson Sees End Of Party in Hoover

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, today pronounced a benediction on the Republican party if President Hoover is renominated at the Chicago convention. He said:

"I think if Mr. Hoover is renominated that that is the end of the Republican party."

Mrs. Hoover on Way To Miami for Rest

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover made Trumbull's famous portrait of George Washington in the City Hall the first stop of a sightseeing trip today upon her arrival here on a vacation trip to the South.

The President's wife arrived with a group of friends on an overnight train from Washington. Later in the day they boarded the Sequoia, a motor ship owned by the Department of Commerce, for Miami, Fla.

300 Tired Doughboys Quit Neutral Defense Posts

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Three hundred grimy-faced, unshaven and tired American soldiers of the 31st Infantry came out of the International Settlement defense lines this afternoon after 15 days in front of shell-torn Chapei.

Their eyes were bloodshot and swollen from lack of sleep, and they made a concerted rush for baths, shaves and "good old-shuteye."

For the next few days the boys will figuratively hang up a "Don't Disturb" sign and hibernate. They began that program tonight when they rolled into their bunks.

The Americans were replaced in the most dangerous position within the Settlement lines by the Scottish Argyll and Southerland "Ladies from Hell." The bare-legged, pink-kneed and kilted Britishers went in for their share of the uncertainties along the Chapei line.

The Americans had earned their rest. The boys had come up only recently from Manila, where tropical breezes blow unceasingly. Since their occupation of the danger zone they have been breathing biting winds within their sandbag barricades. Their position was most dangerous because they had the Chinese facing them and the Japanese on their right. As a result they saw plenty of action from within their lines.

Many times machine-gun bullets rained over their sector and shells from the Chinese artillery west of Chapei often ripped overhead, headed for the Japanese positions in Hongkew Park.

The Doughboys mixed barricade piling with changing to long underwear and overcoats, but they came out today tired yet enthusiastic about their jobs.

JAPAN DISPUTES U. S. CLAIMS UNDER NINE-POWER PACT

NAVAL SLASH, TREATY HELD SEPARATE

Stimson Statement Regarded As Placing America at Crossroads of Policy

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A high foreign office official, after reading press dispatches quoting excerpts from Secretary of State Stimson's letter to Senator Borah on the Sino-Japanese situation today, questioned the validity of Stimson's assumption that America's naval concessions in the Washington treaty were predicated on guarantees embodied in the Nine-Power pact.

The terms of the naval agreement, he said, actually were completed at the Washington conference before the powers began a real consideration of Chinese problems and Japan had agreed to the naval terms leaving many problems of the utmost importance to her for settlement in later stages of the conference.

POINTS TO NAVAL CUT

Japan, he asserted, accepted a 60 per cent battleship ratio early in the conference thereby leaving the Japanese delegation open to a charge of having laid all their trump cards down early in the game. Had Japan wished to bargain naval terms against matters embodied in the Nine-Power treaty, he said, she certainly would have delayed agreement indefinitely. He declared:

"Mr. Stimson displays an ignorance of the history of the Washington conference."

The spokesman recalled that in 1927 the American and British navies found it necessary to bombard Nanking, despite the Nine-Power pact, when Chinese Nationalist troops ran riot in that city. Japan is doing the same thing now in principle at Shanghai, he said, and the only difference is in the scale of the operations.

He demanded to know how Japan could have invoked the Nine-Power treaty for protection of her rights in Manchuria, and to whom she could have appealed.

U. S. Reaches Crossroads On Peace Policy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The United States today stood at the crossroads of international policy, with one sign board pointing the road of peace flanked with fences of paper promises, and another pointing a road of orderly respect backed by a formidable Navy.

In effect, the United States has asked Japan which road we shall travel. Secretary of State Stimson has bluntly notified Japan that unless that country is willing more strictly to observe both the letter and the spirit of her paper promises the United States is determined to rely for her own protection upon something more substantial than international treaties which Japan has treated as paper fences.

TREATY SCRAPPED

This is the substance of the interpretation placed upon Stimson's open letter to Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in which he inferentially charged Japan with wilful violation of the Nine Power treaty and declared that this treaty could not be disregarded without abrogating all the other treaties signed at the Washington conference in 1922. Principal among these other treaties was the agreement for the limitation of naval armaments.

Stimson's mention of the American government's surrender of its then commanding lead in battleship construction and fortifications of Guam and the Philippine Islands was interpreted as warning that unless Japan accords more strict observance to her treaty obligations this government will embark upon a naval building and shore fortification program.

Prompt support for Stimson's stand was reflected from the House and Senate. The Senate Naval Affairs Committee urged immediate enactment of a program authorizing construction of a navy up to treaty limits. Gratification was expressed by numerous Senate leaders that Stimson had done with "throwing paper balls" at Japan and had decided upon a more positive policy.

Mercury 54 Below, 12 Trapped on Train

SEWARD, Alaska, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Weather of 54 degrees below zero prevailed today in the Broad Pass district, where 12 passengers on an Alaskan railroad train were marooned by snowdrifts.

Reports reaching here today said that the weather was clearing and that employes of the railroad expected to get the train through to Fairbanks today.

THE FIRST LESSON -:- By Quin Hall

NAVAL HOLIDAY TO BE DROPPED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The one-year naval holiday to which all of the major powers agreed to as of November 1, last, probably will not be continued after the expiration date.

This belief prevailed in official quarters today following receipt of advices from Tokio that Japan is contemplating laying down four new 8,500-ton cruisers. The Japanese apparently have interpreted the agreement as permitting formulation of future programs during the year's holiday.

Opposition to extending the holiday beyond next November 1 probably will arise in Congress, too, for the Senate Naval Committee yesterday pronounced the American Navy as "fast becoming one of obsolete ships," and in the opinion of all factions modern construction is necessary.

The Hale bill already has been introduced. It provides for a 10-year building program to bring the Navy up to London treaty standards.

France has also indicated her intention of materially increasing naval construction next year.

FOES ATTACKED BY BRUENING

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening struck back at the opposition in the Reichstag today with an impassioned speech delivered in one of the most tumultuous sessions a German chancellor ever confronted.

Throwing aside his habitual reserve, gesticulating, pounding his desk, the chancellor spoke in a voice vibrant with emotion, charging his opponents with creating dissension at a time when Germany is in the midst of the most serious foreign negotiations.

along very well without pigeon's blood. It can get along also without the brutality of prize-fighting and the shedding of blood that smears the faces of boxers and boxing gloves and makes profit for politicians and promoters.

FENCING IS NOT brutal. It requires magnificent training, and is a better physical exercise than boxing ever could be, and it is an exercise that could prepare men for the use of the bayonet, since the bayonet must be used.

A push from a soft boxing glove does not train a man to face cold steel.

RUSS TROOPS MOVING

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The Renzo (Japanese) News Agency correspondent at Harbin said today that reports had come there of a movement of several thousand Russian soldiers toward the Siberian frontier, presumably because of apprehension in connection with Japanese troop movements in Northeastern Manchuria.

At the same time it was learned here that Gen. Jiro Tamon's expedition against Chinese rebels in the vicinity of Imienpo had been delayed because of difficulties in obtaining transportation on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

This railway is jointly owned and operated by Russia and China. The line officials said they were unable to furnish trains requested by the Japanese because instructions to do so had not arrived from Moscow.

GENERAL MA'S DEATH DENIED

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Widely published reports of the assassination of Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, Chinese hero of Tsitsihar and other Manchurian battles, were declared false by Japanese government officials today.

Gen. Ma is alive and active in the new Manchurian regime, they said.

NANKING, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Chinese government officials today denied knowledge of the death of Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, Chinese hero of Manchurian battles, as widely reported in foreign dispatches.

Other sources here, which almost certainly would know of the general's death if he had been assassinated in Harbin, as reports state, had no knowledge of it.

Sees Boycott Throw 300,000 Out of Jobs

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Should America agree to an economic boycott of Japan, 300,000 silk mill workers in the United States probably will be thrown out of jobs, Henry E. Stehli, silk manufacturer, wrote today to President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University.

Lowell headed a group of prominent men and women who petitioned President Hoover to join such a move against Japan should the League of Nations' members decide on it as a means of stopping the Far East hostilities.

Japanese Emperor And General Confer

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Emperor Hirohito granted an audience today to Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa who, it was announced afterwards, was named to "a certain important military post."

JAP OFFENSIVE AT KIANGWAN REPULSED

Shanghai lies in the vigorous use of irresistable force at the earliest possible moment.

Admitting their previous estimates of the strength required to destroy the Chinese 19th Army were in error, the military authorities assert that will soon be remedied.

The previous estimates, they said, were insufficient owing principally to unexpected difficulties of the terrain at Shanghai, the handicap of the proximity of the Japanese left wing to the International Settlement, and the unexpected resistance of the Chinese.

TROOP TRAINS PASS

The conflict was brought closer to Tokio's millions today by reason of certain dispositions in nearby territory. Troop trains passed close to the city and there were other military measures which gave the citizens a chance for a little flag-waving for the departing heroes.

They came out despite the six-inch snow blanketing the capital.

A recent story from the front about three soldiers who blew themselves to bits blasting a path through Chinese barbed wire has created a profound sensation and seems likely to become a part of the empire's military saga.

Chinese Government Plans Four-Point Defense

NANKING, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The Nationalist government today was reported to be planning a powerful four-point defense of China, one of which provides for the recovery of Manchuria by Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, former president and leading Chinese military figure.

The other three points in the ambitious program are the combining of forces in the Shanghai area under Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang to resist the Japanese, the commanding of a Chinese army by Gen. Cheng Hi-Tang to suppress Communists in Kiangi and Fukien, and the placing of Gen. Liuh Siang at the head of a large reserve army.

CONVICT SLAYER GOES ON TRIAL

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Fred Collins, Negro, dozed frequently during the rapid selection today of a Center County jury that will try him for the murder of Betty Hickok, 20-year-old daughter of Rockview prison's psychiatrist.

Five hundred persons overtaxed the courtroom and a greater number milled about outside.

Collins arrived in court after driving from the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh. He swaggered into court and appeared to enjoy being the center of attraction. When court asked him to plead, Collins remained silent, but his attorney, J. J. Johnson answered "Not guilty."

The Negro then slumped into his chair and dozed. When the five women talesmen were being questioned, Collins took a lively interest in their replies.

100 Slain Japanese Soldiers Cremated

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The bodies of more than 100 Japanese killed in action during the last few days have been cremated, Japanese headquarters announced today. The Chinese issued a communique saying that one of the Japanese prisoners, taken during yesterday's action, was a battalion commander.

GENEVA ADOPTS BRITISH PLAN

GENEVA, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The British resolution to make the draft convention of the preliminary disarmament commission a basis of discussion for the world disarmament conference, was adpted unanimously today by the delegates.

The draft convention is the outline of a general disarmament treaty drawn up in 1930. It has generally been regarded as providing in the main for stabilization of present disarmaments.

Action on the British resolution, which was introduced by Sir John Simon, came after the conference had rejected the Soviet proposal to use their scheme of total disarmament as the framework of the present conference.

The great powers including the United States and France accepted the British plan yesterday, but met objection from Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet delegate.

Japanese Protest Flier's Aid to China

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Japanese Consul General Murai sent a note to United States Consul Edwin S. Cunningham today, calling the latter's attention to the death of Robert Short, an American flier, at Soochow while piloting a Chinese military airplane against Japanese fliers.

The Japanese Consul General requested Mr. Cunningham to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

Canadian Aviators Told to Shun China

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The Canadian trade commissioner here issued strong warnings today to Canadian aviators not to accept reports that the Chinese government was offering fabulously large salaries and high military rank to foreigners who join the Chinese air force.

Of five Canadian fliers who arrived recently, three have been shipped home. The other two have been found employed by the trade commission's office.

CAMPBELL AIMS AT 260 MILES

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—"I want to make 260 miles an hour or better."

Sir Malcolm Campbell, daring English race driver, made this declaration today as he announced his intention of going out again this afternoon in an attempt to shatter the new world's automobile speed record of 253.968 miles an hour, which he established only yesterday on Daytona's famous ocean speedway. He said:

"I'm not satisfied, even if I did break my old record. With any kind of a break I should be able to do much better than that."

Campbell injured the palm of his left hand slightly in driving his powerful car, the Bluebird, yesterday, but he did not anticipate the hand would give him any trouble today. He also suffered pains from his head to feet, caused by the vibration of the car.

Aspirant Undismayed At Campbell's Mark

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—"Wizard" Smith, Australian race driver, who is awaiting favorable conditions for an attempt to break the world's land speed record on the 90-mile beach course near here, today said he was not surprised at the new record figures made by Sir Malcolm Campbell at Daytona Beach, Fla., and that he would do 20 miles an hour better.

Von Kuehlmann Pays Visit to President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Dr. Richard Von Kuehlmann, secretary of state for Germany during the World War, called at the White House today and paid his respects to President Hoover.

Von Kuehlmann, in June, 1918, aroused the anger of Ludendorff by making a speech in which he urged acceptance of Woodrow Wilson's 14 points, and the irate chief of staff of the German army caused the Kaiser to discharge him within 48 hours.

Anita Grew Weds With Turkish Rites

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Anita Grew, daughter of the American ambassador to Turkey, today said a simple "yes" in Turkish to become the bride of Robert English, American legation secretary at Bangkok, Siam.

It was the "Turkish marriage" of the young woman athlete and her sweetheart, and the new Turkish civil code was employed. Their "American marriage" will come Saturday.

GRAND DUCHESS TELLS OF SON'S ROMANCE

Marie, in City, Refuses to Say She's 'Glad' Prince Will Wed Commoner

Grand Duchess Marie, brilliant Russian emigre, has turned American.

Here today for a lecture and to autograph her books, she presented the final proof — she wisecracked.

She was being pressed to say she was glad that her son, 22-year-old Prince Lennart, of Sweden, is going to marry a blonde commoner, Karin Nissvandt, in London, March 9. She refused to be pushed, saying:

"Why glad? I don't know. On the outcome will depend everything. You see, I'm a wise bird, although I'm no spring chicken."

She smiles. And that was that. Duchesses are supposed to end conversations with smiles. But she didn't. She talked about the girl, and the son.

"I'm sailing tomorrow. And, oh, I'm so busy. But the more hectic my existence, the better I like it. I met the girl last summer. I went to Germany to meet her and my son. She is beautiful.

"He likes her. But as to say he will be happy, how should I know? Everything depends on how it works out. It's to be no love in a cottage. He has a farm and properties. They've been fixing up a place on Lake Constance.

"What am I to wear? I don't know. I haven't picked a gift? No! Because I don't know what they want or need.

"You see, I'm just dashing, so to speak. I'll only stay in London between boats. I'm due to begin a lecture series on April 5 in Milwaukee. And busy! I have to write the introduction to my new book on the train as I go back to New York tonight."

The Russian emigre, whose book, "The Education of a Princess," is a best seller, is still devotedly interested in Russia. In a recent article in which she berated George Bernard Shaw for his levity on Russia's tragedies, she predicted a change there. Sitting in the library of the Roy A. Hunt mansion, Ellsworth avenue, where she is a guest, she said:

"Of course it is easy to prophesy. I know that there must be some change in Russia. Present conditions are not humane and cannot last. Perhaps it will evolve into some form of republican government."

The guest of Mrs. Hunt, she was accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Schoumatoff, noted portrait painter and sister of Director Andre Avinoff, of Pittsburgh.

READY TO MOVE AMERICANS

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—United States consular and military officials said today they would announce shortly a plan by which all Americans in the International Settlement could be concentrated quickly in the event of an emergency.

They said that, although they did not consider the danger had yet increased considerably, they thought it best to take the proper precautions for a quick evacuation if it became necessary.

All Americans who reside at the Astor House Hotel, one of the landmarks of Shanghai, facing Soochow Creek, were cautioned by American officials to leave there and retire to a safer location, but most of them had declined to move late today.

The advice was given because of the apparent danger from Chinese shells, which fell last night very near this spot as the artillery attempted to shell the Japanese flagship Idzuma anchored in the Whangpoo.

In the event of a general evacuation, all American shipping in these waters would be taken over to transport American citizens.

Germany's diplomatic representatives here evacuated their consulate tonight in the face of the possibility that the Chinese army would shell the Hongkew sector.

2 College Teachers Ousted in Dry Raid

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A liquor raid at the University of Nebraska Coliseum has led to the suspension of a professor and an instructor. The two, Dr. L. C. Wimberly and N. E. Eliason, were chaperones recently at an all-university dance which closed half an hour before the raid by federal officers. Dr. Wimberly, professor of English, will continue as editor of the Prairie Schooner, literary publication in which the university is interested.

Ranks of Needy in Daily 'Penny Parade' Grow

Pittsburgh's penny parade drew one of its biggest crowds today.

One hundred or more of the unemployed lined up at Ray Hoffman's parking lot, 916 Duquesne way, before most citizens were out of bed, and each received three or four pennies from Hoffman.

Hoffman has been doing this for more than a year. When he started, he gave nickels, dimes and quarters, but the parade has increased so that he now gives pennies. He explains:

"I know what it is to be down and out. I feel sorry for these fellows. The city should take care of them. The Exposition Music Hall would house 4,000 of them."

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF GIRL FOUND IN WOODS

CLOTHES FOUND HANGING TO BUSHES

Daughter of Missionary Missing Since Tuesday; Woman Tells of Screams

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 25.—Mystery today surrounded the death of moon-struck Else Flothmeier, daughter of a minister, who had beauty and life ahead of her.

The 22-year-old college girl ran naked into death in as strange an end as ever recorded in the exotic annals of the West African gold coast, where she was born.

In the teeth of winter's icy breath, Else hung her clothes on a blackberry bush and stumbled through the wild briars until she fell from exhaustion and exposure.

MISSING 24 HOURS

Twenty-four hours after she was missing from the home of her father, the Rev. Frederick Flothmeier, pastor of the Tabor Lutheran Church in Olney her body was found concealed in a clump of high grass. She lay face down, 60 yards away from where she had disrobed. Her head rested on her right arm, her fist clenched. Her shoes lay a few feet away.

There were scratches on the girl's face and body. But Asst. Supt. of Police Joseph Lestrange today said these were received during her mad flight. Lestrange said:

"This girl was subject to mental lapses."

The father, former missionary in Africa, asked:

"You are sure that she was not murdered?"

Lestrange replied:

"I am certain of it."

"Thank God for that."

Else had started with her father on a round of parish calls on Tuesday afternoon. Near the entrance of Burholme Park, she told him she would walk through it and meet him at the home of a cousin, Adolph Wegener.

Five persons saw Else wandering through the sparsely settled section.

HEARS SCREAM

At about 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, Mrs. Helen Soltys, only a block from where the beautiful girl was wandering with death, heard a scream. She said:

"Later on that night, I started from sleep and thought I heard a woman scream again."

Neighbors of the girl knew her as a quiet, studious type. They said she had undergone a nervous breakdown two years ago and was a patient in a hospital. When she recovered, she renewed her studies at Temple University and later at Tennant College. She has two young brothers and a younger sister.

Although preliminary examination of the body suggested no theory of murder, the official cause of death will not be pronounced until an autopsy has been performed.

Train Kills Dr. Edgar, Noted Minister Here

United Presbyterian Leader's Death Under Inquiry

The Coroner's office today was to investigate the circumstances under which the Rev. Dr. Thomas D. Edgar, nationally known clergyman and pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, was killed by a passenger locomotive in the Edgewood station of the Pennsylvania Railroad last night.

Dr. Edgar

As the train entered the east end of the station, the 64-year-old clergyman was seen to stumble from the platform into its path, it was reported. He was dead when Dr. R. W. Ebe arrived.

The engineer, W. G. Wright, reported Dr. Edgar stepped in front of the train. Other witnesses said he wavered as though suddenly stricken as the train approached.

PASTOR HERE SINCE 1905

From his home, 407 Todd street, Wilkinsburg, it was learned Dr. Edgar suffered a nervous breakdown two months ago. He had not occupied his pulpit since December 1.

He was born in Coulterville, Ill., and was educated at Coulterville Academy, Monmouth College, Xenia Theological Seminary and Muskingum College.

He had been pastor of the Wilkinsburg church since 1905, having served previously in Morning Sun and Cambridge, O. He was a director of the National Reform Association, secretary of the Board of Church Extension, a member of the Board of Home Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, the commission on evangelism and life service of Federal Council Churches and the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, and chairman of the evangelistic committee of the United Presbyterian Church.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Sarah Jane Edgar, 95; his widow, Mrs. Nancy Jane Caruth Edgar; three sons, Thomas D., Jr., Ralph C. and A. W. Edgar, and a daughter, Helen C. Edgar.

Funeral services will be held in his church tomorrow at 3 p. m. The body may be viewed from 1 o'clock until the hour of service. Interment will be Saturday, in Cambridge, O.

25,000 'SHORT' ON U. S. TAX

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Notice was served on about 25,000 federal taxpayers today that they were deficient in their remittances to the government for taxes due on 1930 incomes.

Both individuals and corporations were involved. The amount of taxes ranged from trivial sums to hundreds of thousands.

On March 15, the statute of limitations would expire on these back collections, but the cases are held open by the government through so-called 60-day letters which require the taxpayers to meet the additional assessments in two months or take the cases to the Board of Tax Appeals.

Returns on incomes of 1931 are due in the hands of income tax collectors by midnight March 15. Losses on stock market transactions will be reduced from the 1931 incomes and there is great uncertainty as to how much money will be received during March.

Lupe 'Hot-Cha' Start Depends on Costumes

HOOVER HELPS MINE CHILDREN

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A contribution from President Hoover of $2,500 for feeding children in the bituminous coal regions of several states was announced yesterday by the American Friends Service Committee which is undertaking the work.

A representative of the committee, who made the announcement, recalled that Mrs. Hoover last Christmas gave a party at the White House for the Hoover grandchildren, Peggy and Herbert, Jr., to which 50 young people bought gifts for children in the coal regions.

Bernard G. Waring, head of the coal relief section, announced that approximately 25,000 children are being fed in 31 counties of West Virginia, Kentucky, Southwest Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Illinois and Maryland.

Mexican Star May Appear Here in Lead Role

Lupe Velez, fiery little Mexican screen star, will be in the cast of "Hot-Cha," the new Florenz Ziegfeld musical show, when it opens its second week at the Nixon Theater Monday, prior to its New York premiere, if her costumes can be completed by that time, Ziegfeld announced today.

Miss Velez

The producer's decision to remain at the Nixon, where the show has been playing to capacity houses since Monday, delays the New York opening until March 8.

Miss Velez, who flew here from Hollywood earlier in the week to enter rehearsals, will have the part of "Conchita," which has been rewritten for her by Mark Hellinger, Sun-Telegraph columnist and co-author of "Hot-Cha," and Ray Henderson and Lew Brown, the music writers.

Reyva Reyes, Mexican protege of the National Broadcasting Company, who has been playing "Conchita," will be shifted to "Ramona," another "fat" part in the production, when Lupe joins the cast.

Mellon Goes South For Two Weeks' Rest

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, newly selected Ambassador to Great ritain, left last night for Augusta, Ga., where he plans to spend two weeks resting before he sails for London.

The Ambassador, who concluded nearly 11 years service as Secretary of the Treasury 10 days ago, has spent the intervening time arranging his personal affairs here and in Pittsburgh. He will sail sometime after March 15.

John Barrymore Bruised in Crash

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Reports that John Barrymore had been injured severely in an automobile accident brought from his physician last night a statement that the film actor was bruised when his car collided with another machine.

The physician said Barrymore would be kept to his home several days as a result of the crash. The identity of the other driver was not learned.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh Dies at Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, for many years a leader in capital society, died here today. She was the widow of a famous Colorado mining magnate and the mother-in-law of Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher.

RUNAWAY WIFE HELD AS RAID BARES LOOT

Woman Who Left Family For 'Bad Man' Caught With $65,000 Gems, Guns

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Jewelry valued at $65,000 was found by police when they raided a sumptuously furnished three-room apartment in Elmhurst, Queens, today, and took into custody Mrs. Mary Kekic, said to be the runway wife of a Cleveland contractor and sweetheart of Joseph Filkowski, 29-year-old "bad man" and Cleveland's "Public Enemy No. 1," arrested here late yesterday.

Taken to police headquarters, the woman, a strikingly pretty 26-year-old brunette, was said to have admitted that she deserted her husband and two children in Cleveland to flee with Filkowski, a childhood sweetheart, who is wanted in the Ohio city for at least one murder and for 30 or more payroll and jewel robberies.

ARSENAL FOUND

In the Elmhurst apartment, which Mrs. Kekic had rented January 19 under the name of "Mrs. Mary Krauss," police said they found one sawed-off shotgun, a quantity of ammunition to match, two pistols, a roll of 4-inch adhesive tape of the sort used to bind robbery victims and a coil of braided rope.

Headquarters squad, accompanied by three police officers from Cleveland, raided the place. Mrs. Kekic, they said, sought to bar their entrance and, when they brushed her aside, ran to a window. The detectives grabbed her. She denied that Filkowski lived there, although she readily admitted, police said, that she had run away from her husband and children in Cleveland with him.

KIN OF SLAIN BANDIT

She is a sister, she told police, of Joseph Stasiok, former pal of Filkowski, who was shot and killed during a holdup in 1930. Police expressed the belief that she was shielding Filkowski in an effort to shoulder "the rap" for the guns and jewelry found in her possession.

Filkowski was arrested on Forty-seventh street between Broadway and Sixth avenue, late yesterday by Detectives Morris and Reardon, accompanied by three Cleveland officers. Describing the arrest later, the detectives admitted that they "took no chances, but simply picked up the street and hit him with it."

Weather Conditions.

The high that was centered over Manitoba yesterday morning moved eastward rather rapidly. It is centered over the New England states this morning and covers the coast states as far south as North Carolina. The pressure has remained stationary and increased somewhat in pressure. A low is centered over Manitoba and relatively low pressure extends down over the plains states. There is a southern center south of Florida and another south of Arizona. This distribution of pressure is causing considerable cloudy weather over the northern portion of the country and mostly clear skies over the southern half. The weather is moderately cold over the eastern states, while over the plains states and northward over the Canadian Northwest mild temperatures prevail.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 0.5 feet. Lock No. 7, 12.2; Pittsburgh, 11.7; Dam No. 4, 9.5; Dam No. 8, 9.4; Dam No. 10, 8.5, and Dam No. 12, 9.4. The dams are up.

RESCUERS HUNT PERILED SHIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Rescue vessels guided only by meager radio reports today searched for the Danish steamship Aggersund which reported it was listing badly and had lost all its lifeboats in a storm off the Irish Coast.

Coast stations along the Atlantic were notified by one of their cutters the steamer was in distress and in imminent danger of sinking, but her exact position was undetermined.

A radio message from the S. S. Montcalm said the Aggersund was badly damaged.

The Danish ship was Boston-bound from Scotland. Its normal crew consists of 25 men.

Peace Makers Fail, Ethel Clayton Sues

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Efforts to effect a reconciliation between Ethel Clayton, motion picture actress, and her actor husband, Ian Keith, have failed, and Miss Clayton's attorney announced her divorce suit will be heard today.

Miss Clayton accused Keith of excessive drinking. The suit was filed in November, 1930, but friends endeavored to close the breach between them. The divorce petition hearing was postponed several times after Keith is said to have expressed the hope he might be given another chance.

WIDOW ADMITS BABY HOAX

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A young widow today gave up her claims to the best dressed foundling ever abandoned here and whatever hopes she may have had of using the baby to wedge into the $30,000 estate of her mother-in-law.

Mrs. Christine Smith, widow of a Buffalo (N. Y.) physician, signed a statement giving the foundling, known as "Terry Tower," to the custody of the Children's Bureau and relatives have signed affidavits stating that Mrs. Smith was not an expectant mother when she stayed here with them last December, the month of the child's birth.

Cyrena Van Gordon To Wed Copper Man

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Howard D. Smith, president of the Consolidated Copper Company Mines, Inc., and a resident of San Francisco, obtained a license yesterday to marry Cyrena Van Gordon, opera singer. He said the wedding would be Saturday.

Miss Van Gordon, who is 14 years younger than Smith, was first married to Dr. Shirley B. Munn, Chicago specialist, in 1915. They were granted a divorce last summer. Smith is 50 years old.

THE CHINESE ERECTING AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN IN CHAPEI

MRS. MOONEY TO SEE WALKER

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mary Mooney looked forward today to returning the visit Mayor James J. Walker paid her when he was in California to plead for the freedom of her son, Tom, imprisoned in connection with the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bomb explosion in 1916.

Although she received no invitation as yet to call on the Mayor, Mrs. Mooney believed a visit would be arranged during her two or three-day stay here.

She was still seeking to rest today following her tiring journey from San Francisco and the excitement which attended her appearance last night at the "Free Mooney" meeting held in the Bronx, where she was wildly cheered.

Mrs. Mooney, who is 84, and was told by a physician the journey might prove fatal, was too exhausted to deliver the speech she prepared. It was read by B. D. Ames, secretary of the League of Struggle for Negro Rights.

In the statement, Mrs. Mooney urged the immediate unconditional release of her son, asserting he was "framed" because he was a "militant leader of the working class."

Gloom of Death Cell Stills Song of Trunk Slayer

ARIZONA STATE PRISON, FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Sentenced to hang May 11, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk" murderess, today occupied a cell in "condemned row," hopeful her attorneys may yet save her from the gallows.

Mrs. Judd was brought to the state prison from Phoenix late last night, having left Phoenix a few hours after Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman denied her a new trial and sentenced her to death.

Sheriff J. R. McFadden, who accompanied Mrs. Judd to the prison from Phoenix, said the convicted woman was in "very jovial spirits" on the trip, singing several Spanish songs. Mrs. Judd learned Spanish while living in Mexico several years ago.

When she was placed in her cell, Mrs. Judd shuddered and remarked:

"I visited a lot of dark caves when I lived in Mexico, but this dark place scares me to death."

Couple Married 53 Years Die Within 3 Hours

Together for 53 years, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Robbins, of 117 Quincy avenue, Mt. Oliver, died within three hours of each other today.

Both were taken ill on the same day, a week ago, with influenza. Their sickroom was the same. When Mr. Robbins, 75, a retired carpenter, died shortly after midnight, Mrs. Robbins, 74, in an adjoining bed, knew nothing of his passing. Three hours later she died.

Mrs. Robbins was born in England, Mr. Robbins near Wilkes-Barre. They married 53 years ago in Luzerne County, Pa. They were members of Knoxville Methodist Episcopal Church. Five children survive, Wesley, Elmer, Cora, Caroline and May Robbins.

HARRIS URGES $100 GIFTS TO AID JOBLESS

35,000 Homes in Dire Need, Senator Says in Appeal; Will Meet Relief Chiefs

Advocating a relief plan whereby 35,000 families would provide $100, divided into three monthly contributions of $33 until June for an equal number of destitute households, State Senator Frank J. Harris today was to confer with a group of church leaders in relief work to determine the feasibility of placing the plan into action.

Senator Harris announced the plan last night at a meeting of the Allied Boards of Trades which indorsed the project and promised to support it.

Among leaders expected to join in today's conference are the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, the Rev. Lawrence O'Connell and Leo G. Griffith, the latter representing the Catholic Charities.

Pointing out that there are approximately 35,000 destitute families in the county that in a short time will be deprived of relief through lack of funds, Senator Harris outlined his plan as follows:

"The total number of families living here is approximately 300,000. Of this number it is estimated there are 75,000 families that are not in need of outside assistance, but are just able to care for themselves. This group, together with the 35,000 destitute families, leaves 190,000 families who are able to contribute.

"I am sure that out of these thousands of good citizens at least 35,000 can be found who will undertake the task when it is known one $100 each will keep the average family from starvation from now until June 1, when it is hoped the worst of the depression will be over."

AKRON SAFETY DEFENDED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—The Akron was defended before the House Naval Committee today of charges that the airship was unsafe.

Representative Lelaney (Dem.), of New York, read the committee a prepared statement that the giant airship, damaged at Lakehurst last Monday, soon would be as airworthy as ever.

He differed in this respect with Representative McClintic (Dem.), of Oklahoma, who expressed fear that the airship might have been "irreparably damaged."

Representative Woodruff (Rep.), of Michigan, presented a letter from Commander R. D. Weyerbacher, of the Navy, who inspected the Akron after the accident, which said:

"I found no construction or material defect. While involving many individual members, the damage may be considered to be local; repairs can be made; the structural strength of the ship is not impaired. After the repairs are completed, the ship will be safe and entirely satisfactory."

Head of 'Secret Six' Reveals Gang Threat

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Robert Isham Randolph, chief of Chicago's Secret Six, told a House committee today he always drove "with the doors of my car locked and my gun in a position to shoot."

Appearing with representatives from St. Louis civic organizations to advocate a bill to punish the senders of threatening letters through the mails, Randolph read to the House Postoffice Committee threatening letters he had received from racketeers and told of precautions he had taken to guard against them.

Slayer of Child, 7, Held for Grand Jury

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Forces of the law moved rapidly today against William Brown, 18, a Negro who, police said, has confessed he attacked and killed 7-year-old Dorothy Lutz.

A coroner's jury of six men formally held him responsible for the killing, and Coroner Fred Schwarz, Jr., ordered him held for the grand jury.

KISTLER SHUNS VOTE PLEDGE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25. (INS)—Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, Democratic National Committeeman, in a letter to Warren Van Dyke, chairman of the Roosevelt-for-President League, announced he would reserve the right "to use my own judgment as the balloting progresses" at the national convention.

Kistler's letter, made public today, was in answer to one sent by Van Dyke to all 16 candidates for delegate-at-large to sound out their attitudes on the ruling of the state committee instructing them to vote for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in the April 26 primary. Kistler wrote:

"The greatest danger to Democratic success this year lies in the possibility of a nominating deadlock."

Kistler's letter was made public by Van Dyke after he had announced that the national committeeman and John R. Collins, state Democratic chairman, would abide by the state committee's decision.

TWO CONFESS ROBBING BANK

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 25.—Two of the four robbers who held up the First National Bank of Smithton, Pa., on July 29, 1931, today were in the Westmoreland County Jail, having pleaded guilty to the robbery, state police said.

They are Jess Sayer, 48, and his son, Earl, 20, both of Smithton.

State police took them before Justice of the Peace D. L. Zunsle, of Smithton, where they pleaded guilty.

The officers also declared the Sayers named their two accomplices.

Four robbers hid in the bank, surprised and held up two girl tellers when the bank opened, and fled with $1,000 when two bank officers entered. In their hurry, the bandits dropped a package containing $30,000.

Slew N. Y. Kidnaper, Suspect Declares

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—James Etro, 39, vegetable sorter, has confessed, Assistant District Attorney P. Francis Marro said, that he shot and killed "Duck" Oliva, Brooklyn pugilist, Tuesday.

He said he did so in self-defense because he and his partner, Buddy Voelpel, were being kidnaped by Oliva, and two companions. Voelpel said the quarrel grew out of attempts of the three men to "muscle in" on the profits of the fruit sorting business.

GARNER FAVORS PROGRAM FOR SALES TAX

Speaker Indorses New Levy Designed to Balance 1933 Budget; Face Huge Deficit

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Speaker John N. Garner, of the House, today indorsed the proposed manufacturers sales tax as a part of the program of the House Ways and Means Committee to raise revenues to balance the budget.

Garner explained that the committee was confronted with the necessity of raising a far greater amount of taxes than had been anticipated. He said:

"I think there is general belief we must adopt the sales tax to provide the necessary revenue. We expected we would have to raise about $400,000,000 by miscellaneous taxes, but we now find we must raise $800,000,000.

"It is simply impossible to provide sufficient funds by the income and similar taxes alone and it seemed wise to spread out the other taxes as much as possible."

AIDING COMMITTEE

Garner, a former Democratic leader on fiscal affairs, has been assisting members of the Ways and Means Committee in drafting a tax bill.

The cornerstone of the tax program now being evolved by the committee is based upon the so-called "painless tax"—a 2 per cent levy on finished manufactured products.

The remainder of the $1,240,000,000 needed to carry out the budget-balancing program laid down by the Treasury will be realized from income, estate, gift and miscellaneous taxes.

FEW EXEMPTIONS

Explaining the manufacturers' sales tax plan, Raines said that exemptions probably will be limited to bread, fresh meat, fish, milk and farm products.

There will necessarily be a tax on processed foods and meats in all probability, he said, but added that "the tax on processed foods will be so slight that no one will know it."

Meanwhile, organized labor's battle for a legislative ban on anti-strike injunctions was speeded in the Senate today as other groups pressed for early action on the "big Navy" bill and the new Wagner unemployment relief measure.

RELIEF NEED GROWS

Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, its author, declared the problem of feeding starving unemployed was increasing and had become the major issue before the nation. His bill would allow distribution of $375,000,000 for unemployment relief, to be deducted from federal-aid road funds for the states. It also carried a $375,000,000 road construction fund to be apportioned among the states.

Administration leaders hoped to pass the anti-injunction bill before the end of the week. After that will come a race between the Navy men and the unemployed relief group to determine which bill gets immediate consideration.

Two Wife Murderers Go to Chair Monday

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 25.—Two wife murderers are scheduled to go to the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary next Monday, one a white man, the other a Negro. The white man is Joseph Roman, of Cambria County, who killed his wife, Martha, at their home in Amsbry, May 7, 1931, after he was released from jail on a desertion and non-support charge.

The Negro, Quincy Wallandz, 22, of Philadelphia, was convicted last November of killing his wife.

Radio Telephones Ordered By Air Line

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Northwest Airways has ordered more than $50,000 worth of radio telephone units from the Western Electric Company to complete its program of equipping landing fields and planes for two-way radio-telephone service. The project involves equipment for four ground stations and 17 planes.

Denies U. S. Plans War Debt Statement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Vague reports that the administration plans to issue a statement on international war debts were said today by Secretary Mills to be unfounded.

GARNER AVOIDS PRIMARIES IN PARTY RACE

Sure of Big Bloc on First Ballot as Campaign Gains; Concentrates on Duties

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Speaker John N. Garner will enter no state primaries as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, but he nevertheless will have the support of a considerable bloc of delegates in the Chicago convention from the first ballot onward.

At this juncture, with the convention four months away, the expectation is general that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will have a big lead on the initial ballot, but many of the speaker's friends predict that he will be runner-up to Roosevelt at the outset, and that his strength will steadily increase as the balloting proceeds.

MOVEMENT SPREADS

Garner-for-President clubs are springing up in many states which the Roosevelt managers have heretofore considered their territory—California and Florida, for example—and the Roosevelt managers are exhibiting signs of real concern. They are more concerned, in fact, over the growth of the Garner movement than over the active candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, who is expected to enter the primaries against Roosevelt in New England states.

The reason for this is plain. The Garner movement is attaining its greatest momentum in the South and West, where the Roosevelt strength always has been most pronounced. In their optimistic tables of delegate strength, the Roosevelt managers have heretofore claimed every southern and western state. It is now apparent that the Garner movement is making serious inroads throughout this territory, starting with the 46 delegates from Texas and spreading fanwise from there.

SHUNS CAMPAIGN

Meanwhile, the ruddy-faced speaker himself intends to do nothing to promote his candidacy. He steadfastly refuses to discuss it.

It is his belief that Democratic success next November will depend in large measure upon the record built up by the Democratic party in the present Congress.

He is the leader of the only Democratic House there has been in 14 years. For him to sit on the rostrum as an active candidate for the presidential nomination would be incongruous. It would be calculated, he believes, to destroy Democratic solidarity in the House, which thus far in this session has been remarkable.

TAMMANY SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is confident he will have the support of Tammany for the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention despite his removal from office of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, one of the most powerful of the Tammany chiefs, his close friends insisted today.

Roosevelt is understood to be well aware of the fact that several of Sheriff Farley's most intimate co-leaders in Tammany are "fighting mad" over his ouster, but he expects John F. Curry, Tammany chief, to look upon the entire case "in the right light."

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Undersheriff Peter J. Curran was to be sworn in today as Sheriff as soon as official notification was received at his office of the removal of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley from office by Gov. Roosevelt.

Farmer Defies Police After 9-Day Siege

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Harvey Thompson, farmer at Sty-l, Alberta, last night still held a number of Alberta provincial police officers at bay, having refused for nine days to submit to arrest on a charge of stealing $15 worth of mining tools. Police are not pressing him. They hope, on account of the nature of the offense, to effect an arrest without bloodshed.

sion to lower their rates. He added:

"I am not saying how much it should be. Every person in public or private life is making a sacrifice, and the utilities should be no exception."

WARNS ON PROPAGANDA

Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown; G. V. Shoup, secretary of the Allied Boards of Trade, and W. B. Hodby, of the Overbrook Board of Trade, attacked the utility rate conditions before a meeting of the Thirty-second Ward Unit, League of Women Voters, last night at the Overbrook Municipal Building. McCloskey warned the audience against propaganda the public utility companies will attempt to circulate through employes and use of hecklers at mass meetings as a means of defeating the present statewide fight of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Asssociation.

He said:

"Why are not rates of each utility company the same? There are no two schedules of tariffs the same anywhere in the country. They are out to take all the people will pay."

CITES LOWER COST

Shoup charged that $33,000,000 is spent yearly by public utility companies to spread propaganda in this country. Citing the failure to place rate charges in conformity with existing conditions, he said:

"Since the present rates were set, the utilities have studied their production costs until efficiency has established a 10 to 1 saving in producing electricity. Yet they are not passing the savings to consumers."

THE STORY OF JOHN N. GARNER

By George Rothwell Brown

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

CHAPTER V.

John N. Garner's first campaign for Congress, on which, if the American people had but known, hung the American Speakership, the future leadership of the Democratic party, and mayhap the Presidency of the United States, was a terrific battle.

He has emerged victorious from many hard-fought contests since then in Texas, and in Washington, but none was like the initial struggle, a life and death grapple for political existence.

A few years had slipped by since the bride and groom had settled down, after the honeymoon, in their own modest home in Uvalde. Vines grew about the small cottage. Flowers, under Mrs. Garner's ministering care, filled the garden with color and fragrance. The baby was five, and John N. Garner was 32 years old. His health had come back, under the invigorating altitude of Uvalde County, and he was in gladiator trim. He needed to be.

A good many Republicans from the north had moved into the Fifteenth Texas District, even as early as 1902. There was a strong Republican vote. The people had gone in for the raising of citrus fruits and garden produce, and mohair goats, and there was much complaint of tariff discrimination against these industries.

A Strong Campaign

Garner from the outset, had to combat the widespread opinion that Judge Dibrell was the only Democrat who could surely be counted upon to the defeat the Republican nominee.

He covered the district from end to end, and when it is realized that it is some 400 miles long by approximately 200 miles wide, the magnitude of the task may be appreciated. His district was an empire in itself, containing, among other things, the celebrated King ranch, which is itself larger than the entire state of Rhode Island.

There were no hard surface highways in those days in Texas. The "good roads" movement had not begun. The automobile was the novelty of the rich in a few northern cities.

Young John N. Garner reached his constituency when he could by the railroad line that ran through the district, and when the railroad failed him, he got to them by stage, by horse and buggy, and on horseback across the sun-baked plains, all up the valley of the Rio Grande from Brownsville to Eagle Pass, covering 22 huge counties in all, each county as large as some of our smaller states.

Gentlemen "running" for Congress in urban districts, or even in the more densely populated rural states, have no conception of the hardships entailed in a political campaign under such conditions as confronted John N. Garner during his early political career, before the advent of the automobile and good roads. Now the district can be covered over some of the finest roads in the world.

In Joint Debates

Where Garner went, frequently Dibrell went also. They staged a great number of old-fashioned joint debates, with probably a thousand or more people gathered in the small towns to hear them. Benches would be set up in the streets, and all business would be suspended while the battle went on. As one of the local newspapers expressed it, in the heat of the campaign, "there is blood and hair and the ground tore up."

The platform adopted by the congressional convention, held at Laredo on August 27, 1902, the first political platform on which John N. Garner ever stood—proposed a remedy for the trust evil. It declared for a tariff for revenue only with incidental protection, and for the livestock industry a protection equal to that given to articles manufactured from livestock. It took a stand against imperialism, and declared for the irrigation of the Rio Grande Valley. It denounced "both the doctrine of free raw material and Republican reciprocity."

Garner took the platform, at the convention, and made his first speech in what might be called the national field. He reached way outside of the Fifteenth Texas District, and attacked President Theodore Roosevelt on the ground of insincerity in dealing with the trusts. He favored, he said, a law putting trust-made articles on the free list. He favored protection for raw materials equal to that of the manufactured article. He attacked the Republican policy in the Philippines.

JOHN N. GARNER AT HIS DESK AS NEW CONGRESS OPENED

It was not local—it was a national address, on a national theme. His vision, from the Rio Grande, embraced the entire republic.

His First Platform

It is significant that the first Garner platform indorsed the Panama Canal project, and favored "the most friendly and just relations with our sister Republic of Mexico."

Garner was the hero of the hour. So hot was the fight that in the midst of the primaries Judge Dibrell suddenly announced his withdrawal as a candidate. When the convention assembled Garner was the sole hero. He was placed in nomination by Judge Stanley Welch, and the nomination was seconded by Judge Ellis, of Uvalde. Garner was then nominated by acclamation.

Said the Clarksville Times, with pardonable pride:

"Score one more for old Red River County—another of her sons has landed with both feet. John Garner, now of Uvalde, has won the Democratic nomination for Congress in his district, and the nomination is equivalent to election. We all knew John was going to do his home county credit, but he has got there even faster than we expected. He is the kind of man that will make himself known in Washington and leave his impress on the records. He will not only hold his own in the halls of Congress but will come mighty near holding high low jack and the game on the outside."

The Honey Grove Signal, bursting into a paen of praise for the Democratic nominee said: "Mr. Garner is known affectionately in his part of the country as 'Chapparal Cock of the Frio,' and sometimes 'Chapparal Cock' is changed to 'Road Runner,' that being the local name of the bird. Mr. Garner is still supposed to have splinters in his feet that he got in Red River County."

Takes All in Fun

Another Texas paper declared that Mr. Garner had won because he had shrewdly borrowed a picture of Jeff McLemore, had it printed in all the papers in his district as his own, and then laid low until after the primaries had decided the matter."

There was a good deal of fun poked at John N. Garner in these days because of his looks. During the campaign Garner showed up in Corpus Christi one day, when he had been on the road a week without opportunity to shave.

He was talking to his old friend, Judge James B. Wells, when Pat Dunn, a big cattleman joined them. Wells introduced them, and when Garner had left Dunn said:

"Who was that man?"

"Why," replied Wells, "that's Jack Garner, the candidate for Congress."

"Well," said Dunn, "he's the worst looking specimen of humanity I ever saw."

From all account the Garner of thirty years ago gave little promise of the distinguished, gray-haired statesman into which he has since developed. Contemporary accounts of his first Congressional campaign in 1902 sparkle with broad references to his cowboy appearance, couched in humorous exaggeration of the day.

A Handsome Victory

But there was nothing to make folks laugh about the way John N. Garner made that initial fight for Congress. When the Democratic nomination was his, he turned his attention to his Republican opponent.

This was John C. Scott, of Corpus Christi, member of a prominent and wealthy Democratic family.

E. H. R. Green, millionairess Hetty's well-known son, and Republican State Chairman of Texas, financed the Republican campaign. There was a memorable joint debate between the two candidates at Floresville, on September 6, from which Garner emerged the recognized winner.

Garner defeated Scott by a handsome majority. The Congressional district he had himself carved out by his own effort, was his at last—to have, and to hold!

He turned his face toward Washington, and the great arena of national statesmanship.

Former Magistrate In Assembly Race

Petition blanks have been taken out from the County Election Bureau to nominate E. M. Hough, of 2652 Perrysville avenue, Twenty-sixth Ward, former Police Magistrate, as a candidate for the General Assembly from the Seventh District.

CLARK'S TOWING GARAGE PLAN HELD UP

Garland Asks Lower Price, McArdle Raps Forbes St. Building as Not Central

Public Safety Director James M. Clark's plan to obtain a municipal parking garage for impounded cars here was as far as ever today from solution, following a conference with City Council's Committee on Safety.

Council delayed action on Clark's ordinance providing for leasing of a garage and the purchasing of two tow trucks until next Wednesday, when he will produce figures on the market value of a garage at 3131 Forbes street. Councilman Robert Garland asked the valuation, because, he said, market values of properties have decreased in the last two years. Garland said he felt that the property could be bought cheaper than the terms offered by the owner.

Under Clark's plan, the city would rent the garage for $8,000 the first year, $10,000 the second and $12,000 the third, with option to purchase then for $190,000.

During yesterday's discussion, Councilman Harry A. Little proposed use of the Downtown wharves for impounded cars. Clark opposed leaving the vehicles outside in all kinds of weather.

Councilman P. J. McArdle criticized the proposed Forbes street location, declaring:

"It is not central. It is the worst location you could find. It is an imposition on the people who do not reside in central sections of the city."

Customs Collector Here Reappointed

Samuel H. Thompson, of 412 Franklin street, Wilkinsburg, collector of customs for District No. 12, of which Pittsburgh is headquarters, has been reappointed for four years by President Hoover, according to word from Washington. His name will be sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Mr. Thompson received his first appointment from President Harding in 1922 and was reappointed by President Coolidge in 1926.

High Rate Foe Here Out for Legislator

Joseph A. Rectenwald, of the Sixteenth Ward, who served overseas in the World War with the 80th Division, has announced his candidacy for election to the Legislature from the Twelfth District. He was the last elected Tax Collector of St. Clair Borough before it was annexed to Pittsburgh.

Rectenwald stated he favors repeal of the blue laws, a state bonus for service men, lower public utility rates, abolition of one-man street cars and relief for the unemployed.

Commissioners Seek Loan of $3,500,000

County Commissioners are negotiating a $3,500,000 loan from banking interests to carry the county government until June, when the taxpaying period starts.

Most of the tax funds were completely depleted last year and several temporary transfers from bond funds have been made to make up deficits since the new board took office.

JOBLESS AIDED BY BOK AWARD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25. (AP.)—The annual $10,000 Edward W. Bok award intended for Philadelphia's greatest public benefactor this year will help pay wages for those employed on "made" work.

A large audience was surprised when William Curtis Bok, son of its founder, announced that the recipient this year would be the "Unknown Citizen of Philadelphia" representing the community as a whole. Bok said:

"The award is publicly given as a tribute to the courage and the loyalty to American traditions with which the community has faced the hardships of 1931, and made the best of its troubles."

Philip C. Staples, who was active in the united campaign which raised more than $10,000,000 for unemployment relief and welfare work last November and December, received the check on behalf of "the unknown citizen."

The scroll, casket and medal which accompany the award will go to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

British Crowds Honor Wallace at Funeral

LITTLE MARLOW, England, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The greatest crowd this village has seen in many years gathered today for the funeral of Edgar Wallace, prolific author of thrillers, who died in Beverly Hills, Cal., recently.

The solid bronze coffin was borne by eight men and the Rev. G. B. Mildred, vicar of Little Marlow, officiated. The author's son, Bryan, was the only member of the family present. Among the wreaths was one from Noel Coward, playwright.

FATHER SLAIN, SON ASSERTS

A son's belief that his father was murdered instead of killed by a railroad train today had led to Gov. Gifford Pinchot sending a special state police investigator to Pittsburgh.

The investigator conferred with county detectives and morgue attaches, and delved into the records of the death of Joseph H. Powlus, 63, of Philadelphia, which occurred September 22, 1930.

Powlus' body was found that day near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Thornburg, where he had been hurled by a train. The son contends that his father had been slain and his body placed on the track. He also told Gov. Pinchot Philadelphia police knew the killer's name, but were protecting him.

The investigator also was checking the son's claim that his father's auto was sold on the South Side shortly after his death.

North Side Church Calls Buffalo Pastor

Members of the congregation of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, North Side, at a meeting last night voted to extend a call to the Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Newcomb, of Buffalo, to fill the pastorate of the church. The call will be forwarded to the presbytery at once, it was said.

For the past five months the pulpit of the North Side church has been filled by the Rev. A. H. Baldinger, of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

Widow of Moody, Poet-Artist, Dead

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. William Vaughn Moody, widow of the poet, artist and playwright, lies dead in her family mansion, once the welcoming place for literati from every country.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Graduation Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am graduating from art school this May, and am sending very few invitations. My girl friend and her father and mother live with her grandparents. To whom will I send the invitation? I love them all very dearly.

Also she has an aunt who lives in the same city, but in a different section, whom I know quite intimately. Would it be good form to send her an invitation? I am afraid that she will feel hurt if I don't send her one. But still I don't wish to do this if it is not good form. J. D.

It is just this kind of invitation that you should send, if at all possible, even if you are not sending many invitations. Apparently you know these people in an especially friendly and devoted way, and of course they will feel hurt if you don't send them an invitation to such an important event in your life. And it is very important, too, how you address these invitations, to show honor to each one. So address one invitation to the grandparents, one to the mother and father and one to your girl friend. Address a separate one, too, to the aunt.

Serving at Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a husband and wife have two guests to dinner, a man and his wife, in what order should the food be passed? My husband says the two guests should be served first, and then we two, but that would have the maid walking from one side of the table to the other side, then my left side, and then back to my husband. To me it would look terribly confused, and considering the fact that I have only one maid, who is serving and cooking the dinner, she has no time to lose as the food to be served would be cold. Thank you, if you will talk this over with me. MRS. ——

You are right in your judgment about this . . . the maid should pass the dish first to the woman guest of honor, and then proceed around the table, just as the guests are seated. The form of passing food first to the woman and then to the man is no longer used, even when there is a great deal of service in a household. When there is only one maid it is especially important that she does not take any more time or steps than she has to.

ESSAYS MUST BE BASED ON ADDRESS

Some Submitted, Dealing With Life of Washington, Not in Scope of Contest

Essays being written by thousands of students and others under 21 in the Sun-Telegraph contest are taking many to the libraries of Western Pennsylvania, where the Farewell Address of George Washington is available.

Essays need not treat in full the address. Contestants can, and many are, taking what is most striking to them in the many issues the first President treated, and write the treatise on it. The contest continues until April 4.

A number of essays sent in, treating only the life of Washington, do not come under the scope of the essay test, which prescribes the Farewell Address as the topic. Full freedom with it is permitted.

The classifications and prizes:

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay, not to exceed 100 words in length, in any class, by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length, by any person between the ages of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 500 words in length, by any child in any high school, gold medal for first, silver for second and bronze for third.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal; for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in the grammar grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5 there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

East Liberty Y Adds 346 New Members

A 10-day membership drive started by the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. on Lincoln's Birthday and ended on Washington's Birthday, brought in a total of 346 new members, it was announced. The drive was organized as an automobile race, with 22 teams. Each "fleet" had a goal of 60 members.

The "A" fleet finished first under the leadership of E. E. Cole, Jr., with 81 new members. R. L. Belknap's was second with 78, C. P. Spangler third with 65, and C. E. Betikofer and Dr. H. R. Decker tied in fourth place with 61 each.

PILES

Piles are swollen veins which are sometimes broken in the lower end of your bowels. They may cause fistula, abscesses, ulcers and infection in the rectum. Don't let your piles run on until you must have a surgical operation. But do not treat them with harsh patent medicines, some of which require the use of hard rubber or metal tubes. For hard things should never be put into the tender rectum except upon the advice of a physician. Ask your druggist for Unguentine Rectal Cones. They bring the same blessed comfort to piles that Unguentine brings to burns and cuts. They are soft, pleasant and easy to put in. They quickly relieve the burning, bleeding, paining, itching, swelling, bulging piles and help to prevent infection in the rectum. Ask your druggist for Unguentine Rectal Cones by name and get what you ask for.

THE DRAMA -:- Behind the Scenes With Ethel Barrymore -:- AMUSEMENTS -:- This and That About Theater Events

Ethel Barrymore Goes East For Week-End to Meet Poet Hauptmann

By GEORGE SEIBEL

When the curtain falls on "The School for Scandal" at the Alvin Theater Saturday night, Lady Teazle, otherwise known as Ethel Barrymore, will take the midnight train for New York city, though she has to play in Cleveland on Monday. The reason for this flight is the arrival of Gerhart Hauptmann on the Europa — Germany's foremost dramatist and poet, whose "Rose Bernd" was played by Ethel Barrymore some years ago and enjoyed its longest run in America, where but few of his 40 dramas have been produced. After a dinner at the Lotus Club, where Hauptmann is to be the guest of honor, Miss Barrymore will again entrain for Cleveland. The arduous trip is taken for the sole purpose of meeting the famous dramatist with whose work she is familiar as few Americans are.

George Seibel

Outside of Ethel Barrymore's production of "Rose Bernd" and E. H. Sothern's of "The Sunken Bell" there have been very few Hauptmann plays put on in this country. There was "Hannele's Ascension," which Mrs. Fiske played. When I mentioned Mrs. Fiske, a wave of sadness crossed Miss Barrymore's face.

"Our greatest actress and my dearest friend," she said.

"What would you wish to say about Mrs. Fiske?" I asked.

"More than that I cannot say," she replied. "That tells all."

TRIBUTE FROM THE HEART

And what more could be said? It was a tribute from the heart, Lady Teazle meant it.

Ethel Barrymore is a very sincere person. Having to play so many parts upon the stage, she probably finds it restful to be herself in private life. She admires people of simplicity and straightforwardness, and when I told her about the unspoiled geniality of Hauptmann's nature, she was enraptured. "All great men are simple," she exclaimed — and I thought the same was true of great women.

She asked me about his resemblance to Goethe, for the commemoration of whose death centenary Hauptmann is coming to Columbia University, Harvard and Johns Hopkins. I told her he looked even more like Goethe than the pictures. As she is also an admirer of the poet who wrote "Faust," she was all the more delighted.

"I shall feel as if I had met both of them at once," she declared. "It's worth while spending two days on the train to meet two such poets."

Next season Ethel Barrymore is planning to appear in another modern drama, after this tremendously successful revival of Sheridan.

DICK SHERIDAN HIMSELF

By a curious coincidence A. G. Andrews, who plays Moses in the revival at the Alvin Theater, played Richard Brinsley Sheridan in Richard Mansfield's production of "Beau Brummel." Andrews, who also has memories of a "greatest actor and best friend," was Mansfield's mainstay for 17 years. He was the creator of many roles, including Ragueneau in "Cyrano de Bergerac" and Mr. Juttner in "Heidelberg."

A. G. Andrews was the son of an American actor, but scored his first success in London, as Peter in the Irving-Terry production of "Romeo and Juliet." His performance brought him an offer to join the Comedie Francaise. He was flattered and delighted until he found that his salary would be about one-quarter of what he was getting in London. He decided to take the cash and let the glory go—or he might now be playing in French over in Paris.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lew Brown, spokesman for Brown and Henderson, manufacturers of swell musical comedies since away back, speaking (or was). He says the firm never turned out a work that was a hit on the road or a failure in New York. So we guess he's seeing something unusual in the Nixon box office queue demanding seats for "Hot-Cha," for which tickets for the second week go on sale today. Mr. Ziegfeld decided yesterday to delay his N. Y. opening of the piece in order to give Pittsburgh, his "lucky town," plenty of opportunity to see his new production, which broke the matinee attendance record of the theater at yesterday's afternoon performance. And did that make Ziggy mad! Although Mr. Ziegfeld could not make a positive statement, he admitted that Lupe Velez may be seen in "Hot-Cha" before the local engagement ends one week from Saturday. P-s-s-t! When we spoke to Mr. Brown about the success of "Good News" and "Flying High" on the road he said that was AFTER New York had said they were good.

* * *

Small Timer says women can always be depended upon to do anything you depend upon them not to do.

* * *

When the engagement of Ethel Barrymore in "The School for Scandal" ends Saturday night, there will be no more dramatic attraction in that theater for at least another week, as the Sixth street house next week will be given over to public auditions for the selection of "The Girl With the Sweetest Voice." It is a WCAE-Sun-Telegraph venture, opening Monday, and there will be a matinee performance Saturday. There will be a stage program by stars of WCAE, including the WCAE orchestra.

* * *

Small Timer says these are the days when a bank looks at your gilt-edged security as if there were a "u" in the gilt.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

First Night

Blow the sweet trumpets—here comes Mrs. K.
Fresh from Nevada with a fresh decree.
She takes her seat—to her intense dismay,
Adjoining her sits husband number three.
Sound the hard brasses—down the center aisle
Comes Mr. J.—a youthful fifty-four.
His latest darling wears an angel smile—
A sable cloak—and not a great deal more.
Nor must we overlook that gay octet
Who saunter in at nine with studied grace
To chirp and smile at people they have met
At Newport, Cannes or some gay watering place.
This poet hopes (the while he fumes and glares)—
The show holds acting half as fine as theirs!

—Don Wahn.

Pepitaph No. 5

Added to the list of suggested epitaphs for W. W., (which will have to become a book some day, we hope) is James J. Green's, to wit:

"Here lies Walter Winchell With More Dirt Than He Can Use!"

Heheheh

Mr. Green also submits the message that an Admiral once sent:

"We have met the enemy and they are ours!"

He adds:

When the Japs met the Chinese they sent the Home Office this message:

"We have met the enemy and Ouch!"

Louder and Tunnier

Gene Tunney tells of his experiences as a lifeguard at Keansburg, N. J., in an interesting magazine article, but he doesn't reveal that he was ousted from his boarding house there.

Because Gene refused to wear anything over his bathing jersey at the dinner table. So he found another house where the formality was not so essential.

Gag

J. J. Lewis eavesdropped the following gab in a general store in Maine. A traveling salesman had sold a bill of goods to a shopkeeper and was on his way down the street to see a competitor.

"No use calling on him," said the rival. "He's all washed up."

"Well," chirped the snappy-comebacker, "maybe I can sell him a mirror so he can see himself starving to death."

The Big Gossips!

The Medina (North Dakota) Citizen (a newsy rag) has this to report under the title "Peterson Township":

"Lester Christopher made a trip to Medina Saturday after coal for the Chas. Peterson farm . . . Fred Ferguson is reported as some improved after his attack of rheumatism . . . The Osterman farmers were getting in a fresh supply of coal this week . . . Elmer Kohlhoff was a Sunday visitor at Bismarck . . . Our mail man is making the trip very nearly on schedule time . . . A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hans Butschat Wednesday. All concerned doing nicely . . . It may be big news to some of us that Walter Wenchell gets good money but he doesn't say much either. Mostly about some woman getting a divorce in Reno or who has the best looking legs in Hollywood. Wouldn't it be nice if us farmers could make such a decent living in 5 years of our time?"

Stew Stuff

Francis W. Peeley tells of a pal who was suffering from hangover. He was explaining what happened the night before at his house.

"I'll have to cut out likker," he said, "I got fried last night, the wife nagged me and I threw an ax at her, missing her by inches!"

"Gee, I should think you would swear off after that!" said the listener.

"I'll say I should!" was the retort. "Booze spoils my aim."

The Squelch Swelegant

Eddei Mayne has a lovely manner of crushing the type who slaps you on the back and chirps:

"What's new?"

Mayne mangles him with: "Your brains, you dope!"

Nifty

From "Unkie"—"An egoist is a guy who changes his opinion every day except the one of himself."

Oop!

"Whatever became of the gag 'suddenly taken drunk' that Bobby Clark uses with Paul McCullough at Holtz's Hollywood Hit?"

"It was in Winchell's column the other day!"

Folk Drama Opens at Tech

"Hobson's Choice," a three-act folk drama reflecting life of "the lower middle class" of Lancashire, England, of the period of 1880, will be presented by the drama students of Tech in the theater of the College of Fine Arts for six nights, beginning tonight, excluding Saturday, and ending with the performance of Thursday, March 3.

This production is under the direction of B. Iden Payne, former head of the drama department at Tech, who returns annually as a visiting professor. The play is by Harold Brighouse and it has been esteemed since its original presentation in 1908 because of its quaint humor and strikingly individual characters. It has had great success in both England and America.

Akron Crash In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Every thrilling detail of the crash that stripped the largest dirigible Akron of its rudder at Lakehurst is shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, being seen in both the Penn and Fulton theaters. A special committee from Congress, present to investigate rumors that the giant airship failed to come up to specifications, gazes in horror as a blast of wind strikes the Akron sideways, smashing her stern against the hangar from which she was being moved. The great crowd of spectators is shown fleeing in panic. Another gust of wind lashes the ship, driving its stern to the ground and smashing her rudder and aft control cabin.

CHINA'S WAR ZONE

Issued as a pre-release and contained in the current issue, are the first actual pictures of conditions in the Shanghai war zone. They show the Japanese regular troops and marines in full control of the Chapei district. The North Station and the Commercial Press Building are shown burning from Japanese aerial bombs. On the Chinese side sand bag blockades are reared high and behind them the Chinese soldiers, stolid and unflinching, await whatever may happen. Thousands of refugees are seen flocking into the International Settlement.

JOHN D. SINGS HYMN

The most remarkable pictures ever taken of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who will be 93 years old this summer, show him leading a hymn-sing on the golf course at Ormond Beach, Fla.

King Levinsky, who mauled the Manassa mauler, Jack Dempsey, in Chicago, is shown at his home with his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, who predicts the King Fish will some day be the world's champion.

A society cat show in Paris shows some of the finest felines in the world, and everything is lovely until two Siamese get into an argument. There also is a dog exhibition in Berlin.

On the French Riviera the climax for vacationists comes with a gorgeous battle of flowers in which thousands of merrymakers pelt each other with blossoms.

Cuticura Healed Hard, Large Red Pimples on Face.

"My trouble began by using a wrong kind of soap. At first blackheads appeared on my forehead, and later turned into large, hard, red pimples that disfigured my face. They itched, causing me to scratch, and scratching caused eruptions and loss of sleep.

"I tried a few different remedies but without success. I had the trouble about two weeks when I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them a week they afforded relief, and in three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Viola Dupon, R. F. D. 2, Bristol, Pa.

Julie Haydon, 22-Year-Old Stage Actress, Newest Movie Charmer

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.

Blondes still predominate in the year's film discoveries. And radio, it would seem, has a particular leaning in that direction.

To a list which already includes Constance Bennett, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees, Gwili Andree and Phyllis Claire, the studio now adds another fair-haired charmer. She is Julie Haydon, 22-year-old stage actress, who has just appeared for RKO in "Symphony of Six Million."

Ann Harding

Previous to the part which won her a contract, Miss Haydon had had very little screen experience. Two bits at M. G. M. are about the sum of it. On the stage, she has done some work in stock, and she appeared in Mrs. Fiske's company, when the late star played "Mrs. Bumstead-Leigh" on the coast. Recently, she was in Ian Keith's production of "Hamlet."

Now Radio plans to groom her for leads.

GOSSIP OF CELEBS

Ann Harding plans another step in her campaign for privacy. She is having her telephone fixed so that it will take only outgoing calls. If anyone wants to reach her, they'll have to send a telegram . . . This town is a bit quieter for the departure of Lupe Velez. She concluded her deal with Florenz Ziegfeld over the telephone, and, with characteristic impatience, boarded a plane and now is in Pittsburgh . . . William De Mille has been taken off "Sinners in the Sun"—at his own request. David Burton will take it over . . . Dorothy Jordan is up in Santa Barbara getting measured for a diet . . . Jack Gilbert is getting to be a chess menace . . . And the laundries will be bumping off Clark Gable one of these days if the turtle-neck sweater fad gets going. Clark wears a double-breasted coat with them . . . Ralf Harolde will play the heavy in the new James Cagney fight picture . . . Saw Wesley Ruggles back at Radio today. He lists a trifle to port, but otherwise seems recovered from his appendicitis operation . . . The incorrigible Gene Fowler has six goats, two parrots and three dogs for pets.

Dorothy Jordan

GRETA GETS TALKED ABOUT

The horsewomanship of Greta Garbo became a court issue in Los Angeles recently.

Someone sued a riding academy for injuries sustained from falling off a rented steed. Defendant countered the animal was so docile and reliable it was given to Greta Garbo to ride.

Under cross-examination, however, the ridingmaster admitted he considered La Garbo an expert in riding.

Notes About Coming Films

"The Shanghai Express," starring Marlene Dietrich, opens on the Penn screen tomorrow. Freda and Palace, and the Pasquali Brothers will appear on the stage.

Joe Brown comes to the Stanley screen tomorrow in "Fireman, Save My Child." Horace Heidt and his Californians will be on the stage.

"Lady With a Past," starring Constance Bennett, opens today in the Fulton.

"The Unexpected Father," co-featuring Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts, comes to the Davis tomorrow and to the Enright screen Saturday.

"Das Lied von Leben" will open Monday in the Avenue Cinema.

"Broadway Brevities" will open Sunday midnight in the burlesque Academy.

Yehudi Menuhin Here Tomorrow Night

Yehudi Menuhin, 15-year-old violinist, will give a concert in Carnegie Music Hall tomorrow evening. The program:

Sonata in G Minor (Devil's Trill) ..... Tartini
Sonata for Violin Alone in A Minor ..... Bach
Concerto in G Minor, opus 26 ..... Bruch
Guitarre ..... Moszkowski-Sarasate
La Rone des Lutins (The Dance of the Goblins) ..... Bazzini
Tambourin Chinois ..... Kreisler
Serenade ..... Tschaikowsky
Caprice XXIV ..... Paganini

Enright Screen Shows 'Union Depot'

"Union Depot," recently seen downtown, concludes a three-day engagement in the Enright tomorrow night. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Blondell are prominent. The story is laid in and about a railroad station and Fairbanks is seen as a hobo, playing a gentleman for a day, and Miss Blondell, a stranded chorus girl, who wants to get to Salt Lake City.

Evolution

Constance Bennett develops from a wall-flower into a charmer of international note in "Lady With a Past," opening today in the Fulton.

Juice of 4 Lemons Relieves Rheumatic Pain

The juice of four lemons, mixed at home with a package of the KEY PRESCRIPTION, makes a full quart of medicine which will stop the most acute or chronic case of pain from rheumatism and neuritis. Thousands have found it to be economical, effective and pleasant to take. Costs only a few cents a day. Often relieves overnight. All Mayflower Drug Stores, Dow Drug Stores, and other leading druggists recommend and guarantee this mixture.

How a Penna. R. R. Conductor Helped to Introduce this Great English Formula to American Rheumatic Sufferers

Almost 25 years ago an English traveler was on the Penna. R. R. train going from New York to Cleveland.

As the conductor came for his ticket, this traveler noticed that the conductor was in great pain, and naturally he inquired if he could be of any assistance.

"It's my rheumatism," said the conductor. "Every bone in my body seems to ache and I get those terrible sharp twitches all the time. I haven't slept a wink for nights."

"Why, man!" cried the Englishman, "I've got just what you need—Eade's Pills. I would not be without them for the world. I used to suffer the same way that you do, and I never go anywhere any more without carrying a few packages with me. Here, take these and try them."

The name of this traveler and also of the conductor have not, unfortunately, been recorded—but this is known: That conductor got results from Eade's Pills which he was never able to get from anything else. Eade's brought him wondrous relief. He told brother railroad men about it, and year after year the demand for Eade's English Pills has grown as a result of this recommendation and praise.

Now the druggists of this vicinity make the following remarkable offer to all who seek the relief which this great English formula has brought to sufferers throughout the world.

5-DAY TRIAL OFFER

This coupon enables you to buy a full sized package Eade's Celebrated English Gout Pills on our liberal plan.

Eade's must bring you quick relief from the muscular aches and pains of gout, simple neuralgia, or other symptoms commonly mistaken for "rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, sciatica, or lumbago."

Unless you are thoroughly pleased with your improvement within 5 days, you may return the partly-used package and have every penny of your deposit handed back! This honest offer made directly by us, the originators of Eade's Celebrated Gout Pills, is backed by your own local druggist. Eade's Pills are as safe as they are satisfactory. Tear out this coupon at ONCE.

RAYMOND CALLAHAN

Raymond's entire family likes REM

Raymond has good cause to like REM. "We've all used REM for years," says Raymond's mother, Mrs. John F. Callahan of 5131 S. Spaulding Ave., Chicago. "And we all think it's the best remedy for coughs we've ever tried. One of the first REM ads we ever saw came along about the time one of our family had a bad cold and cough. Our first experience with REM showed it relieved quickly and since then it's never failed to help any cough in the family. The children often get their feet wet and come in with a cough, but REM has always relieved them. My husband and I have gotten fine results, too." REM is different! It cuts the phlegm, clears the air passages and makes it easier to breathe during the day and sleep comfortably at night.

Insist on REM-because it ends coughs quicker
Insist on REM-because it's pleasant to take Insist on REM-because it's perfectly harmless

SEVEN-YEAR ITCH ENDED

The itch (scabies) is highly contagious. If not treated it will continue for life. It is not a blood disease, but is caused by the itch-mite, which burrows and forms tortuous galleries within the skin.

The itch-mite spreads rapidly and is immune to ordinary treatment. The Pasteur Institute has perfected a simple treatment called EXSORA that kills the itch-mite almost instantly, and rids you of your trouble in three days.

Get complete EXSORA treatment at once at any

Built by the oldest manufacturer of domestic electric refrigerators—the world's largest exclusive manufacturer of electric refrigeration equipment—the new "K" Models, at the new, low prices, represent a higher standard of refrigeration value.

There are four sizes—four, five, six and seven cubic feet food storage capacity and two exterior finishes, porcelain and lacquer. This new Model has many noteworthy features—porcelain interiors with rounded corners for easy cleaning; eight freezing speeds, large ice capacity and many others which add to its beauty, efficiency and economy.

The new "K" Models are now on display, together with the improved Standard and DeLuxe lines (the only fully automatic electric refrigerators). Come in and see them.

LISTENING IN
With the Radio Editor

AN AUTHORITATIVE picture of actual business conditions throughout the country is presented WCAE listeners tonight when Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, business and financial expert, is interviewed during the Globe-Trotter period, which begins at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. Rukeyser, who writes daily for the Sun-Telegraph and other newspapers throughout the country, is stopping off in Pittsburgh on his return to New York from a trip covering the major cities of the United States. He has come into daily contact with the bankers and business leaders in all sections and this has given him intimate first-hand knowledge of steps being taken to restore commercial activity. His talk tonight promises to be one of intense timely interest and importance.

* * *

Mr. Pierce.

The orchestra and Combined musical clubs of Franklin and Marshall College broadcast today from WCAE in two programs. The orchestra gives a 30-minute program starting at 4:30, while the musical groups are on the air from 6:15 to 6:30, under the direction of Charles B. Pierce, whose home is in Dormont.

* * *

A girls' team from Seton Hill College argues it out with boys from Bucknell University in a debate on KDKA tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. Kathryn Bream and Margaret Connolly will uphold the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, That Congress Should Enact Legislation Providing for Centralized Control of Industries."

* * *

Program Pointers

RUSSELL BENNETT, associate of George Gershwin and Jerome Kern, supplies special arrangements for the orchestra led by Leo Silvers in Rudy Vallee's absence on WCAE at 8 tonight. With the effervescent Ray Perkins as guest artists, are Sylvia Froos, "little princess of song," and the "Three Bakers." Bennett, recognized as a master of his craft, is author of the tonepoem, "Sights and Sounds," played by the Philadelphia Orchestra, and his genius at orchestration is shown in scores of "The Band Wagon," "The Cat and the Fiddle," and "Of Thee I Sing."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. This you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known to medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Youths Here Do Not Favor Customs of Old Country

Back in the old country, under the skies of Sunny Italy, things were different.

There Antonia and Lucia and merry eyed Marie didn't have flocks of boy friends sitting on the sofa or snatching a snack out of the icebox. They didn't step out to a movie or a dance or for a walk with Tony or Luigi.

In fact they didn't have any "boy friends" at all.

They were carefully guarded by a lynx-eyed mamma until they grew up, then mamma and papa looked around for a likely husband—and that was that.

But here in America everything has changed. All the old laws are broken, and when mom and dad try to protect their children as their parents protected them, the younger generation flame in revolt.

MUST STAY HOME

Today come three of them, all full of fireworks because the old folks are trying to mold their lives in old country ways. And, reading, many an old world father or mother will wag an understanding head, and many a new world son and daughter will whoop in applause!

"Dear Sally:

"We're a group of Italian girls, and we wish you would help us, because we are kept strictly at home—and how! Our fathers and mothers insist that a girl's place is at home. The boys they don't bother about. 'They're different,' they say. Is that right?

"Must we, who are of the ages of 16, 17 and older, wait in our homes until ma and pa have picked our husbands? They think we should meet college graduates or professional men, but how can we when we have to stick at home?

"Why haven't we a right to have a few friends? All our girl friends go with nice boys. Their mothers trust them. They don't think they have to marry a boy if they're friendly with them.

"But if one of us is seen talking to a boy, or asks to go somewhere without pa or ma—why, we're called 'bad girls.'

SECRET MEETINGS

"Our parents seem so evil-minded. We can't go out. If we want to introduce a boy at home they think we have to marry him. This sounds silly, but it is true. They even think that an engaged girl can't go with her boy friend without having her sister along.

"We'd like to bring our friends to our homes. We have lovely homes, but no chance—we can't use them. So we have to meet our friends, if any, on the sly. We're getting mighty disgusted.

"Please answer this, won't you? Our folks always read your column to 'try to make us realize' what monsters men are. So I wish you'd tell us, honestly, whether it is okay for them to be the way they are or whether we should have a little freedom. Are boys always disrespectful to girls who go around with them? Our folks think they are, but we don't think so. —ITALIA."

Should you have freedom and friends? Of course you should, within reason. No youngster of your age should spend all her time gadding, because she needs plenty of good, healthy sleep to grow on. But you do need friends—lots of them—so you'll learn your way around life. And the place to have them is at home, where you can learn to really know them, and some day find love in a fine, safe place.

Of course, dad and mom are wrong to think boys are disrespectful to girls who don't pack a watchdog with them. Some boys are. But they're not boys who are worth your notice, or boys you should ever dream of marrying.

JUST A CUSTOM

But you must stop thinking that dad and mom act that way because they're "evil-minded" or because they don't trust you. They act that way because they grew up in another country, where everybody believed as they believe, and where it was the sacred duty of parents to act that way. And now it is hard for them to understand boys and girls mixing together in this new, and, to them, dangerous, freedom.

They have come to America, but they haven't become American, because it isn't easy to teach old folks new tricks. They think they're right.

But the truth is that keeping girls and boys apart was just a custom. It had nothing to do with right or wrong. It was just a way of doing things. And America thinks that letting men and women be friends—letting them know each other before they start out on life's road together—is a better custom.

It makes for a finer, truer kind of marriage—a marriage where a man and a woman are really comrades and sweethearts.

Try to make your parents understand that, youngsters, but don't do it in anger or contempt. Show them the love and respect and deep gratitude they deserve for their attempt to do their duty by you.

Helping Husband to Success a Delicate and Difficult Problem—Fay King

STUDYING THE TREND OF THE TIMES TO HELP HER HUSBAND TO SUCCESS!
I HAVE CONFIDENCE IN YOUR BUSINESS ABILITY AND IN NO POOL DEAR,
WHERE WOULD YOU BE TODAY — WITHOUT ME?
A. KING

By FAY KING

Just as business men have that acute sense which apprehends the possibilities of success in their business ventures, so have women that ability to see the possibilities of success in a husband.

Countless wives have married men that to others seemed at the moment a very poor matrimonial investment, and those men have attained and achieved, with the help of these wives.

But there is no undertaking more delicate and difficult than that of the wife who helps her husband to success, for men resent nothing more.

It calls for tact and diplomacy, and above all silence and denial when it is done.

Many a wife has undone what she accomplished by reminding her husband of all he owes to her help.

Madge and Dicky Finish Revision of Third Act

"Do you really mean it, Dicky?" I began, tremulously, when he had told me that I was "ringing the bell" on every speech I had dictated so far.

"Indeed I mean it," he said. "Of course," with a wide grin, "the eminent Mr. Shaw may not subscribe to my statement that you are threatening his laurels, but that only is his opinion. This is a free country, and I am entitled to mine. But, honest, old dear," his voice took on a more serious note, "the stuff really is awfully good. Just mosey along."

I "moseyed" accordingly and for the next two or three hours Dicky and I worked steadily, trying first one speech and then another, comparing, rejecting, revising, cruelly blue-penciling, until at last the substituted pages satisfied us both.

"Dicky!" I said excitedly as he lifted his fingers from the typewriter at the end of the last speech I had dictated, "it's all finished. It doesn't seem possible."

"Read it over and convince yourself," Dicky said, lifting the last page from the typewriter. "I think you will find it all right. It isn't one of those 'dictated but not read' things. I have read copy on every line as I went along."

He sorted out the originals from the carbons and handed the first set to me.

"Better read it for yourself first," he suggested, and I obeyed him while he scanned the carbon copies as carefully.

When I finally looked up I found him watching me with a curious expression in his eyes, an admixture of surprise and admiration.

"I knew you were a smart lady," he said, "but I honestly didn't think you had this in you. What do you think of it yourself? Don't you think Mrs. Richard Graham—beg pardon, Mrs. Margaret Spencer Graham—is some pumpkins, also some Hubbard squashes? I suppose you will be joining the Lucy Stone League now and be having double-headers on the doorplate."

"Mrs. Richard Graham, please," I said firmly, for I possess rather strong ideas upon that particular subject. "I suppose at that I'll have to sign the feminine name to the manuscript."

Dicky chortled delightedly.

"The feminist cropping out in the most mid-Victorian personality," he gibed.

"It is not," I disclaimed indignantly. "I never would call myself Margaret Spencer again or have two names on the doorplate, but you know yourself, Dicky, how ridiculous it would be to have 'by Mrs. Anybody' at the top of a play or novel!"

"I do not know," Dicky said perversely. "I think it would be rather nifty myself and it will be the only way I ever can get in the dramatic headlines. Besides, you owe me something for refraining from doing the heavy collaborator stuff this evening. Suppose I had insisted upon writing or editing some of those speeches. Don't you think you might possibly let it be by 'Mrs. Richard G.'?"

"I'll think about it," I said, falling into his mirthful mood, "but for the next few hours Mrs. Richard G. is going to be busy going over this entire third act with a fine-tooth comb to see whether she has scattered any split infinitives or other literary percadillos around the landscape."

"Anything I can do to help you?" Dickey asked.

"Yes, you can," I said. "If you will check up on the pages after I read copy on them I'll be pretty sure they are ready for Mr. Veritzen's inspection."

"That's jake by me," Dicky responded eagerly. "But," pulling out his watch, "I propose an amendment, let's take time off for dinner, or," enthusiastically, "what do you say we're real playwrights on a rush job and have dinner on trays up here?"

"I think that would be marvelous," I said, for indeed the thought of interrupting my work and dressing for dinner with the family did not fit in with my scheme of things. It was as if I were a locomotive on a main track all cleared off for my progress, traveling on record time, and then found myself suddenly switched to a sidetrack winding up in a dead end.

"Then we'll just do that little thing." He rose abruptly. "I'll go down and give Katie the orders, because I don't think you ought to be bothered by anybody until you get through with this. What do you want, Katie's dinner menu, or a la carte?"

"Katie's menu," I said, "but don't tell me beforehand what it is going to be. I'm not very hungry and I hate to think of dallying mentally with food."

"Katie's menu it is then," he said, and then indicated the table where lay the pile of manuscript pages we had discarded.

"Better get rid of those, hadn't you, before Lil comes in?"

"Indeed, yes," I said, gathering the discarded papers together and thrusting them into Dicky's hands in a wadded mass. "Can you manage it?"

Dicky grinned. "Incinerator right out in the yard," he said. "Old Lil won't get a chance to lamp these."

Lillian's knock upon the door put a period to his sentence.

"May I come in?" she called.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Watch Child's Hearing to Avert Tragedy of Deafness

Catarrhal deafness is one of the tragedies of life. The ease of its prevention and the difficulty of its cure are characteristic of it. Neglected cases are likely never to be cured. They grow slowly and progressively worse. In bad cases its victims finally sink into the eternal silence of total deafness.

Dr. Copeland

In order to understand how this calamity occurs, let us consider briefly the structure of the human ear. The external ear connects with a short tube, closed at the end by the ear drum. On the inner side of the ear drum is a chain of three bones that conducts sound through the middle ear into the inner ear. In the latter the "auditory nerve," or nerve of hearing, is situated.

For normal hearing, a most important structure is a short tube extending from the middle ear to the space between the nose and throat. This brings air into the middle ear and permits fluids to drain away. This passageway, the Eustachian tube, is of the greatest importance. It makes certain that the supply of air in the middle ear is adequate. Otherwise, the drum of the ear loses its proper tension and hearing becomes impaired.

The requirements for perfect hearing are these: A healthy ear drum, which receives the waves of sound and conducts them to the chain of bones. Bones that vibrate properly. A sufficient amount of air in the inner ear, which means that the Eustachian tube must be unobstructed. An auditory nerve reacting normally to sounds transmitted to it.

The ear drum must be intact and free from the scars that form after a "gathering" in the ear, followed by rupture. The drum must have a proper degree of tension, produced by proper air pressure on its inner side. Equally important is the condition of the chain of bones.

The first step in the progress of catarrhal deafness is the extension of a nasal infection through the Eustachian tube into the middle ear. The lining membrane of the tube becomes inflamed and swollen. In consequence the middle ear fills up with mucus or pus. Where the infection is severe and the dammed up secretions are too great to be accommodated, the ear drum ruptures. Under suitable treatment, such cases may often be cured without permanent disturbance of hearing.

No one who is a sufferer from chronic nasal catarrh can afford to neglect skilled medical treatment. Extension of the catarrh to the ear causes impairment of hearing, which at first may be cured. But later, when marked changes have occurred, treatment must be followed for months or years, often with discouraging results.

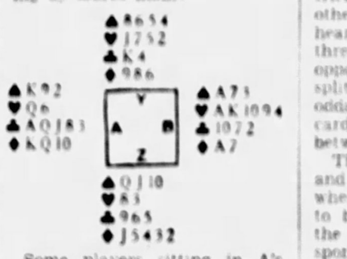
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Luck at Duplicate

The longer you have played at duplicate games the less trust you have that results necessarily afford a correct index of players' abilities. What happened on the hand shown below illustrates the uncertainties of judging by scores made.



Some players sitting in A's position made opening bids of 1-Club, while others bid 2-Clubs. Every player sitting in B's position overcalled with hearts.

A-B were vulnerable but Y-Z were not vulnerable. Being vulnerable exerts almost a mesmeric influence upon the majority of players. They unduly slow up bidding for fear of being penalized, often allowing their opponents to win a game while the vulnerable players are pottering with part game score bids of hands that are well able to stand game bids or even slam bids. Your rule should be to bid your values, whether vulnerable or not vulnerable.

The final declarations of the nine pairs playing the hand at duplicate were as follows: two played 3-No Trumps; one at 4-No Trumps; three at 4-Hearts; one at 5-Hearts; one at 6-Hearts; one at 6-No Trumps.

The worst score was turned it by the pair playing at 6-Hearts. The best score went to the pair playing at 6-No Trumps. The worst score was due to the fact that its declarer lost one club trick on a finesse (as did every other declarer). He also lost one heart trick by laying down his three top hearts, expecting the opposing cards of that suit to split 3-3. As a rule, there are odds of 68 to 32 that six missing cards will not be divided equally between opponents.

The most interesting bidding and playing was at the table where the opening bid happened to be 1-No Trump, instead of the better bid of clubs. B responded with 3-Hearts, and A went back to 3-No Trumps. B jumped to 5-No Trumps, instead of rebidding hearts. He felt that his excess of values obligated such a bid. Having an excess of values above what he had shown thus far, A ventured a final declaration of 6-No Trumps.

A played the hand very prettily. The opening lead was the 4 of spades. A's K won the trick. He led back his 10 of diamonds, won with the Ace, and then led back from dummy the 10 of clubs, letting it run, and losing to Y's K.

The return lead of spades was won's by dummy's Ace. A had lost a single club trick, and he had won three tricks. He counted 4 club tricks, 2 diamond tricks and 3 heart tricks.—12 tricks in all, without having to see whether or not the opposing hearts were divided 3-3.

Every Person Who Smokes Should Know This

The "Smoker's Fag" That's Slowing Millions Down

Now Found 90% Correctable, According to Science

How by Doing One Simple Thing the After-effects of Steady Smoking Can Be Minimized to an Amazing Extent—WHAT TO DO

Scientists have now discovered that the element of reasonable safety, freedom from smoker's fag, head dullness and depression, can now be added to smoking in a very simple way.

Millions of smokers are already doing it. This is what to do:

Simply take two teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning immediately after rising and every night immediately before going to bed.

Or take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets night and morning which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia.

This acts to alkalinize one's system. And an alkalinized system is largely impervious to the after-effects of tobacco. Science has found that it's the acid system that cannot tolerate tobacco.

This small, daily dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tends to neutralize those acids in the system.

Hence, those after-effects one feels now after heavy smoking go. The head is clear. The mouth sweet. One has fewer headaches. Less heaviness across the eyes, at the back of head, across forehead.

Any regular and consistent smoker should at least try this method. Results are often remarkable. For the system thus is largely fortified against tobacco's after-effects.

Get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at any drug store. See that you get the genuine, as endorsed by doctors. Comes now in two forms. The liquid form which you already know. And the new, marvelously convenient tablets which you can carry about with you.

TWO FORMS NOW AT STORES

You can now get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in tablet form, as well as ordinary liquid form. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Milk of Magnesia. Carry the tablets with you wherever you go. They taste like mint candy.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Neutralizes the acids that cause "Acid Headaches" and Sour Stomach within 15 minutes after taking!

Household Hints

Use a clothespin to untangle a fringed mop. It takes little time and mop will be as fluffy as when new.

Always put your knife in boiling water for a few seconds before cutting cake that has been iced. You will then be able to cut without breaking the icing.

New shoes that will not polish easily may be rubbed with the cut half of a lemon. Let it dry on and then polish in the usual way, finishing with a soft cloth or pad of velvet.

Save money! Pepsodent Antiseptic gives 3 times your money's worth

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as any other leading mouth wash. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

WHICH of the two kinds of antiseptics do you use when fighting sore throat colds—infection—unpleasant breath? For that's all there really are—just two leading kinds. On one side you have the mouth wash that kills germs only when used full strength. On the other side you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds. Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading antiseptics. Hence, it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds. What a fine way to save money. Instead of paying $3 for three bottles, you pay $1 and make the three bottles yourself. For years 3 people in 4 diluted the old-style mouth washes. But they were fooling themselves and not killing germs.

So when choosing your antiseptic, be sure you choose the one that kills the germs even when mixed with water. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe! Be safe—and save money!

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent Antiseptic is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

Mrs. James G. Chalfant, Federation District President, Speaks At New Century Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

It's just too bad that the very instructive and interesting club institute conducted yesterday by the Dormont New Century Club could not have been enjoyed by many clubs. True, representatives of several others were present, but one had to be there in person in order to digest the many worthwhile things that came up. And one had to be there, too, to appreciate all the admirable qualities that make Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, the exceptionally fine presiding officer that she is. She conducted the institute.

She's keen, alert, quick to pick up every thought and carry it to its logical conclusion; she seems never to miss a point, and her humor is something to be eternally grateful for, especially as when she tells how to "drop" an inactive committee member or when she informs the women that "paying dues doesn't earn them the right to just take a chair and sit." Mrs. Chalfant combines tact and kindliness with a nice appreciation of time.

Club problems have a way of ironing themselves out at such well-arranged institutes as that one yesterday. Publicity as it is handled by New Century's capable press chairman, Mrs. E. L. Thomssen, apparently is not a problem, since it was not included in the discussion topics. The mechanics of club life, leadership, the "giving and getting" in club work, particularly with reference to Federation activities, and then an open forum on all sorts of questions filled two worthwhile hours.

Problems Solved

Those women even talked about how to kill a club and they were divided on whether a club representation should sit in on council and school board meetings, not to "report," mark you, but merely to "keep in touch."

LECTURE HERE BY CHURCHILL

Winston S. Churchill, versatile British statesman and author, touring the United States, will lecture in Carnegie Music Hall, March 7, on "The World — Facing Disaster."

Mr. Churchill

Son of an American mother, the veteran English political leader is considered in closer touch with policies and ideals of the United States than most British public men.

While shunning the word "dictator," Churchill has been quoted as saying the way out of the present crisis in national and world affairs lies in "vesting wide powers in competent individuals," adding:

"The world is now ruled by harassed politicians absorbed in getting into office or in turning the other fellow out, so that there is little room for determining issues on their merits."

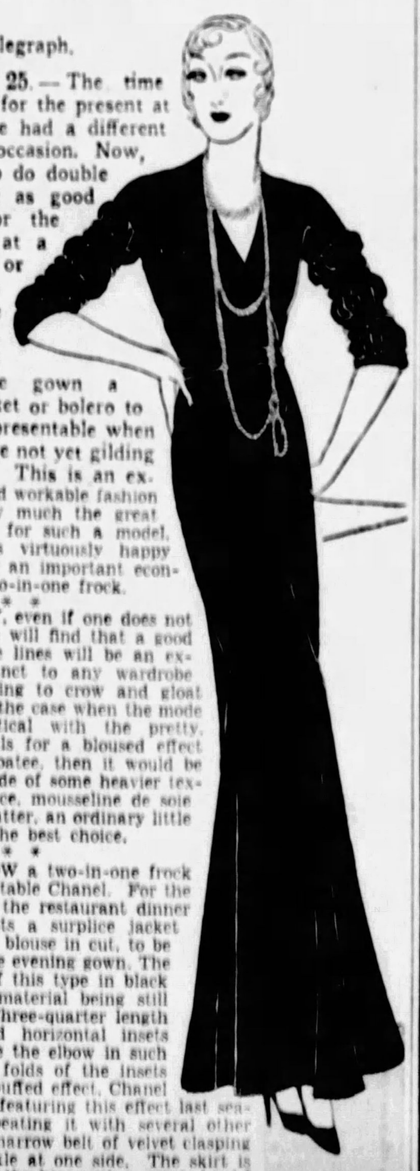
DOUBLE-DUTY FROCK FINDS WIDE FAVOR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, Feb. 25.—The time seems to be over, for the present at any rate, when we had a different costume for each occasion. Now, our frocks have to do double duty and be just as good looking at tea or the cocktail hour as at a smart restaurant or night club. And so for this reason we now dress in layers, slipping on over a decollette gown a bloused effect, jacket or bolero to make it perfectly presentable when the bright lights are not yet gilding the blue of night. This is an extremely practical and workable fashion and no matter how much the great houses may charge for such a model, the purchaser feels virtuously happy that she is effecting an important economy by buying a two-in-one frock.

* * *

BUT SERIOUSLY, even if one does not buy an original, one will find that a good copy made on these lines will be an extremely useful adjunct to any wardrobe and will be something to crow and gloat over, as is generally the case when the mode combines the practical with the pretty. When the frock calls for a bloused effect rather than for a coatee, then it would be better to have it made of some heavier textured fabric than lace, mousseline de soie or chiffon. For the latter, an ordinary little coatee or bolero is the best choice.

* * *

TODAY WE SHOW a two-in-one frock as done by the inimitable Chanel. For the cocktail hour or for the restaurant dinner in town she suggests a surplice jacket closely resembling a blouse in cut, to be worn over a decollete evening gown. The model sketched is of this type in black velvet, the leather material being still much worn here. Three-quarter length sleeves with pleated horizontal insets are pushed up above the elbow in such a manner that the folds of the insets are forced out in a puffed effect. Chanel launched kid gloves featuring this effect last season and is now repeating it with several other sleeves. There is a narrow belt of velvet clasping with a jewelled buckle at one side. The skirt is moulded snugly over the hips with a pointed yoke in three sections.

STARS TO AID SWEET VOICE AUDITIONS

Aspirants from South Hills Will Be Heard Monday; Candidates to Get Notice

Paul Gannon, tenor, whose voice thrills thousands of music lovers every night on the WCAE radio program, will undoubtedly get big welcome from his admirers when he appears next week on the stage of the Alvin Theater coincident with the public auditions in the WCAE-Sun-Telegraph search for the "girl with the sweetest voice."

And Charlotte Shallenberger, popular soprano who also has a big following on the WCAE nightly programs, will be accorded a reception equal to that of Mr. Gannon's. These are only two of the many radio stars to appear in nightly programs at the Alvin beginning next Monday night and continuing throughout the week, with a special Saturday matinee.

All arrangements have been completed for the auditions of the girl in the "sweetest voice" contest. Notifications will go out today to the groups of candidates to appear Monday and Tuesday nights. Monday night's group will be devoted to the South Hills neighborhoods, including Beechview, Beltzhoover, Brentwood, Brookline, Castle Shannon, Dormont, Greentree, Mt. Lebanon, Mt. Oliver, Mt. Washington, Overbrook, South Hills, Houston, Library, Carrick, Knoxville, South Side, Bruceton and other contiguous neighborhoods.

The auditions for Tuesday night will include girls from the East End neighborhoods.

The individual auditions will be short and owing to the number of candidates will have to move like clockwork. The candidates will be unseen by the audience, their voices being amplified to the body of the theater where the boards of judges will be seated. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for additional details.

North Borough Post Honors Washington

A Washington bicentennial program will be held tomorrow night by North Borough Post, American Legion, at its Bellevue Clubhouse, with Attorney Norval R. Daugherty speaking. All veterans' organizations have been invited to attend. The annual "Navy Night" is being arranged for March 14.

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Ethel Barrymore to Make Debut in 'Talkies'

O'MALLEY VOTE PLOT TRIAL NEAR JURY

POLITICS
Coyne Against Morin And Sullivan
—By MARK SHIELDS—

If Senator James J. Coyne supports any one for Congress in the Thirty-second District it will be Councilman M. J. Muldowney.

Coyne will not, of course, support the incumbent, P. J. Sullivan. Nor will he back John Morin, whom Sullivan ousted, as was rumored in some uninformed quarters when petitions were taken out in Morin's behalf.

Mr. Shields

If anything, the bitterness of Coyne toward Morin is sharper than toward Sullivan. The State Senator is understood to believe Morin was at the root of much of the trouble he encountered with the Internal Revenue Department over his income taxes. His friends further say that Morin did not come into the open on the subject, but fed ammunition to a congressman from another state, who repeatedly raised the Coyne question with the federal bureau.

* * *

Muldowney Course Is Not Yet Decided

Muldowney has not yet decided upon a course. If he runs it will not be until after he confers with Mayor Kline. The influence of the Mayor once was a material factor in this district, having been thrown in the last election to Sullivan against P. J. O'Malley, the Coyne candidate of two years ago.

I should say that conference with the Mayor at this time would savor more of a traditional courtesy than a feeling that he would exert any determining power. The Mayor, according to report, is impatient at political interruptions at this time, is letting all and sundry work out their own destinies, and is giving all his attention to the coming trial at Butler, when he will face charges of misconduct in office.

* * *

Petitions for Hanna Termed Trial Balloons

Petitions are being circulated to place the name of John L. Hanna, of Venango County, on the primary ballot against Senator James J. Davis as a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Hanna is Secretary of Property and Supplies in the cabinet of Gov. Pinchot, having been transferred from the Welfare Department, his original cabinet post, when James F. Malone resigned from the state government. This connection of Hanna and the Governor gives rise to the assumption that the Hanna petitions are trial balloons being sent up by Mr. Pinchot to determine if there is any sentiment warranting a fight on Davis.

It is known that Pinchot has been shopping for some time to secure a senatorial candidate of his persuasion. He first tried Gen. Smedley Butler, but the retired marine declined to make the race, the cost being one thing which actuated his decision.

* * *

Pinchot Candidate In 1934, Is Report

Pinchot himself wishes to be a candidate in 1934, according to report, against Senator David A. Reed. If he could be certain Davis would not move east after election, thus eliminating the plaint that Pittsburgh has both Senators, he would be less interested in beating the junior Senator. But he can't, and meanwhile there remains ill feeling which sprung up when Pinchot and Davis were candidates together and which was fanned anew by their interchange over their personal liberality in relief work.

If Mr. Hanna is Gov. Pinchot's ultimate candidate it will indicate the Governor has little hope of successfully opposing the state organization-Philadelphia slate.

Talk Grows of Garner Uniting All Factions

Democratic developments of each day make it more obvious the national convention will be no short-lived love feast, though party leaders wish to avoid the self-destructive strife of 1924 at New York. Each additional ballot will depress the chances of Gov. Roosevelt, of New York. In light of this it is significant that there is growing talk in Pennsylvania about the availability of Speaker John Garner as a candidate to unite all factions.

This attitude is especially marked outside the ranks of professional politics.

For the moment, Pennsylvania Democrats are embroiled in a strife for party control. That underlies all the controversy over whether delegates from this state shall be pledged to Roosevelt or go to Chicago uninstructed.

* * *

Resent Implications Of Being Shepherded

Those who wish to go uninstructed are resentful at the implication they might be "delivered" to Roosevelt by Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, original Roosevelt man. Some of those most militantly championing "uninstruction" are not averse to Roosevelt, if he seems to have a chance, but they want to vote for him under their own steam rather than appear to have been shepherded by Guffey.

It is the quadrennial opportunity of Pennsylvania Democrats to get a share of the spotlight which the Republicans here always occupy because of their own internal strife, and full use is being made of the opportunity.

MENUHIN, VIOLIN PRODIGY, HERE FOR CONCERT

Young Virtuoso Talks of Leipzig Celebration; Father Plays 'Clipping Bureau'

By J. FRED LISSFELT

"Oh, hello!" was the breezy greeting from 15-year-old Yehudi Menuhin. Pajama-clad and wrapped in a gay, checkered robe, he was resting after his trip from Montreal. Taller and more slender than two years ago, with mind and eye keener than ever, he gave the boyish smile that wins him admirers before he plays his violin. He will appear in Carnegie Music Hall at 8:15 tomorrow night.

Father Menuhin was just telling how he plays "clipping bureau" for Yehudi; how they receive the leading German, French, English and Italian newspapers which he reads to find material for Yehudi's information and how he deletes articles beyond the boy's understanding. Asked whether he was curious about censored news, Yehudi replied:

"Not in the least. It takes others' time and saves mine, so that I can devote those hours to other activities."

This year the Gewandhaus in Leipzig is celebrating its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary. There only the great artists may appear, and Yehudi Menuhin played two concertos, the Mendelssohn and Beethoven, either one a test for the virtuoso. Present were Mendelssohn's grandchildren to thank Yehudi for his superb playing. Yehudi said:

"That occasion is one to remember all my life. Oh! That marvelous hall, and then Bruno Walter to conduct!"

While we talked of Schumann and Ravel and their unheard works for violin, Yehudi was ready for supper. After supper he and his father have an hour of reading and then long rest before the day's program of work and play begins anew.

Retrial in Editor Attack Case Sought

J. J. Kassouf, secretary of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, found guilty of assault and battery by a jury in Criminal Court in a suit brought by J. G. Shaw, editor of the North Side Ledger, today was planning to file a new trial motion before Visiting Judge J. H. McLaughry, of Mercer County.

Shaw testified Kassouf attacked him in the Ledger office after he had refused to publish a statement Kassouf had prepared in answer to an article Shaw had published criticising Kassouf's tactics in a membership campaign.

1931 Fire Loss Here Less Than Year Ago

Pittsburgh's fire loss dropped to $1,088,943.69, last year, according to the report of Fire Chief R. L. Smith, submitted to Public Safety Director James M. Clark. In 1930 the fire loss was $1,135,729.45. Of the 4,136 alarms, 663 were false alarms, a decrease of 109 from the previous year.

Beechview Man Hit By Trolley, Killed

Charles Keenan, 60, of 1512 Alton street, Beechview, was killed last night when he was struck by a Dormont street car on the railways company right-of-way between the Dawn and Traymore stops, according to the Coroner's report.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

You can't get a room in Washington. Every hotel is jammed to the doors with bankers from all over America to get their "hand out" from the Dawes commission. And I have asked the following prominent men in America this question: "What group have been more responsible for this financial mess—the Farmers? Labor? Manufacturers? Tradesmen? Or who? And every man, Henry Ford, Garner, Newt Baker, Borah, Curtis and a real financier, Barney Baruch, and every one of 'em without a moment's hesitation said: "Why the big bankers." Yet they have the honor of being the first group to go on the "dole" in America.

Will Rogers

Yours, Will.

CLAIM DATE SET IN UTILITY SUIT

Stipulations agreed to by government attorneys and counsel for the Philadelphia Company and three of its subsidiaries, were filed late yesterday in the office of the clerk of the Federal District Court, whereby the government will file on or before August 19, statements of claims in the suits filed against the four utility concerns.

The utilities were represented by the law firm of Smith, Shaw, McClay & Seifert, and the government by United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and Attorney John A. McCann, Pittsburgh representative of general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Last Friday the government, through the two government attorneys, filed actions in assumpsit against the four utility companies. The government attorneys have given no indications of the matter involved in the preliminary proceedings. Attorney McCann has represented the government in many tax litigations in this district.

Civil War General Enjoys Life at 93

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—One of the two surviving generals of the Civil War celebrated his birthday today. There were 93 candles on the birthday cake. He is Gen. J. Fred Pierson, descendant of Abraham Pierson, first president of Yale University.

In abounding health despite his years, the general admitted a liking for cigars and "a drink whenever I feel like it."

Job 'Sales' Bring Year in Workhouse

William C. Lanning, 63, of Beechview, convicted of violating the state labor laws, was sentenced to one year in the workhouse today by Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis.

For fees of $2 and higher, Lanning was accused of selling jobs to unemployed in Clarion County and Imperial in plants he said he'd build.

Youth Faces Charge Of Passing Checks

James Battles, 21, of 79 Congress street, who, police said, had been purchasing clothes with spurious checks, was held today in the Center Avenue Police Station on a suspicious person charge. Battles was alleged to have fleeced merchants in the Downtown and Hill districts in the last few months.

FIRE LOSS HERE CUT LAST YEAR

Two six-alarm fires were reported, the Little Sisters of the Poor home in July, causing $101,000 damage, largest fire of the year, and the Homewood School fire, causing $45,000 loss.

The report embodies these features: Fifty-nine persons were killed in fires, of whom 50 died in the Little Sisters of the Poor home fire; incendiary fires caused $77,912 damage, the largest of which was the burning of the Homer Smith steamboat with a loss of $65,000; fires resulting from overheated furnaces and stacks caused $45,375 loss, electrical fires $69,000; grease and burning foodstuffs $21,926; gas leaks and explosions $33,390 and autos $6,386. There were 271 grass fires.

STAR REVEALS HOLLYWOOD PLANS

Lionel and John to Aid Noted Sister in First Sound Film Appearance

America's "first lady of the theater" at last is Hollywood-bound for the klieg lights and cameras, Ethel Barrymore today revealed here that she is preparing to make her debut in talking motion pictures.

As if the occasion of her first appearance in the "talkies" would not make a sufficiently important theatrical event, the production will mark the first time the Barrymore brothers, Lionel and John, have appeared together in support of their equally celebrated sister.

Questioned between performances of "The School for Scandal" in which she is appearing in the Alvin this week, Miss Barrymore admitted contract negotiations were being completed. She said:

"Nothing is definitely settled, but it is very probable. That is all I can say at the present."

Further questioning revealed:

"It will be a wonderful thrill and I know I will like it. My only fear is the camera."

Asked if her son, John Drew Colt, who is starting his stage career in his famous mother's present production, would have a part in the motion picture, Miss Barrymore only answered that he would be with her. A special story will be written, she explained, since none of her stage successes would provide adequate roles for the three Barrymores. Prior to 1926 she appeared in a number of silent pictures.

Production will not begin until after the present road tour which closes in June, Miss Barrymore said.

Record Still Raided At Turtle Creek

County detectives today reported raiding what they described as the biggest alcohol still uncovered in years, at 417 Hiland avenue, Turtle Creek. Mrs. Mary Conti was arrested on the scene and she and her husband, Michael Conti, were scheduled for hearing today before Justice of the Peace William Wilkinson.

TESTIMONY IN, ARGUMENTS STARTED

Ward Leader Lays Action on Tax Receipts to Order of Ex-Treasurer Francies

Patrick J. O'Malley, Second Ward Republican chairman, on trial in the vote conspiracy case, today in his own defense testified he had been requested by former County Treasurer John Francies to bring in all poll tax orders in one name.

The defense concluded its presentation of witnesses shortly after 2 o'clock, and attorneys began their addresses. It was expected the case would be given the jury late this afternoon.

Alderman Thomas M. Geary testified he had turned over tax order collected by workers to O'Malley and that the tax receipts were returned to him by Matthew Finn, a worker. These, Geary said, were distributed to workers by Finn.

Finn corroborated Geary's testimony.

DEFENDANTS TESTIFY

O'Malley and three remaining co-defendants took the stand after Visiting Judge C. M. Culver had ordered a fifth defendant, Patrick Colangelo, acquitted on the commonwealth's request. The case likely will go to the jury tomorrow.

O'Malley testified:

"I went to see John Francies about getting tax receipts for voters of my ward. He told me to bring in all the tax orders in one name to facilitate the work in his office."

Previous testimony had disclosed that O'Malley had taken 2,409 tax orders on which receipts were issued.

O'Malley denied that he personally obtained any tax orders or distributed any tax receipts, explaining there are 200 political workers in the Second Ward.

DENIES ERASURES

Asked by his counsel, E. G. Coll, if he had sanctioned erasures or changing names on any of the tax receipts, O'Malley replied:

"I would be crazy to do that with my name on the tax orders."

Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk asked him:

"Tax receipts were issued to supposed persons living on vacant lots and in unoccupied buildings and yet you made no examination of the receipts?"

"No."

He said that were more than 3,000 qualified voters, mostly of foreign extraction in the ward.

Michael McMackin, James Lardo and William J. Gallagher, also defendants, took the stand and made a general denial of charges involving them in the alleged conspiracy. All denied talking with O'Malley or others about tax receipts on tax orders.

Clunk asked for the acquittal of Colangelo, saying the disappearance of numerous witnesses had made it impossible to connect him with the alleged vote plot.

STORE-SMASHING TRUCK . . . HER STEERING GEAR LOCKED

The truck on which Driver Russell Brane, 26, 1334 Spring Garden avenue, was injured when the steering gear locked as the wheels trailed in the trolley tracks and struck 3342 Penn avenue.

DRIVER INJURED IN TRUCK CRASH

Russell Brane, 26, of 1334 Spring Garden avenue, was in St. Francis Hospital today with injuries suffered when his truck, owned by the Dunlevy-Franklin Packing Company, crashed through a vacant store front at 3340 Penn avenue last night, police reported.

C. W. Reamer, of East End avenue, a member of the County Board of Viewers, was reported recovering in Mercy Hospital today from injuries suffered in an automobile accident in which two other county viewers were hurt Tuesday. John G. Silveus, who was bruised, was able to return to duty yesterday. Simon A. Merkel, of Berkshire avenue, Brookline, was still confined to bed in his home.

Ohio Plans to Fight Re-Trial for 'Hymie'

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The state will appeal the decision granting "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin a new trial, it was announced by Prosecutor P. L. A. Leighley. The decision was handed down Tuesday.

Martin is in the state prison, where he was sentenced for life following his conviction as a conspirator in the slaying of William E. Potter, former Cleveland Councilman, more than a year ago.

Edward Maroney, of 1334 Methyl street, Beechview, operator of the car, was ordered to appear at the Coroner's office today.

Believe It or Not, He's Sued for Balm

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Robert L. Ripley, the cartoonist of "believe it or not" fame, is being sued for $500,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage by Marion Ohnick, 37, a prima donna who formerly appeared with the San Carlo Opera Company in the title role of "Madame Butterfly."

Mooney Release Demands Made at Meeting Here

Following a warning voiced by Lieut. Thomas Gross that attacks on the government would not be permitted, a meeting called by the Independent Labor Defense to protest continued imprisonment of Tom Mooney was held late yesterday at Webster avenue and Fullerton street.

A permit for the meeting had been granted and no disorders occurred while speakers called upon the small crowd of school children and others to insist that Mooney, alleged bomb plotter imprisoned in San Quentin prison, be released.

The crowd was informed that future meetings were planned and would be held without regard for any dictation that might come from the "bosses."

DONOHOE MURDER SUSPECTS FACE CHARGE TOMORROW

FAYETTERACKET EXPOSURES HINTED

Bledsoe, Stangoni, Mum on Killing, Reported to Have Told 'Inside' Rum Story

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb 25.—Unless present plans are altered, Tony Bell, R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stangoni, linked in the renewed probe into the Donohoe murder, will be brought to Uniontown tomorrow.

This was intimated in the office of District Attorney Wade K. Newell.

Bledsoe and Stangoni will be in custody of state police. They will be taken before an alderman and given a preliminary hearing on charges of murder, according to the district attorney. Bell will be held in seclusion in the county jail.

Newell says that no effort will be made to bar newspapermen from the hearing. The time of arrival here is being withheld.

It was learned that Bledsoe and Stangoni have "talked" little about the murder, but have given the "inside" of county racketeering in which well known men have been mentioned.

RACKET MURDER THEORY FAILS

Pietro Pileggi, 45, of 1106 Gibbon street, whose bullet-torn body was found in Soho street yesterday, was not the victim of a racket murder, Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide detectives, theorized today.

Ferris said Pileggi was married five months ago.

Pileggi's son-in-law, Ross Latona, 25, and Dominick DeFazio, 19, his stepson, were held for further investigation by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones today at Ferris' request.

Ferris said he had written to the War Department relative to Pileggi, who was a war veteran.

State Auto Safety Manager Appointed

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Appointment of Perry R. Taylor, Philadelphia, as business manager for the safety section of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles and the State Highway Patrol has been announced by Dr. Clyde L. King, Secretary of Revenue. The salary was not announced.

Dr. King said Taylor's duties would be to serve as a liason officer between the bureau and the patrol to keep the work of the safety section dealing with motor accidents and hearings in close touch with the work of the patrol.

HERE'S GEORGE WASHINGTON CRYING

MRS. CHESTER H. WADDLE AND SON, GEORGE WASHINGTON JAMES ('HAPPY,' JR.) WADDLE

BABY HERE GETS GREAT NAME

George Washington James Waddle, sixth child of Chester H. "Happy" Waddle, one of Father Cox's relief leaders, has the triple distinction of having been born on the bi-centennial anniversary of the first President, of bearing the name of the father of his country plus Father Cox's first name, James.

With such an illustrious combination of names, the child has an extraordinarily good start in life, his fond parents believe. But young George fails to be impressed by his rare nomenclature. He eats, sleeps and cries for what he wants just like any other baby, his mother said.

"Of course, I'd like my son to be President. Every mother would. But more important, I want him to be honest, and always tell the truth like George Washington. If my baby had been a girl, I would have named her Georgina."

SLOT MACHINES SEIZED; 5 FREED

Five storekeepers who admitted some of the customers who played the penny gambling machines in their stores were children, were discharged by Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court today.

The storekeepers said they didn't realize the machines, which were ordered confiscated by Papale, were gambling devices.

The defendants were Mrs. C. DeSimone, 6385 Aurelia street; Hugo Pasaruth, 7082 Lemington avenue; Hilva Lawick, 6925 Frankstown avenue; Nick Pate, 1506 Lincoln avenue; Edward Wintersgill, 1540 Lincoln avenue.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DIVORCE PARTS ELOPERS HERE

Clyde E. Stewart, Jr., Tarentum, and Mary Stewart, Homestead, parted the day following their elopement to Moundsville, W. Va., October 20, 1928, when her parents came and took her home with them. Stewart testified in Common Pleas Court. Judge Ambrose B. Reid granted him a divorce on the ground of desertion. Stewart was 17 and his wife 19 when they eloped and he was unable to effect a reconciliation, he testified. He said:

"She just completely lost interest."

States Act to Halt Cigaret Bootlegging

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 25.—(AP.) — Representatives of tax agencies in six southern states yesterday went on record as favoring establishment of border patrols to combat "bootlegging" of cigarets from one state to another in violation of revenue laws.

The officials discussed decreases in cigaret tax revenue and expressed the belief most of the "bootlegging" was carried on with private automobiles. States represented were Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, South Carolina and Arkansas.

Rail Policeman Gets $5,833 Verdict

A jury in Federal Court awarded Frederick Fullum, of Hawkins street, a Pennsylvania Railroad policeman, a verdict for $5,833 against the C. P. Woods Company, because of injuries sustained January 6, 1930, when struck by a truck owned by the defendant company.

INCOME TAX RETURNS

Suggestions to Aid in Making Report to the Government for Taxpayers as Well As Non-Taxpayers.

(This is the second of a series of articles planned to give assistance in making out federal income tax returns.)

Not all those who must file an income tax return will have a tax to pay. In many cases personal exemptions or losses in business will exceed the net income and will make the return a mere formality.

A married person is entitled to a personal exemption of $3,500. He is entitled to add an additional $400 to his personal exemption for each dependent. The dependent must be either under the age of 18 or incapable of self support. Thus a married man with one child who made $3,800 last year would have to file a return, but would have no tax to pay since his exemption of $3,900 would exceed his net income.

A single person under certain conditions may claim the same exemption as a married person if he is the head of a family. The law defines the head of a family as any person who is the chief support of a dependent who lives in the same household with him. The person claiming exemption for a dependent must be the chief support of that dependent.

If a single person married during the year he must compute his exemption at $1,500 a year or the number of months he was single and at $3,500 for the number of months he was married. A fractional part of a month is disregarded unless it exceed half a month.

As an example, a person married on April 10 would be entitled to exemption at $125 a month for the three months he was single, or $375, and at $291.66 a month for the nine months he was married, or $2,624.94. This would make his total exemption $2,999.94.

In the case of dependents, the $400 is allowed on the status at the close of the year. A child born on December 30 would entitle his parents to $400 extra exemption, but a child which reached the age of 18 on December 30 would not entitle his parents to exemption for the year.

YOUNG BANDITS ROUTED BY GUN OF CONSTABLE

Gesture to Draw Weapon Drives Three from Drug Store in Wilkinsburg

Three youths, whose attempt to hold up the Baldwin pharmacy, Ardmore boulevard and Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, was foiled late last night by the presence of Constable Adam Fornoff, were being sought today.

The trio entered the store and approached the proprietor, Merle W. Baldwin, who was standing near the cash register, and asked the direction to Cleveland. Baldwin became suspicious and signaled Fornoff, who was standing in the rear of the store with his wife.

Reaching under his coat for his gun, Fornoff approached the intruders, who fled to the street and escaped in an automobile. Fornoff notified Pittsburgh police, who broadcast their description.

U. S. HOSTILE, ENVOY SAYS

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Matsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, warned the Japanese people through the medium of their press today, that the American attitude toward Japan was becoming more hostile daily.

The American correspondents for both the newspapers Asashi and Nichi Nichi quoted the Washington ambassador as declaring Japan should not be too optimistic regarding the possibility of American sanction of an economic boycott against her.

Although many items of news have been suppressed in Japan of late, these American stories received wide publication.

Gas Leak Damage Charged in Suit

John A. Wolfram, truck gardener and florist, charged that the greenhouse and flowers and the vegetation on his 14-acre farm on Troy Hill road, Ross Township, were damaged $27,400 by the breakage of an old defective six-inch gas main under the road September 24, 1927, causing gas to gush into the ground and greenhouse, in his suit against the Equitable Gas Company in Common Pleas Court.

Fined for Fight With Patrolman

John Koehler, 39, of 1921 Howard street, North Side, doesn't remember punching Patrolman Tom Betters in the face. Neither does he remember being struck back with a mace by Betters, nor being taken to Pittsburgh Hospital for treatment. Koehler told Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court he was drunk at the time. Koehler was fined $10.

Admits Stealing Pigeons, Boy Held

Nick Nemtz, 17, 844 Reedsdale street, today admitted in Morals Court that he had stolen 15 pigeons from the loft of Leo Hass, 630 Toboggan street. Hass valued the birds at from $10 to $25 each. Nemtz sold them for 15 cents a piece. He was held for larceny.

Boasts of Money Hoard, Bandits Call for It

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Six crisp hoarded $1,000 bills are back in circulation.

Ever since one day last June they had been in the possession of George Grakos. He took them out of the bank that day. The next day the bank failed and George told his friends how smart he was. Soon the whole neighborhood knew about it.

Last night George was listening to a radio crime story when two unexpected visitors, armed with pistols, called. They said:

"What we want is six $1,000 bills."

They got them, and George told the police that the $2,300 he hoarded in a trunk and which the robbers overlooked, would be put into circulation before somebody takes it away from him.

PERPETUAL GAS SUPPLY SEEN

Greater use of natural gas was predicted today at the opening session of the eastern natural gas regional sales conference of the American Gas Association in the William Penn Hotel.

That the supply of natural gas is unlimited was the assertion of F. F. Schauer, vice president of the Equitable Gas Company. His forecast that science was developing additional uses for gas was elaborated by Eugene D. Milener, of the association, who cited that year-around heating and cooling of homes and offices will create greater consumption.

Chairmen of today's sessions were F. H. Stone and F. B. Jones, both of Pittsburgh. Speakers also included E. E. Linburg, of Columbus; E. C. Weston, Terre Haute; E. B. Nutt, J. P. Brosius and Thomas E. Wood, of Pittsburgh.

GIRL CHARGES ATTACK BY TWO

North Side police today were seeking two young men alleged to have kidnaped and attacked 18-year-old Mary Bruker, of 27 Brightridge street, late yesterday.

The girl was forced into a small coupe by two men who seized her as she crossed the Columbus Avenue Bridge, the girl's father told police. They drove to a spot on the Ohio River boulevard.

When she returned home several hours later, police were notified. Miss Bruker was treated by Dr. A. F. P. Huston, city physician.

EXPERT URGES GIFT TAX

A gift tax to prevent evasion of the levy on estates was urged as a means of providing additional federal revenue by Dr. Marion K. McKay, professor of economics, University of Pittsburgh, before the Pitt Business Men's luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, today.

Speaking on "Federal Taxation and Finance," he pointed out the need not only of additional revenue, but of rigid economies if the estimated deficit of $1,738,000,000 for 1932-33 is to be avoided.

Dr. McKay approved the Treasury Department's proposal to reduce personal exemption for income taxes.

PAIR ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTED BET SWINDLE

Man on Way to Post $1,000 To 'Beat the Races' Meets Officer; Arrests Follow

Thanks to the county detectives, S. L. Moorhead, a retired contractor, of Harmony, has $1,000 today that he might not have had if a race track deal he was interested in had gone through yesterday.

William J. Ahearn, of Boston, and Henry Hogle, of Chicago, who county detectives said were two of the three "race track experts" who, the officers declared attempted to swindle Moorhead, are under arrest. The detectives are looking for the third "expert."

Moorhead told County Detectives Thomas Calig and Albert Shedlock and Constable John Pavlich the three racing men had demonstrated how easy it was to "beat the races."

Moorhead had raised $1,000 of the $5,000 that was to be his "bet" in a $20,000 pool to win $76,500, when he met the officers, all of whom happen to be his personal friends. Knowing something about racing men, they accompanied Moorhead, and the arrests followed.

MOTHER SENDS GIRL TO PRISON

Anna O'Connor, 18, of 5819 Penn avenue, was committed to the Morganza Reformatory today at the request of her mother, Mrs. Marie O'Connor, who said:

"I can't do anything with her. It is better that she be sent away."

The girl was arraigned before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court this morning on a charge of incorrigibility. She was placed in the Home of the Good Shepherd last year, police said, but released when she promised to "behave."

Erie Fishing Fleet To Start March 1

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—For the first time in the history of the state the Lake Erie fishing fleet will start operations on March 1, the State Board of Game Commissioners has announced.

Ordinarily the fishing fleet goes to work on April 1, but the mild winter made possible an earlier start this year, Oliver Deibler, fish commissioner, said. The start of the season will give employment to 250 men.

SQUIRE FREED IN VOTE CASE

Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, was acquitted on a directed verdict in Criminal Court today of charges that he violated the election laws at the September primary.

Visiting Judge James A. Chambers, of Lawrence County, ordered the acquittal after witnesses had testified Westwood's solicitation of votes had not extended inside the polling places.

Another McKees Rocks election case, that against George Chilcott, candidate for Constable in the First Ward, was postponed because his attorney, Congressman Harry Estep, was in Washington. Chilcott is charged with entering voting booths and assisting voters who did not want assistance and with changing the marks on ballots and intimidating voters.

COMIC SECTION ADS PRAISED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(Universal.)—Advertising in the colored comic supplement of the Hearst newspapers has produced revolutionary and unprecedented results, Dr. F. Dean McClusky, president of the National Academy of Visual Instruction, told the convention of that body here today. He said:

"One advertiser had been losing sales continually, despite heavy advertising and the belief that about 92 per cent of the people of the United States had used the product advertised at one time or another.

"From the first appearance of an advertisement in the Hearst comic section in May, 1931, response rose until cost-per-coupon-returned sank below lowest cost on record, followed by increased sales to dealers until, by autumn, the consumer demann has almost equaled the year's national sales quota.

"Other users of this medium testify to similar results, evidencing the tremendous superiority of a highly illustrated technique over a less pictorial one, and the advantage of continuity in a series of illustrations."

Ex-Senator's Son Campaigns in Airplane

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Times do change! The late United States Senator William E. Mason, who used a horse and buggy to stump the state in 1896, has a son, Lowell B., who employs an airplane for his campaign.

Mason, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney General, has covered 20,000 miles since the start of his tour, November 6, and has addressed gatherings in practically every community in the state. At each meeting local leaders, their relatives and friends are given rides in the plane.

4 FOUND GUILTY IN BOND SALES

A father and three sons, officers of the American Bond and Mortgage Company, of New York and Chicago, were found guilty in Federal Court today of using the mails to defraud in connection with sale of mortgage bonds of the Mayflower Hotel Corporation.

They are William J. Moore, the father, and president of the company, and his sons, Harold A., Charles C. and Kenneth W. Moore. His brother, Charles B. Moore, was acquitted on a directed verdict.

Daniel J. O'Brien, also a defendant, was granted a separate trial. Hayden W. Ward, the seventh man indicted, pleaded no defense. The jury, after deliberating since noon yesterday, reached a verdict last midnight. Counsel announced a new trial would be sought.

FIREMAN FINED AFTER THREAT

A city fireman, who admitted he had been drinking, was fined $25 in North Side Police Court today. He was accused of roughly handling a woman pencil seller whom he had threatened with arrest.

Mrs. Winona Woodward, 55, of 1168 Bidwell street, testified that the fireman, Theodore N. Rebele, 38, of 1227 Success street, tore her coat and dress after giving her 15 cents for a pencil. He told her, she said, that he wasn't sure she had a right to sell pencils and demanded that she how him her 82-year-old mother, whom she had said she was supporting.

Arresting officers testified that a physician had examined Rebele and said he had been drinking but was not drunk. He will face the fireman's trial board next week.

LOSS OF HURLER BLOW TO McCARTHY

WHILE THEY STILL are of the opinion that it's going to be a man's size job for the A's or any other contender to keep the Yankees from winning the pennant in the American League this year, Joe McCarthy's friends fear that the chances of the New York club have been clouded a bit by the fact that Pitcher Henry Johnson has just undergone an operation for appendicitis. Not that Johnson is the greatest pitcher in the world, by any means, but the Yanks' prospects depend so much on their being able to bring every ounce of their slab strength to bear during the season that no member of the staff can well be spared for even part of the time.

Henry Johnson

McCarthy himself has made it clear that he figures everything will hinge on the amount of dependable mound material he will have at his command. He confided to a Pittsburgh friend not long ago that if he could find another capable hurler in either Rhodes or Weaver he believed he could win the pennant. Later Weaver was dropped, so it looked as if Joe thought he had the right man in Rhodes and was all set in the flinging department for a winning fight.

BUT NOW THE incapacitation of Johnson upsets things, and the chances of the Yanks will depend to some extent on how soon he can get in condition to pitch or how soon he can be replaced. Last spring the services of George Pipgras were lost in the same way. What would have been gained in pitching strength with Pipgras available for a full season in 1932 has now been taken away in the loss of Johnson.

Just how soon the capable young right-hander will be able to pitch again is a question. Pipgras last year managed to start a game for the first time in May, but up to July 28 he pitched only two complete contests and went the route only six times all season. If Johnson, who won 15 games in 1931 and looked good for a greater number this year, is equally late in returning to regular service, it's apt to prove costly to the Yankees.

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT EMIL YDE had signed his contract with Hollywood and motored from Florida in time to begin training with the Sheiks in California yesterday reminds that a flashy start does not always mean lasting pitching success in the majors.

Coming to the Pirates in 1924, Yde won 16 games against only three defeats, the best hurling percentage of the year in the National League. The following season the southpaw won 17 while losing only nine, but then he started down hill and was let go. He failed to recover his grip in a subsequent trial with Detroit, and now he is back in the minors, probably to stay. Last year he won 15 and lost 16.

THERE IS A marked difference between Max Carey's theory of spring training and the system followed by the Dodgers in their practice trips under Wilbert Robinson. Robinson clung to the idea that the best way to condition men for baseball was to have them play it. Carey aims to get his charges in condition first, then send them out to play ball. For the last five years Brooklyn opened its training each spring with a Regular-Yanigan practice game the very first day. But there'll be no baseball played in the camp this week and possibly not until near the end of next week. Condition first, through calisthenics and other exercises, is Carey's slogan. He says if the other clubs start mopping up with the Dodgers in April and May it will be because they are better teams, not because they are in shape and the Dodgers are not.

Dutch Dehnert

THE PROFESSIONAL BASKETBALL game at Motor Square Garden next month between the Rosenblum Celtics and the Renaissance Negro five, rated the strongest two teams in the country, will have an interesting side feature in the meeting of the court sport's greatest exponents of the pivot play.

There are Dutch Dehnert, of the Rosies, and Cooper, the crack center of the Renaissance outfit. The Negro star has come along so fast that eastern critics now rate him Dehnert's equal, at least, and their rival performance at the execution of the play that revolutionized basketball from an offensive standpoint promises to be one of the features of the local season.

THOUGH IT ISN'T the only change to which they are opposed, there is one new football rule in particular which many coaches and other prominent football men declare needs amending as soon as possible.

It is the regulation making the ball dead when any part of the carrier's body except his hands or feet touches the ground. Grid leaders are dwelling at length on the possibility that a runner may be deprived of a deserved touchdown if he happens to fall near the goal line though no opponent be near him.

WHETHER THE FALL is accidental or not, the ball must be declared dead on the spot. Bob Zuppke says it means more and better whistle blowing, and contends that the real mark of a great back is ability to stretch his gains. Dick Hanley remarks that it will destroy the gauge that distinguished a great player from a mediocre one. Howard Conn says it is absurd to rule the ball dead if a runner happens to slip to his knees. Chick Meehan concurs. George Trevor predicts the rule will make a farce of football on a muddy or ice-sheeted field and that hardly a play will reach the scrimmage line, with carriers slipping, skidding and sliding on the treacherous surface.

IN VIEW OF the amazing performance of Sir Malcolm Campbell at Daytona Beach yesterday the average citizen probably will give up speculating on possible automobile speed limits as long as the daring English racing pilot and his famous Bluebird car are hanging around.

It was figured that Campbell had just about turned in the ultimate in land speed last year when he drove his machine at the rate of 245.733 miles an hour, but he made even that former world record appear slow yesterday with his astounding achievement of 253.968 miles an hour. On the first part of the run he hit 267.45.

AN AVERAGE OF 253.968 is more than eight miles an hour better than the former record. It spells a speed of something like four and one-quarter miles a minute, and means that Campbell was going at the rate of a mile in about 14.7 seconds.

Sir Malcolm Campbell

The presence of Barney Oldfield as a spectator drew attention to the remarkable increase in automobile speed and the great forward strides in car building. For when Oldfield himself was racing on the same Florida sands in 1903, the record was well under 100 miles an hour.

THE CAR IN which Campbell made the fastest mile ever traveled by a human being on land is a real veteran. The Bluebird is seven years old, but has undergone many alterations and revisions, both in line and motive power. It is built somewhat like an arrow and weighs two and a half tons. A fin sticks up behind the driver's seat to aid in keeping the machine on its course. A run of three miles is needed to get it to top speed. Sir Malcolm drives it by aiming at a giant target set at the end of the course. Aside from the deafness resulting from the noise of the motor, he says that in each speed trial his ears ache from the air pressure, and his shoulders are sore for days afterwards from holding the car on its course.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
LAST NIGHT'S RESULT

Chicago 3—Montreal 1

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets' hope of gaining the International Hockey League's title play-offs may be cut in half tonight when they meet the Syracuse Stars at Duquesne Garden.

The local skaters' chance of gaining the money circle has dwindled to the point where it is referred to as a mathematical chance. Talk of mathematical chances invariably is an indication that the thread of hope is very thin.

MUCH AT STAKE

The Reidmen's position is, to say the least, precarious. Twelve games remain on their slate. All they have to do to guarantee themselves a vacation while the title series is in progress is to lose four games. Losing even two duels might prove disastrous, and that's the reason that their mathematical chance may be slashed in a big way tonight.

What goes for the Jackets also goes for the visiting Stars, for Syracuse and Pittsburgh are deadlocked in the standings with 32 points each. Neither team proposed to concede itself out of the race until it has to, which means that the milling tonight will be very torrid and extremely earnest.

LOCALS PRIMED

The Canary Shirts will be in better shape to put up a good argument than they were when they lost the "crucial" game to Windsor here Saturday. Gordy Fraser has succeeded in getting the better of his knee injury, and will be back at the left defense point after an absence of two games.

It probably is just as well that the locals are to be at full strength, for they are likely to run into opposition in large quantities. In their last two appearances here the Stars gained decisions in free-scoring extra-period battles, and they hold a one-game edge in their season series with the Reidmen.

The visitors still have Mr. Downie, who won for the Stars almost single-handed the last time he planted skates on Garden ice; also Mr. Markle, the league's leading goal-getter, and Mr. Waite, who leads the loop in assists.

LAST APPEARANCE HERE

In their last start the Stars swamped Buffalo, 6 to 3, indicating that there is nothing wrong with their attack. They haven't lost a game here this season, and tonight's fray will mark their final appearance of the campaign at the Garden. It is about time for the worm to roll over.

Leo Reise will team with Fraser in the backfield, in front of Sonny Boy Baxter, Arbour, Dunning and Locking are to be given the starting front line assignment. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh		Syracuse
Baxter	G	Grant
Reise	R D	Trapasso
Fraser	L D	Barnes
Arbour	C	Howe
Dunning	R W	Downie
Locking	L W	Pennington

Spares — Pittsburgh, Romano, Barton, Rodger, Gross, Providence, Fields, Mattie. Syracuse, Hughes, Waite, Markle, Martin, Delangis, Clute, McBride.

SCHOOL SERIES IS DISCUSSED

The history of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League was given and the annual basketball elimination series of the organization, which opens in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tomorrow night, discussed by J. Foster Gehrett, secretary of the W. P. I. A. L., in an interview with Julius Levin over Station WCAE during the weekly program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last night.

John D. Holahan, graduate athletic manager of Duquesne University, discussed phases of the athletic activities of his institution in an interview with Harry Keck, sports editor, which completed the program.

The Seals will be on the air again next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock with another interesting period.

ST. GODARD REPEATS

QUEBEC, Feb. 25.—Emile St. Godard repeated last year's victory by winning the 1931 Quarter-ing derby yesterday, finishing the eight of the Tadoro Club of Three Rivers. St. Godard made the run of approximately 41 miles in 3:27.09, for a total elapsed time in the three heats of 10:28.01.

PAUL WANER JOINS BUCS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 25.—Paul Waner and Tommy Thevenow, two veterans, joined the second squad of Pirate players as they reached here last night, en route to Paso Robles.

Both Waner and Thevenow reported to Lawrence Coller, charged affaires, in excellent condition. Waner has been wintering in Florida, while Thevenow spent the off-season at his home in Madison, Ind.

Tony Piet joined the squad in Chicago, and also reported in perfect shape. Tony has been keeping in trim all winter by doing a lot of hiking and a bit of hunting.

Piet, who suffered a severe charley horse last season, believes he has conquered the ailment and looks forward to the training grind with great expectations.

The other members of the squad, which includes Bill Hinchman, scout; Pitchers Ervin Brame and Bill Swift, Outfielders Gus Dugas and Dave Barbee, and Infielder Floyd Young, are standing up under the long ride rather well.

The entire party is enjoying perfect health and at the same time they are in the best of spirits. The weather has been perfect, despite the failure of Old Sol to appear.

Adam Comorosky, Pirate left-fielder, today was speeding toward the Paso Robles training camp, a day behind the rear guard from which he is an absentee on account of a cold. Comorosky came to Pittsburgh last night and after a short session with Vice President Sam Watters he continued on the long journey to the camp site.

Howard Groskloss, one of the second-base candidates, is due to leave for Paso Robles Saturday night. The Sheraden boy is a student in the Yale School of Medicine. His studies interfered with his getting away as per schedule, but he expects to get in sufficient training to be in top form. Howard will come to Pittsburgh Saturday morning in order to spend a day with his mother before he begins the trek to California.

The status of the team's two somewhat stubborn holdouts — Heinie Meine and Steve Swetonic —remains unchanged today. The two pitchers refuse to sign the contracts tendered them.

"The matter is up to them," Vice President Sam Watters said this morning in discussing the two disputers.

WANERS IN BENEFIT TILT

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 25.—Manager Gibson, of the Pirates, has received a request that several of his players, including the Waner brothers, be permitted to participate in a game Sunday at Los Angeles for the benefit of the unemployed. Joe E. Brown, movie comedian, telephoned that the charity exhibition had been arranged and the opposing team will be under the captaincy of Buster Keaton.

Gibson had no objection to having the Waner boys, and perhaps one or two others, stop off and take part in an inning, but, as they will not have their uniforms, it will be necessary for them to be fitted out when they land in Hollywood.

Gibson announced that the first practice contest between the Regulars and Yanigans probably will take place Tuesday. He remarked that he would be tempted to play today if he had sufficient men to choose two teams.

Capt. Pie Traynor is expected to report tomorrow. He is in Los Angeles, where Mrs. Traynor recently underwent a surgical operation for appendicitis.

Dempsey Made 'Tucky Colonel; Victim of Joke

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 25.—Jack Dempsey, former champion heavyweight, was made a Kentucky colonel by Gov. Ruby Laffoon yesterday when he came to Frankfort to address the General Assembly.

Meantime, a bill to prohibit absolutely boxing and wrestling in the state and to make attendance by spectators upon either grounds for divorce was introduced in the Senate as a joke on Dempsey. It also would provide heavy fines and jail terms for principals and promoters. The Senate referred it to the committee on ditches and drains.

"I consider this a great honor," said Jack simply, smiling as he received the blue-ribboned, gold-sealed parchment from Gov. Laffoon. "I hope I'll never do anything to lower the dignity of this office."

LOCAL WOMEN GOLFERS WIN

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—Mrs. D. A. Garber and Mrs. J. Heussner, both of Pittsburgh, are playing their second round matches in the annual South Atlantic championship golf tournament here today. Mrs. Garber is opposing Mrs. F. W. Thomas, of Englewood, N. J., in the second flight, and Mrs. Heussner is tackling Mrs. E. W. Van Houten, of Suffern, N. Y., in the third division.

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, is meeting Mrs. Charles R. Harbaugh, of Cleveland, in the title consolation class.

Mrs. Garber won her initial match yesterday from Mrs. S. L. McDermott, of New York, by 4 and 3, and Mrs. Heussner defeated Mrs. Thelma Kurry, of Chicago, by 3 and 2.

Mrs. Riley succumbed to Bea Gottlieb, of New York, by 6 and 5. Frances Williams, of Allentown, Pa., medalist, romped through with an easy victory over Mrs. Louise Heineman, of New York, 6 and 5.

Miss Williams is meeting Mrs. G. Smith, of Orlando, Fla., today. Miss Gottlieb is opposing Kathryn Bragaw, of West Orange, N. J., and Mrs. Zech is tackling Mrs. F. V. Jackson, of Point Judith, R. I.

Grappler Arrested For Tossing Ref Out of Ring

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Jack Washburn, Los Angeles wrestler, was arrested for assault and battery and held in $10,000 bail last night after he tossed Referee Bert Potts, of Philadelphia, out of the Boston Garden ring during his bout with Jack Smith, of Chicago. Washburn's arrest resulted from a complaint made by Dick Dunn, general manager of the Boston Garden.

Potts was unconscious when picked up and was removed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital. An examination indicated a fractured skull.

Crowe Resigns At St. Vincent College

LATROBE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Clem Crowe, football coach at St. Vincent College, has resigned to become assistant coach at Xavier University in Cincinnati.

Crowe, captain of the famous Notre Dame four horsemen team in 1925, was called by the late Knute Rockne, "the best end I ever coached." He came here after his graduation.

Crowe will report at Cincinnati to assist in the spring grid training. He succeeds Tim Monyhan, another Notre Dame star. Crowe also was noted as a basketball star at Notre Dame.

St. Vincent faculty officials said that Crowe's successor had not been named.

VALLEY HEIGHTS KEEPS LUTHER

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Ah—another rumor gone smash! Ted Luther, tall, lanky erstwhile professional at the Corry (Pa.) Country Club, who was credited with having been signed by the Valley Heights Golf Club and then was said to be in line for the assistant professorship to Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, at Oakmont, passed through the city yesterday en route to his home in Youngstown.

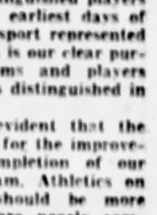
Ted confirmed the original statement of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, that he had signed at Valley Heights, and discredited stories to the effect he might be at Oakmont this season. Luther will appear for work at Valley Heights on March 15. That club certainly is fortunate in securing his services, because unquestionably he is one of the outstanding golfers of this district and gives promise of being one of the finest in the land before he has gone much farther.

RESERVE AT W. & J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 25.—Headed by Ray Nicholson, 185 pounder, who has lost only one match in 21 dual meets and is considered one of the leading prospects for the United States Olympic team, the wrestlers of Western Reserve University will invade Washington tonight, meeting the representatives of Washington and Jefferson.

MANY RADICAL CHANGES FOR PRESIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Pa., February 25. In a frank and open statement of policies for the government of intercollegiate and intramural sports at the institution, President Ralph H. Hutchison, of Washington and Jefferson, today announced the provision of a new system of control that is somewhat startling in its recognition of existing evils and its solution of problems that have long been a source of worry and criticism.



Mr. Hutchison

Among the provisions of the plan, adopted by the board of trustees and announced to the undergraduate body at the chapel exercises, are abolition of athletic scholarships, frank recognition of support of athletes by alumni or friends without any college connivance or co-operation; abolition of the office of graduate manager of athletics and the substitution of a director of intercollegiate athletics, to be employed by and be responsible to the board of trustees instead of the athletic council; segregation of football finances which are not to be used for support of other sports without specific and definite action by the trustees; handling of all athletic funds by the college auditor; wholehearted continuance of football and other intercollegiate sports and provision for every possible facility in fine coaching and adequate equipment.

MANY CHANGES

In his statement Dr. Hutchison says:

"Washington and Jefferson College has a record in athletics of which we are proud. Great teams and distinguished players have from the earliest days of intercollegiate sport represented this college. It is our clear purpose that teams and players shall be no less distinguished in the future.

"But it is evident that the time has come for the improvement and completion of our athletic program. Athletics on the campus should be more democratic, more nearly comprehensive, more vital in the college life, more conducive to enthusiasm and college spirit, better financed and above all, more idealistic.

"In an attempt to move forward in this direction, the board of trustees presents the following report and program:

"Washington and Jefferson College in its athletic budget faces a large and serious deficit. It has become so great that a change of policy is necessary for this reason if for no other. A number of students have had athletic scholarships by which they have been assisted in securing their college education. These scholarships were planned by alumni organizations independently of the college. But the college became involved through the ambiguous and indefinite nature of the office of graduate manager, through the semi-official and indeterminate responsibility of the athletic council and more particularly in recent years through the failure of the alumni to make the contributions contemplated in their commitments. The result has been that the total income from football has proved absolutely inadequate to meet the expenses involved.

SUPPORT FALLING OFF

"Other factors have entered. Public enthusiasm and support of former years has subsided here as elsewhere in the eastern part of the United States. Student opinion has changed considerably. Alumni contributions to football have fallen off through both choice and necessity. The result has been the heavy deficit in the athletic budget. The total is small compared with that found in some other colleges who have followed a similar policy, but it is large enough to indicate a change in policy at Washington and Jefferson."

Dr. Hutchison outlines four working principles which have been adopted for the future of football, as follows:

1. Whole-hearted continuance of football, as well as other intercollegiate sports.
2. Provision as rapidly as possible of every facility in fine coaching and adequate equipment.
3. No athletic scholarships to be given to students hereafter entering Washington and Jefferson College.
4. The frank recognition that athletes will on occasion be sent to college and supported by alumni or friends, but all concerned are to understand fully that the college can have nothing to do with such arrangements and that there shall be no slightest discrimination for or against such students.

NEW MEASURES

Continuing his statement, Dr. Hutchison says that in applying the above four principles the fol-

WEST VIRGINIA FIVE TESTS DUKES TONIGHT

TITANS TO FACE TOUGH FOE IN 'GATERS

GAMES TONIGHT

Duquesne vs West Virginia at Morgantown.
Westminster vs. Allegheny at Meadville.
Broaddus vs. St. Vincent at Beatty, Pa.
Potomac at Fairmont.
W. Va. Wesleyan at New River.

By JESS CARVER

Two of the very few opportunities remaining for the knocking off of the two rip-snorting college basketball teams in this area occur tonight in two widely separated spots, Morgantown and Meadville. At Morgantown, West Virginia will attempt to succeed where all other home grown opponents have failed and beat Duquesne and in Meadville Allegheny hopes to avenge an early season rout by bumping powerful Westminster.

The Dukes and Mountaineers have a very busy evening ahead, not only do the varsity and freshman ball tossers clash, but the varsity boxing teams of the rivals will swap jabs and wallops.

The Dukes' mitt coach, Red Daugherty, will use the following men tonight: Speedy Vitulla in the 115-pound division; Tony Vernaccini, in the 125; Pete Riley, in the 135; Freddie Moore, 145; Joe Steppek, in the 165, and Carl Avington in the 175-pound class.

SEASONS NEAR FINISH

After tonight's games, the Dukes have two games left to play, Westminster has the same, and in meeting Bethany and Grove City on their own court, the road from now on in for the Titans is going to be easier for the Titans than for the Dukes, who have Geneva and Carnegie Tech in the offing.

West Virginia, even though it has been clicking along in right smart fashion of recent, will have its hands full with the Dukes. If the Mountaineers win, despite anything Larry Boggs, celebrated Fairmont critic, may say to the contrary, the result will be scored as an upset. Chick Davies' squad, which has been treated rather shamefully by inroads of flu and grippe, is back in trim and set to go.

Davies has his regular lineup available for duty. Whether he'll start 'em or not remains to be seen. If he does, MacDougal and Feldman will be at the forwards; Capt. McGeever at center and Reiter and Moore at the guards.

DUKES SEEK REVENGE

West Virginia will stick to the combination that gave Creighton such a fine ball game Monday, presenting Ashworth and Sortet at the forwards, Cubbon in at center and Klug and Dotson as guards. West Virginia nailed the Dukes in Morgantown a year ago.

Allegheny is conceded a slight chance of checking the wild rush of the towering Westminsters. The big Blue and White team is in such a stride right now that it is questionable if there is a team in the country that would be able to gain a decision over it, and Allegheny, since it returned from its successful New York state jaunt, hasn't been able to click.

Tonight's probable Duke-West Virginia lineup:

West Virginia.		Dukes.
Doyle (C)	F	Feldman
Sortet	F	MacDougal
Cubbon	C	(C) McGeever
Dotson	G	Reiter
Klug	G	Moore

Between Rounds

The Motor Square Garden Boxing Club is dickering for the use of Forbes Field for several big boxing shows this summer, particularly a title match for Ted Yarosz or Jimmy Belmont if they come through. Jules Beck, Garden matchmaker, had a talk with President William A. Benswanger and Vice President Sam Walters, of the Pirates, yesterday and they took the matter under consideration. The last boxing show held in the Pirates' park was staged more than a half-dozen years ago, the late Barney Dreyfuss having voted thumbs down on the sport.

The card for the weekly show in Eddie Kapphan's arena in Addison street, off Center avenue, tomorrow night, has been completed with the signing of Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, and Frankie Gonsolo, hanfanos, for the opening bout and the substitution of Johnny Cooper, Negro, of the Hill, for Davy Grove, of the North Side, who is ill, against Marty McHale, of McKeesport in the eight-round semi-final. Willie Davies and Jackie Wilson box the windup and Sharkey Lesko, of McKeesport, and Tony Constantino, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, are the second number.

Leo Clemenis, of Jeannette, now under the management of Bunny Buntarh, has been signed as the opponent of Jerry Hart, Troy Hill heavyweight, in the second bout on the Jackie Fields-Jimmy Belmont non-title match card at Motor Square Garden, Monday night. Babe Collins, of Mexico, and Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, mix in the eight-round semi-final. The main bout will not be broadcast by radio, as have been those of the last several weeks.

lowing specific measures have been formulated:

1. The board of trustees has gone on record as recognizing that football should not be compelled to seek support commercially any more than is the department of mathematics; that much of the evil of football is due to the commercialization to which it has been forced through lack of other provision for its support. The board therefore favors the ultimate endowment of football as of any other legitimate part of the college program and its ful release from the necessity of seeking its own support from the general public.

2. The athletic council is no longer to be of a dual nature, with dual responsibility. It is to be a definite part of the college administration, functioning under the board of trustees.

3. The graduate manager is hereafter to have nothing to do with any funds raised for students or the support given to students. As an indication of this change in function the office of graduate manager is discontinued and an office of director of intercollegiate Athletics is established in its place.

RECEIPTS SEGREGATED

4. The director of Intercollegiate Athletics and the coaches will be employed hereafter by the board of trustees, which will act on recommendations submitted by the athletic council.

5. Football finances are to be strictly segregated from those of other sports. Football funds are no longer to be used for the support of other sports without specific action by the board of trustees acting on recommendation of the athletic council. Profits which may be received from football will be used for the meeting of present obligations unless there be special action to the contrary by the board of trustees.

6. All handling of athletic funds, receipts, expenditures and purchases will be carried on by the auditor's office of the college with the assistance of the director of intercollegiate athletics and under the direction of the athletic council.

7. Football houses which have proved unsuccessful from the viewpoint of the football coaches and detrimental to campus spirit are to be discontinued as soon as practicable.

8. Training table is to be left to the direction of the coaches and the administration. It is hoped that a commons may be opened on the campus and that under the direction of a skilled dietitian it will be a satisfactory training table as well.

SCHOOL SERIES IS CHANGED

By JULIUS LEVIN

When the W. P. I. A. L. elimination basketball tourney gets under way tomorrow, several changes will be noted in the program. Swissvale, Section XI champ, plays East Pittsburgh, Section XVII victor, at the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, as per schedule, but the carded game between Zelienople, Section XVIII ruler, and Leetsdale, of Section II, has been transferred to Tuesday night on the Beaver Falls court.

The second round game, in which Charleroi was to meet the East Pittsburgh-Swissvale tilt winner, Saturday, March 5, has been hampered by the announcement the Pitt-Army boxing matches are to be held in the Stadium on that night.

The East Pike Run-Canonsburg game may be played any place except Washington, where it was scheduled March 4.

TITLE PLAY APRIL 2

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—The Pennsylvania interscholastic basketball crown will be decided Saturday, April 2, at a place yet to be named, Edmund Wicht, of the P. I. A. A., has announced.

It's all in the point of view. This wrestling business, we mean.

If you turn out to see great contests of serious grappling, at a mat show, you'll be disappointed. On the other hand, if you go to be entertained, you'll wind up rolling in the aisles and returning home swearing you've just seen the greatest show on earth.

Strangler Lewis

At Motor Square Garden, tonight, they're going to have one of those periodical revivals of the sport, with Charley Reinecke, himself a wrestler in the olden days, as promoter and master of ceremonies.

HISTORY OF REVIVALS

Lurking in the background will be that arch-villain, if you choose to regard him as such, who insists that Pittsburgh be included in the wrestling circuit of the land, Ray Fabiani, of Philadelphia. Fabiani once played a fiddle in some of our largest symphonies, and has turned from that to being one of our foremost promoters of the grappling sport. He operates on a grand scale in Philadelphia, Boston and other cities, and this is his third attempt to break in here and make a go of it. He is associated with Reinecke in the current enterprise.

Fabiani's first Pittsburgh splurge occured a few years ago, when he was permitted to stage one show in the Moose Temple in Penn avenue. Curiously enough, Reinecke was the referee that night and was asked to pass upon whether the wrestlers were wrestling or clowning. He decided they were clowning and Fabiani was told to pack up and keep moving. Last year, Ray returned with a man named Sharkey as his representative. A series of shows was staged in Motor Square Garden and Hickey Park, Millvale. They did not prosper because they got off on the wrong foot. There was altogether too much hippodroming to jibe with Sharkey's claim that his shows would be the real thing. Reinecke also was the referee of these bouts.

Now Fabiani is back again, as a partner of the self-same Reinecke. You have to give him credit for being a game guy. Persistency is his middle name. Maybe he's a villain. Maybe he's a hero. Maybe he's a martyr. Who knows?

LEWIS IN WINDUP

Anyway, here we have the team of Reinecke and Fabiani all set to stage the first of a series of semi-monthly programs. Strange bed fellows we find in wrestling, as in politics. These shows will be billed as wrestling exhibitions by ukase of the boxing commission, and, as such, Mr. Spectator is at liberty to consider them either as contests or as an evening's entertainment, which should help to keep the peace.

A bout to the finish between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, on-and-off heavyweight champion of the world, and John Maxos, a Greek

STEELE IN SEMI-FINAL

Ray Steele, of California, meets Frank Spear, of Georgia Tech, in the semi-final.

Lewis and Steele wrestled 90 minutes to a draw in Boston last night.

The second bout is between Earl McCready, of Canada, and Nino Darnaldi, Italian, and the opener brings together Koli Kwarini, of Russia, and George Kotsonaros, another Greek.

The padded ring will begin to creak under the impact of the heavyweights at 8:30.

HANDBALL PLAY SET

The national junior A. A. U. four-wall soft ball handball tournament will be held in the Keystone Athletic Club, starting on March 16. Entries close with J. Rogers Flannery, Keystone Athletic Club.

CUP LEADER NAMED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Paul W. Gibbons, president of the Philadelphia Lawn Tennis Association, has been appointed to the United States Davis Cup committee.

RESERVE FIVE HANDS PITT SETBACK

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24.—Doc Carlson's Pitt basketeers got the surprise of their lives here last night when the Western Reserve University quintet rallied in the last three minutes to beat the Panthers, 45 to 39. Reserve played its best game of the season to cop.

The Red Cats were unable to pierce the Pittsburgh defense in the opening half, but managed to break through the wall in the third period and the game was deadlocked at 34-all with five minutes to play.

Charlillo whipped in a basket to put Reserve in front, but Lawry matched the shot and Brown, who replaced McCamant at guard for Pitt, dropped in a beauty from a difficult angle. Cohen again tied it up with a short shot, but Smith was fouled and made the point, giving the Panthers a slim 39 to 38 margin.

It was at this stage of the game that the Reserve power attack started to click. The lineup:

TARTAN QUINT EASILY BEATS PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 25.—Carnegie Tech gave the Princeton basketball team its third defeat of the season last night, 30 to 15.

The game was all in favor of the Tartans, who led, 16-5, at half-time.

Time after time Carnegie broke up the Nassau attack before it passed mid-court. Ten and a half minutes of the first half had elapsed before Princeton scored its first basket. The lineup:

Macfarlane Victor At St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Willie Macfarlane, veteran Scot from Tuckahoe, N. Y., won the 54-hole St. Petersburg open golf tournament yesterday with a score of 209. He nosed out Dave Hackney, of Lowell, Mass., by one stroke, and received $500 top prize. Hackney got $300. Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., slipped into third place to win $200, with 211 strokes.

Outsiders Race To Dead Heat At Caliente

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Shasta Snow and Bad Boy, owned by the Oak Tree Stables and F. Rinehart, respectively, matched stride for stride on the stretch and finished a seven-furlong race in a thrilling dead heat yesterday. Both were considered outsiders.

The stewards decided the horses should run off the tie and a special race was made of it. Shasta Snow won the run-off by three-quarters of a length. The dead heat was run in 1:26 3-5. The run-off was two-fifths of a second slower.

'I'm Boss,' Carey Tells Dazzy Vance

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Figuring that a lot of his prestige as a manager may depend upon his handling of such temperamental stars as Dazzy Vance, Max Carey, Brooklyn pilot, says he plans to treat the Dazzler "just the same as any other pitcher."

"There will be no stars on our team," Max explained just after he and Vance had agreed on salary terms, "just ball players. Vance will work my way and my way only. When I consider him fit to pitch he will pitch regardless of how much rest he has had. Naturally, he will have rest between games, but he must take his turn with the rest of the pitchers."

SWITCH, ROVERS HOLD SOCCER SPOTLIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

With the end of the soccer season looming, fans only have one game carded on Saturday. This will find Union Switch and Signal, Central League champion, meeting the Pittsburgh Rovers, in an exhibition game at Swissvale. Manager Jack Campbell booked this game to keep the Switch in good condition for the final West Penn cup game with the Morrys.

On Sunday, the feature game finds Cecil and the Castle Shannon Morrys clashing at Shannon in the Keystone League. This game will serve to put the Shannon outfit on edge for the Western final of the National Amateur cup at Cleveland, a week from Sunday.

Heidelberg and Moon Run clash Sunday in the junior semi-final at South Park, the winner to meet the Shannon Juniors in the final. In the Panhandle loop, Sturgeon meets Houston and the Shannon Juniors clash with the owls, in a preliminary to the Cecil-Morrys game.

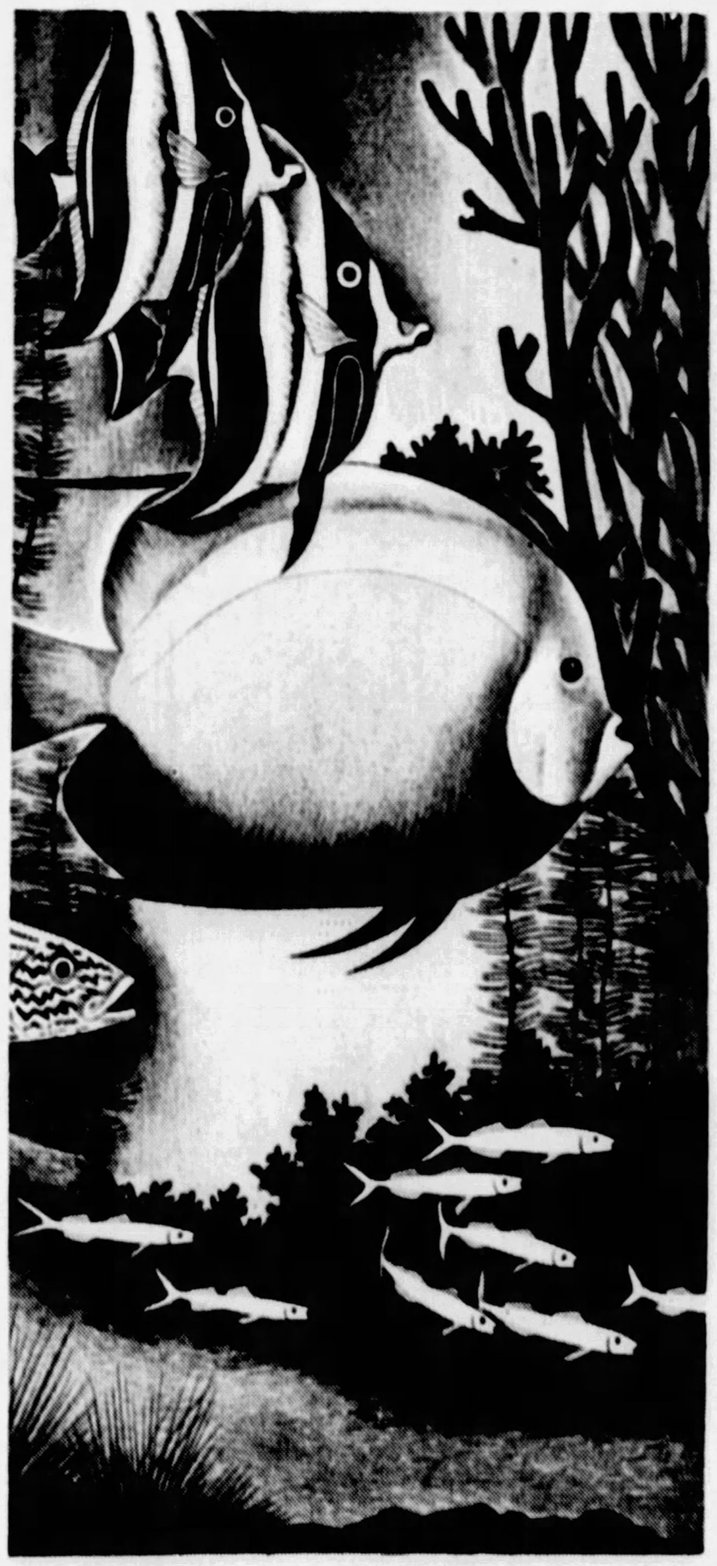
DUQUESNE MERMEN WIN

Duquesne High defeated Clairton twice in swimming competition yesterday. Its senior team won, 56 to 18, and its juniors copped, 25 to 20.

MRS. WRIGLEY ELECTED

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. William Wrigley, widow of the late owner of the Chicago Cubs, has been elected a director of the baseball club and a member of the executive committee.

FLEETWOOD



ANOTHER WORLD

When man leaves his familiar earth and explores beneath the seas, he discovers another world. There the atmosphere is water . . . schools of strange fish, like bright birds, flit through coral forests . . . curious forms of vegetation languidly swirl and sway, stirred by the faint breath of forgotten tides . . . between quick, dim shadows, lovely flowers of living stone gleam from the cold sea-floor. Only those who have seen it have any real comprehension of this new world. So far apart from common experience is it that adequate description cannot be found in words.

We meet a similar difficulty in presenting to you the new custom coachcraft by Fleetwood, for Cadillac. This coachwork has no precedent upon which you may base your judgment, for the past has never seen so unique a combination of artistic and engineering talent. Growing out of an alliance of masterly art and masterly science—born of a supreme harmony of purpose—it achieves perfection which cannot be portrayed, but must be experienced.

Will you not confirm this by investigating the latest creations in Fleetwood custom coachcraft, presented in wide variety on models of the new Cadillac V-8, V-12 and V-16? You will find, we believe, an order of beauty, luxury and comfort marking a most significant advance beyond all current standards.

COACHCRAFT

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

To Fighting Eddie Onslow, brother of Scrappy Jack of the Phillies and manager of the flag-winning Harrisburg club, goes the blue ribbon with palm for his presentation of a dramatic comedy of baseball, with Casey Stengel portraying the leading role, yet ably supported by an unwilling, yet gripping grandstand manager.

Stengel, as you may have heard, had a terrible season in Toledo. His favorite banks were in trouble and his favorite ball club was a cellar contender. The Mudhen manager had a flock of panics on his hands at once; in fact, Casey could fine repose and quiet right now if he would move into the International Settlement at Shanghai, in view of his trials in Toledo last year.

While the waves of depression were thus two-timing Charles, he was singularly annoyed by a loud "second-guesser" who owned a seat in a box adjoining the Mudhen dugout. Each and every strategical move made by Stengel which failed to carry a premium was the signal for an outburst of razzing on the part of the detested fan. Casey took the punishment, although there were times when he felt the urge to be at the throat of the tormentor.

The climax came on an afternoon when the Mudhens, their ranks sadly depleted, went into the ninth inning of a drawn fight. The sacks were loaded with Toledo players and none was out, but the subsequent two batters failed ingloriously with the winning run at stake. The failure of the first batsman brought the grandstand manager to his feet with a salvo of razzberries and when the next man popped out, his gestures of disgust toward Manager Stengel were hard to overlook.

In trying to land the victory, Stengel had called practically every member of his curtailed squad into action. The last of his pitchers was due to bat when Casey glanced around he discovered that there was only one player available, and this was a sandlotter. Seething with anger the manager grabbed a bat and rushed toward the box wherein the "second-guesser" sat. Naturally the gaze of the multitude was on the pilot and the now scared fan.

Oblivious to the umpires who sought to speed up the play and to the onlookers in the stands, Casey proceeded to enact his stirring skit.

Now, you fathead!" he roared. "I'm making you manager of the club—and don't try to take a runout powder, because I'll get you if you try it. There are just two of us left down there. Who are you going to send up there to hit—the rookie or me?

The terrorized gent was perspiring in his fright as he tried to dodge the issue, but Stengel was mad and determined.

"Come on, quick with that decision. You've been second guessing me all summer. Now here's a chance for you to make one when it means something."

"I'm going up there to hit. If I fall down I'm coming right back here and punch you in the nose. And if I come through I'm going to take a sock at you anyhow just for luck."

Casey did not emulate his illustrious namesake by missing a third strike. He clicked with a hit and the winning run went over the plate. As Stengel hustled down the line to the first base he tried to keep his eye on a dethroned grandstand pilot, but before Casey could reach him the gent was through the exits.

SQUASH PLAY IS RESUMED

Four matches were played in the Class B squash racquet city championship tourney, which got under way yesterday at the Keystone Athletic Club.

Graham McCargo, of the Pittsburgh Golf Club, was pressed to five games before he eliminated Paul G. Sullivan, P. A. A. entrant, in the feature contest. The scores were 4-15, 18-14, 15-12, 11-15 and 15-11.

C. W. Kepler, P. A. A., won in straight games from Al Hamilton, of University Club, in a spectacular conflict, 15-11, 15-11 and 15-12.

J. G. Fulton easily downed J. S. Gush, 15-13, 15-5 and 15-10, while D. J. Kennedy, Keystone Athletic Club, toppled a clubmate, Ralph Carson, 15-11, 15-12 and 15-10.

Fred Gwinner, University Club, and J. O. Craig, K. A. C., advanced to the second round when their foes, Tom Ladd, K. A. C., and Herb Lytle, K. A. C., defaulted.

Eight matches were anticipated when play was resumed today, with the following players in action:

Paul Hirst, University Club, Charles Lenahan, Pittsburgh Golf Club; Capt. Fred McMahon, P. A. A., Charles Wendt, Edgewood C. C.; Ray Babcock, K. A. C., N. C. Parker, K. A. C., W. S. Robinson, Allegheny Country Club; J. H. Miller, K. A. C., and T. B. Kennedy, of the home club.

Keystone A. C. Swim Meet Tomorrow

Women club members will act as officials at a swimming meet to be held in the pool of the Keystone A. C. tomorrow night. The program arranged by Jad Kennard and Jim Taylor includes many novelties. Miss Mae Cutnell, local Olympic hope, will give an exhibition of the various styles of swimming. Freshmen from Pitt will engage in speed events, boys and girls of the club will engage in speed and novelty competition and Coach Taylor will give an exhibition of swimming and diving featured by his submarine and periscope acts. The event will get under way at 8:15.

Daily Double Pays $1,717.20 for $2

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 25.—Two dollars wagered on Dr. Rogers and Twisted Threads to win the first and second races at the Fair Grounds here yesterday brought a return of $1,717.20 to the lone bettor naming the combination.

Eclipsing the mark of $1,445.40 set at Jefferson Park on December 7 of last year, the payoff sets a new high record for the daily double form of betting.

COHEN TO PLAY

Mut Cohen, a member of the Pitt basketball team a few years ago, will be in the Uniontown lineup against the South Pittsburgh quintet, when the teams clash on the Brentwood floor, Saturday night. This will be a Five County League game.

WILMERDING VICTOR

Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. defeated Braddock Y. M. C. A., 48 to 15, at water polo last night.

New York U. Card Cut to Eight Games

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—New York University, which recently renounced "big-time" football, today announced an eight-game gridiron schedule for next fall, the shortest in its recent history. Following the opening game with Hobart, seven major opponents will be played here.

Purdue, the only newcomer, plays here October 29. The University of Oregon and West Virginia Wesleyan have been dropped.

Dormont to Play Pitt Frosh Five

On Saturday evening, the Pitt freshmen meet the Dormont High basketeers on the Dormont floor, marking the first appearance of a college quintet in the South Hills. The freshmen are coached by Paul Zehfuss, former star at South Hills High and Pitt. Only one high school team has been able to stop them this season. A preliminary game will be played at 7 and the varsity at 8.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—United States government bonds, with another rally, provided the principal point of interest in today's investment market. Liberties were especially active at higher levels, while treasuries, though less in demand, also improved.

British government 5½s moved to a new high for the year. Other foreign issues were narrowly irregular, except the Japanese 6½s which went into new low ground.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, odd omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars:

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Drift Off

Local Market Dull

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS IDLY LOWER

Morning Rally Followed By Dribble of Selling, Which Sends Prices Off

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The stock market drifted idly today, with a slow undercurrent of selling apparent, despite occasional ripples of buying.

Another wide break in Auburn at the opening unsettled the general list so little that professional buying was encouraged for a time, but selling cropped out in some volume after midday.

After opening up 1½ at 100, Auburn dropped to a new low for 1932 at 97, then recovered moderately. During the morning rally, some of the minor issues showed gains of a point or so, and some of the leaders sold up fractionally, but by early afternoon, American Telephone was off 2 points net, and issues down a point or more included United States Steel, General Electric, American Can, New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, Alaska Juneau and others. General Motors and Radio sagged fractionally under fairly active selling. Kreuger & Toll and International Match preferred were also under notable pressure. Union Carbide lost 1½ on reduction of the dividend to $2 annually from $2.60.

In the main, the market continued to reflect tardiness of business pickup. There have been numerous rumors in brokerage circles of late over prospective bullish developments in Washington, but at least some of these rumors were set to rest when Secretary of the Treasury Mills denied that the administration was contemplating any statement on war debts or prohibition.

One of the latest unconfirmed and unofficial explanations for the weakness of Auburn was that the Wrigley estate was planning to sell some of its holdings, and that in the meantime market sponsors of the issue had withdrawn their support.

Important banking interests in Wall street remained moderately optimistic over the outlook for the latter part of the year, pointing to strengthening of the banking structure through the reconstruction corporation and the Glass-Steagall bill, and the gradual overcoming of currency hoarding, as providing a solid basis for eventual recovery.

The money market remained about stationary, and failed to foreshadow any reduction in the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate this week, although the impression persists that money rates are going to come down during the next few months, as indicated by the action of the bond market.

WHEAT PRICES SHOW LOSSES

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Grain prices underwent an early setback today, influenced by weakness of Liverpool wheat quotations and by New York stock market declines. A further increase of 5 per cent in the French quota of foreign wheat permitted to millers was virtually ignored. Opening ¼@¾ lower, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn also started ¼@¾ off and continued to recede.

Moderate rallies after early downturns in wheat accompanied announcement that wheat exports from the Black Sea region, including South Russia, amounted to only 344,000 bushels this week, compared with 616,000 a year ago. There were also advices that in Southwest Kansas, Southeast Colorado and Northwest Oklahoma, a territory which produced 70,000,000 bushels of wheat last, the present outlook was but for 45 per cent of a crop. Conditions in Northwest Kansas and in the Texas Panhandle were reported as less unfavorable, although far below last year. Corn and oats were bearishly affected by big receipts of corn here, 347 cars.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

TRADE DECLINE END SEEN BY BANKER

Financial Institutions of Chicago, Listening Posts, Believe Undertone Better

By MERRYL S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Like other parts of the country, the Middle West is at present enjoying mental exhilaration from the economic serum administered by the reconstruction agencies at work at Washington.

In an informal chat, James R. Leavell, president, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, the largest bank in the world under a single roof, remarked to me:

Mr. Rukeyser

"Until recently, people were concentrating on a place to light in the storm; now they are beginning to look for a way to climb up. The people are feeling much better out this way. Business men are still conservative. They are not talking intemperately about prospective profits, but they are saying that even under present conditions they are able to break even and remain in business through this abnormal period. Business has stopped declining."

BETTER TONE SEEN

The banks here, with vast number of correspondent banks throughout the country, are listening posts for sentiment throughout the country. They believe that the undertone is better all around. The provinces are responding to New York's demonstration of better feeling.

Typical of La Salle street gossip is the report that Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank in New York, is talking more cheerfully to those in his confidence. Bankers here have also heard that Clarence H. Woolley, head of the American Radiator Company, and astute judge of the course of the business cycle, believes that the low point of the depression was passed with the last fortnight.

Bankers here believe that the main value of the bank aid program at Washington depends on the public reaction. If currency expansion under the new Glass-Steagall act merely offsets hoarding, its value will be limited. Economists believe that genuine credit expansion and a rise in the price level are needed.

TWO OBJECTIVES

A senior officer of one of the leading banks in the Middle West remarked that the Glass-Steagall measure aims at two objectives.

First, it is designed to free gold to assure the American public that this country can meet any foreign withdrawals of gold without abandoning the gold standard.

Secondly, it is intended to assure domestic bank depositors that solvent banks will be able to meet any withdrawals being able through the new agencies to convert almost any type of asset into currency.

The economist of one of the principal banks here calculates that the Glass-Steagall act provision, which authorizes the use of United States government bonds as an alternative to commercial banks as cover for Federal Reserve notes to the extent of 60 per cent of their value, makes possible an increase of $3,480,000,000 in Federal Reserve notes.

Trading Irregular On London Market

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The London Stock Exchange closed today with trading irregular, but with gilt edge securities continuing stronger.

Foreign bonds were dull in the trading and trans-Atlantic industrials were quiet. International Nickels and Ford slid off slightly and oils were weaker.

The pound sterling was quoted at $3.48, unchanged from the opening.

Servel Proposes Capital Reduction

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Servel, Inc., has notified the New York Stock Exchange of a proposed reduction in capital, represented by common stock, to $6,670,497 from $17,944,463.

Wellbeing of All Must Be Put Supreme

—By B. C. FORBES—

HUMANS CAME ahead of business. Humans should still come ahead of business.

What is the ultimate objective of currency systems, the gold standard, stock and commodity exchanges, industry, commerce, banking systems, tariffs, taxes, government, legislation?

Mr. Forbes

It is—or should be—the well-being of the people, the greatest good of the greatest number.

Isn't this simple, elementary fact too often being overlooked?

LORD NORTHCLIFFE, the most successful publisher Britain ever produced, once observed to me:

"In America system is worshipped for its own sake, whereas it should be regarded and utilized only as a means to an end—profits."

We have theorists in this country who regard their pet theories as sacrosanct. They do not realize that theories are—or should be—subordinate to human considerations, subordinate to the common weal, servants to man and not his masters.

TAKE THE CURRENT controversy concerning "inflation."

If so-called "inflation" will counteract the tragic consequences of deflation run riot, if it will start the wheels of industry humming, if it will make credit available to trustworthy borrowers, if it will discourage niggardliness and restore normalcy, if it will take several million idle workers off the streets and restore them to payrolls, let us have "inflation."

IF THIS NATION can be happier and more prosperous by permitting the issuance of currency based 40 per cent on gold and 60 per cent on United States government obligations or on other first-class security, why should the law which has sterilized much of our gold and disastrously curtailed credit, not be changed?

When the original law was passed prescribing that only commercial paper be used to supplement gold as the basis of currency, there was an abundance of commercial paper and no need for permitting any other class of security to be used.

But commercial paper no longer play the important role it did before the war.

There is nothing sacred about commercial paper. Conditions having changed, why shouldn't the law be changed.

Currency is a tool. Both currency and business must have as their grand objective the comfort, the prosperity, the happiness of the people. Man was not made for currency or for business. Currency and business were made for man.

AGAIN, WE READ much for and against the shortselling of stocks.

The same A. B. C. reasoning should be applied here. The supreme consideration must be, not academic theories about preserving untrammeled speculation; the supreme consideration must be, what do existing atualities, what does the well-being of the people demand? If conditions arise which make it possible for indulgence in shortselling to aggravate unsettlement, aggravate depression, aggravate losses, aggravate unemployment, then shortselling should be treated as undesirable so long as it is more harmful than helpful.

BANKERS KEPT proclaiming and proclaiming while millions were being ruined:

"Things must be allowed to run their course."

Had Dr. Gorgas taken that fatalistic stand, the Panama Canal would not have been constructed. John H. Paterson once shrewdly declared:

"Anything left to run itself will run only one way—downhill."

THERE HAS BEEN altogether too much supine surrender to man-made circumstances, too much cowardice, too much idle despair, too much calloused indifference to the sufferings of an unconscionable number of individuals and families.

Let our bankers, our stock exchange governors, our lawmakers, our theorists realize that the greatest good of the greatest number is the be-all and the end-all of all human activities and institutions, let them realize that everything must be made subservient to that single aim. Let them put first things first.

Then shall we remove every obstacle to the resumption of rational prosperity and progress.

Treasury to Sell Big Refunding Issue

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Secretary Mills has announced the treasury would sell on next Monday, $100,000,000 in 91-day treasury bills for refunding.

The bills will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidder. They will be dated March 2 and mature on June 1, when they will be paid off at their face value.

Eureka Line Oil Advanced 5 Cents

Pennsylvania grade crude in Eureka Pipe Line Company's lines has been increased 5 cents per barrel to $1.50.

ADVANCE MADE BY COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 7 to 10 points on covering and trade buying. May sold at 7.17.

Both domestic and foreign trade interests were credited with buying on the opening, but the advance which carried May back to within a point of last week's high met considerable realizing and southern selling.

This was sufficient to check the upturn and cause reactions of several points, with May selling around 7.11 and October 7.47 at the end of the first half hour or about 5 to 6 points net higher.

Offerings tapered off after the early reactions and prices stiffened up again later in the morning on a further moderate demand from the trade while rallies in the stock market probably led to some covering or rebuying by earlier sellers.

At midday the market was quiet and steady, with May selling around 7.14c and October, 7.50c, or 3 to 4 points up from the lowest and about 7 to 9 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 25.—Cotton spot good business done; prices 9 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.42; good middling, 6.02; strict middling, 5.92; middling, 5.82; strict low middling, 5.72; low middling, 5.62; strict good ordinary, 5.42; good ordinary, 5.12. Receipts, 200 bales, all American. Futures closed barely steady. March, 5.52; May, 5.52; July, 5.54; October, 5.58; December, 5.64; January, 5.66.

Tobacco Companies Reach Agreement

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—American Tobacco Company has reached agreement with the committee representing minority stockholders of American Cigar Company, which will result in transforming American Cigar into a holding company and assure it an annual income equal after preferred dividends to about $11 a share on common stock.

American Cigar is calling a special meeting of stockholders for March 15 to approve a plan for transferring most of its business to American Tobacco.

Power Production Drop Continues

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Electric power production continues to make unfavorable comparisons with last year, according to the National Electric Light Association, electric output in the week ended February 20 totaled 1,545,459,000 kilowatt hours, which compares with 1,680,029,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding week of 1931, a decline of 8 per cent. In the previous week output was 6.2 per cent below the like week of last year.

Carlisle Elected By Consolidated Gas

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Floyd I. Carlisle has been elected chairman of Consolidated Gas Company. George B. Cortelyou has been made president and will continue as operating head of the Consolidated system.

Reserve Expected To Cut Discount

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Credit easing through reduction of Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rates may be expected at any time. Officials pointed out today that the present 3½ per cent level of rates, established at a majority of the reserve banks last October, is somewhat high in view of the situation and that the psychological effect of a reduction to 3 per cent undoubtedly would be helpful.

If the anti-deflation program of the reserve system agreed in Washington some time ago, but temporarily halted because of the outflow of gold, were put into effect experts believe the combined effect would be reassuring.

Competitive Rates Asked by Roads

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Interstate Commerce Commission authorization has been requested by Wabash Railway, Grand Trunk, Michigan Central and Pere Marquette to establish reduced rates on comm

Lily Lou Learns That Her Husband Has Lost His Position

CHAPTER XIX.

They were a little furtive and unnatural in the morning. She felt his awkwardness, and he felt hers.

"He knows . . . he knows I heard him cry," she thought miserably, cutting the grapefruit, measuring the coffee with curiously capable hands.

"Breakfast is almost ready, Ken," she called in a voice that was meant to be natural and gay, and sounded loud and tin-canny to her own over-sensitive ears.

"Ready in a minute, honey," he answered in the same tone.

Lily Lou straightened the strip of embroidered linen on the built-in table of the breakfast nook. Rearranged the sugar and cream pitcher. For a moment she leaned against the wall, the backs of her hands pressed tight against her hot cheeks. She felt that she was choking.

She had brought in the morning paper, and laid it at Ken's place. Usually he took a glance at the front page, another at the sports section, then pushed it aside. Today he propped it up in front of him, read while he ate.

SETTLED APPEARANCE

There was something husbandly and settled about it. From her place across the table Lily Lou could just see the top of his head. His brown head, still damp from his shower. She bit her lip, to keep from crying out. Fear and anguish gnawed at her heart. But the paper comforted her . . . he must feel settled and satisfied if he could eat his breakfast and read that way . . . sort as if the honeymoon were over, maybe, but settling down . . . the loving husband. . . .

He looked up suddenly. "You're awfully pensive this morning."

"I thought you were reading."

He struck the paper aside. "No, I wasn't reading."

"Another cup of coffee?" she asked hastily.

He glanced at his watch. "Sorry, have to be on my way."

She went with him to the door, accepted his rather absent-minded kiss. After he was gone she practiced for an hour or two . . . scales, breathing exercises . . . felt better. What a super-sensitive idiot she was turning out to be! Next thing, if she didn't look out, she'd develop nerves like May, or a weak back, like Bess, and have to take pills . . . She laughed a little at that. Decided to go down town and do a little shopping. She wanted some black darning cotton for Ken's socks, and a new lipstick.

DINES WITH PEGGY

At the perfume counter in a drugstore on Grand avenue she walked right into Peggy Sage. No time to back out, to hastily look the other way. Peggy saw her, seemed to shrink back, too. Then with a nervous little laugh she held out both hands. "The bride! To think of meeting you here! My dear, I'm so glad to see you. Do have lunch with me. I'm alone, and starving—"

Lily Lou gulped. "I'd just love to, but—"

She never finished the halting excuse. Peggy Sage hooked a small but determined arm through hers. Before she knew just how it happened they were seated at a table in one of the Russian tea rooms, just off the avenue.

"The Russian soup, with the sour cream?" The waitress' pretty Slavic face was close to Lily Lou's. She must have asked twice.

"Yes, please." Lily Lou murmured hastily, though she hated sour cream, and didn't even want soup.

The orchestra dinned happily, just back of them. Smoke rose in faint blue spirals from every table. Smartly dressed women, impervious to noise and crowding, knocked elbows with each other. Chatted in low, well-bred tones.

CHANGES SUBJECT

Peggy Sage had lit a cigaret, was smiling across the table. "Tell me all about it," she invited.

"You mean about our marriage? There isn't much to tell. We . . . we made up our minds one day and were married the next and . . . that's about all."

"Most romantic thing I ever heard in my life," Peggy exclaimed, piling sweet butter on rye bread, nibbling as she talked. "I mean it was the most exciting thing. Why, I was never so surprised. Not at anything. . . Why don't you try this funny conserve? It's good really. . . . And I said to Ken, I certainly do wish you luck, boy! and I do, my dear, and if there's anything I can do—"

"That's awfully sweet of you," Lily Lou put in, stiffly.

She made a pretense of eating her salad. She felt awkward, and at a disadvantage. What rotten luck to bump into Peggy Sage of all people . . . And what a ninny to let herself be dragged off to lunch this way. Peggy just invited her to pump her about things . . . well, she wouldn't find out much. . . .

"Are you going somewhere exciting this summer?" she asked, and then settled back, pleased with herself because Peggy fell into the trap and rattled on about Maine, and somebody's camp. Lily Lou almost enjoyed her lunch. She admired the bright dishes, the colorful carvings, the strange Russian frescoes in the room. She studied Peggy's printed silk dress, decided she wasn't so terribly pretty after all . . . her nose was really too large, and her eyes were too sharp. . . .

"No, let me!" Peggy's birdlike little hand closed over the check the waitress had left on the table with the dessert.

SHOCKING NEWS

Lily Lou held her corner of it firmly. She knew it was silly, but she didn't want Peggy to pay for their lunch. She wanted to pay for it, herself. "Please—" she begged—"let me have it—"

The eagerness must have showed in her face. "Just as you like," Peggy said indifferently.

They parted at the corner, Peggy remembering a dancing lesson she had just time to get to. And just as she said goodbye she held out her hand and took Lily Lou's impulsively in hers. "I'm sorry Ken lost that job he liked so much," she said swiftly. "I told him not to worry. How's the old dear taking it, still pretty hard?"

Ken . . . lost his job? And he told Peggy Sage, and he didn't tell her? But no . . . there was some mistake. . . . Lily Lou opened her mouth, but she wouldn't ask. Show Peggy Sage that she knew more about Ken's business than she? No! Not if she never found out! "Oh, he's bearing up pretty well!" she cried, brightly. "I'll tell him you asked about him, though. And now I must go. Your dancing and—"

"Yes—I'm frightfully late. But you tell him I'll just make father take him. You'll tell him again, won't you?"

"I'll tell him," Lily Lou promised.

She walked home. Walked into the empty apartment, stood looking around her, like a stranger. A pretty place . . . she could visualize Peggy Sage in it. . . . Ken should have married Peggy. He gave Peggy his confidence. . . . They must have had lunch together. Or perhaps they went riding somewhere.

She put her hands over her aching eyes, and in the dark reddish light that filtered through her fingers she could see Peggy's piquant little face, her fluff of pale hair, her dark, bright eyes.

Slowly, painfully, she went over it all in her mind. It was nothing, really. . . . Ken certainly had the right to talk to Peggy Sage if he wanted to. Was she going to be one of those jealous, nagging wives? But it was so hard. . . . If he'd only told her first. . . .

The ache in her eyes crawled backward. Settled in a hard knot in the back of her neck. She sat hunched in the chair. Thinking . . . trying to think. . . .

She didn't hear Ken come in. He stood in the doorway, looking at her morosely.

"What are YOU moping about?" he wanted to know.

ALL IN A DAY — By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"I SUPPOSE you know," writes Wilton F., "that there is an automobile company in New York that rents Rolls-Royces by the hour, day or week? It's a highly dependable firm that employs expert drivers, and many people use those cars these days, not to show off, but because they find it cheaper and more convenient than running a heavy car of their own.

"Ever since this renting firm has been in existence, however, there has always been a certain type of phony who will hire a machine only to create an impression. There is nothing about the car to betoken the fact that it has been hired and, for $3 an hour, the phony can ride around as though he were Mellon's uncle.

"I don't imagine I'm telling you anything new, Mark, because you've seen plenty of the hired buggies around the stage doors in your day. But here's a new angle that should give you something of a kick. If you don't like it, then I'm wrong.

One of the cheapest—and, incidentally, one of the loudest—phonies who ever struck the big street met a cute chorine from one of the shows the other evening and immediately went into a terrific play for her. The kid is really nothing more than a baby and she listened to this phony's lingo with the wildest eyes you ever saw.

"It wasn't long before he was promising her everything from the Brooklyn Bridge to one of Peggy Joyce's garters. The kid didn't give him the slightest encouragement; all she did was nod her head and close and open those tremendous eyes. He took her home that night to the furnished room on Second avenue in which she lived with her family. And he promised to call for her at the theater in his car the following night.

"Naturally, since he was very much on the make, he phoned the Rolls-Royce renting company and arranged to have a machine meet him shortly before the curtain would fall on the girl's show. In a highly important manner, he explained the situation to the chauffeur of the car.

"'Your name?' he asked the driver imperiously.

"'Charlie,' was the driver's reply.

"'That won't do,' announced the phony. 'During this trip your name will be James. You will act, of course, as though I were the actual owner of the car and I will pay you well for your service. You understand?'

"The driver tipped his hat. Nobody had to tell him that he was dealing with a phony of the first water. He had driven too many of them. Yet his reply indicated nothing.

"'I understand, sir,' he returned. 'I'll do my very best, sir.'

"In due time the little chorine stepped from the stage door. The phony took her arm as though she were Queen Elizabeth and bowed her into his hired car with a great flourish.

"'This is a swell car you got here,' said the kid as they drove off.

"The phony lit a cigaret, pulled the robe closer about him and put his hand on hers.

"'It's not bad,' he admitted. 'Of course, I have three or four of them and they're no novelty to me. You can get tired, my sweet child, even of a Rolls-Royce.'

"'Yeah?' said the chorine. . .

"After a visit to the Casino, the phony once more escorted the cute kid to his hired car. He coughed importantly.

"'James,' he murmured, 'it is too early to go home just yet. Suppose you drive us around the park a few times.'

"'I oughta go home,' said the girl. 'I don't see no sense in ridin' around the park.'

"But the door had already closed behind her. The car started off. And, as you undoubtedly expected, the phony immediately went into what he probably thought was some expert love making.

"He promised her this and he promised her that. He told her of his magnificent estates on Long Island and the millions that he would lay at her feet. He told her that the car in which she was riding was only a sample of the magnificence that would soon be hers. And so forth and so on.

"Everything went fairly smoothly until the phony made a terrible mistake. He pulled the girl to him and began to maul her. She let out an expert howl, struck the phony across the face and began to call the chauffeur.

"'Charlie,' she howled. 'He's gettin' fresh, Charlie.'

"The phony rubbed his face and looked at her in amazement.

"'What's the matter with you?' he demanded. 'Stop your yelling. If you feel that way about it, I won't touch you. But my chauffeur's name isn't Charlie. It's James.'

"'You're the biggest liar I ever met,' she announced. "You got a funny break when you hired this car. The driver's name is Charlie Kelly, and he happens to be my brother.'" . . .

* * *

"JUST A MOMENT, Mark," writes Al Deane, of Waukegan, Ill.

"I want to annoy you still further about your story of the theater magnate whose theater was destroyed by fire.

"According to your latest explanation, you stated that the magnate had not only one assistant secretary but five of them. You also said that there had been a big studio party the night before, and that the boss had been nice enough to give them the day off to recuperate. Hence the new girl.

"This does not explain how the theater caught fire. Are you able to tell us that, sir? Or have I finally caught you?"

Not yet, Mr. Deane. Your letter calls for the simplest explanation of them all. While the party was in progress, the magnate called the theater in question. The combination of the open wire and the terrifically hot party caused a spark to drop on some film that was lying in the theater.

Could anything be more logical than that? . . .

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS -:- Junior Komic Club

The miniature revues presented at Warner neighborhood theaters Saturday mornings, as a feature of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meetings, are becoming more popular every week. The shows are increasing in size and approaching nearer and nearer professional standards with each performance.

The juvenile dancers appearing in the Cameraphone Chapter show Saturday were recruited from the Fairgrieves school and the Dunn school. On the program were Hazel Dell Cummings, Leah Smith, Helen Schmeltz, Doris Gillum and Adele Yorio.

Other attractions were the Saraff Band, made up of boys from Boy Scout Troop 11, and the LaPertche Orchestra, comprised of members of Cameraphone Chapter. Tiny LaPertche got a big hand for his antics as an acrobatic clown.

The patriotic exercises were led by Edgar Baesel, flagbearer, and Bob Saraff, bugler.

KENYON CHAPTER

North Side children who assemble every Saturday morning at the Kenyon Theater, Federal street, were entertained at the last meeting by Harry Vero, the magician. Dorothy Brennan offered a miltary tap number, and Marion Clarke and Sara Atwill gave readings.

Following the Washington's Birthday celebration at the Prince (Ambridge) Theater, little Myrna Heberling, mistress of ceremonies of the chapter, introduced the following numbers: Recitation, "It Wasn't so Easy;" song by Jean Barbara; recitation, Julia Ganley; tap dance, Lenora Caracci and Francis Gentis; dance, Jimmie Brown; song and dance, Peggy Estep; recitation, Mercedes Harrison; acrobatic dance, Marie Simon; vocal duet, Jimmie Brown and Marie Simon. The program was interspersed with numbers by the mistress of ceremonies.

Adults of Ambridge have been attracted by the splendid programs put on by this chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, and attend the meetings in large numbers.

Crime Situation in Jerico, Mo., Becoming Unbearable.

(From the Jerico, Missouri, Optic)

Certain boys have been disturbing public gatherings in town and it seems impossible to have a social affair at Odd Fellows' Hall without boys, all of them old enough to know better, trying to steal the refreshments. The Young People's Society has been disturbed several times. On more than one occasion the boys, in trying to get the refreshments, broke the windows. When one of the women's fraternal organizations were serving lunch at the hall, the boys hooted, and when a well known lady remonstrated with them they not only refused to go away, but threw a stick which struck her on the hand.

While the young folks of the Sunday school were giving a program some of these same boys pulled the light switch, leaving the church in darkness.

During the Watch Night service a number of boys were observed around the church and a certain party, suspecting them, hid across the street and saw some of them slip up to the front of the church and one of the boys turned the light out.

Keep Subway Plan Alive

The Ordinance to Continue the City Transit Commission's Work Should Be Passed.

City Council has done a prudent thing in reconsidering the abolition of positions in the office of the City Transit Commission.

Sensible cutting of municipal expenses is much to be desired, of course; but the plan to save money by discontinuing the work of the Transit Commission on the subway project was not sensible, but a "penny wise, pound foolish" policy.

The people of Pittsburgh have spent $300,000 in preparation for the construction of the subway, and to abandon the plan now would be equivalent to throwing the $300,000 away.

The Sun-Telegraph believes it would be to the city's advantage to build the subway now, since there is need for it, since it would furnish jobs to many men at present unemployed, and since it would not require any payments by the taxpayers for at least three years.

If, however, it should seem best to Council to postpone the actual construction, the plan should at least be kept alive. That will be accomplished by the ordinance restoring the abolished positions.

Commendation is due the Council for its willingness to take up the subject afresh.

Senator Harris' Plea

The New Plan for the Relief of the Destitute Is Practical, But It Will Take Hard, Enthusiastic Work.

That was a moving plea for the unemployed that warm-hearted Senator Frank J. Harris presented in his address before the Allied Boards of Trade and also in a radio address last night.

He asked the well-to-do people of the community to raise $3,500,000 more for the relief of the unemployed.

The resources of the Welfare Fund are nearing exhaustion, he said. The Legislature and Congress have shirked their duty. Further help cannot be expected from the municipal governments because their only large source of income is the taxes derived from real estate, and real estate is already taxed to the limit of endurance. Relief must come, therefore, from private contributions.

Senator Harris has been informed by the social service agencies that there are 35,000 families in Allegheny County in need of help. To save these families from the actual physical misery of acute and chronic hunger, if not downright starvation, Senator Harris asks 35,000 citizens of the county to come forward and pledge themselves to take care of one family each until June. It will take $100 a family, or payments at the rate of about $33 a month.

There will be those, no doubt, who will say the plan is impractical, that the raising of $3,500,000 more is out of the question. They are wrong.

The plan is practical. There are unquestionably enough well-to-do people in the county to furnish the money, and if properly approached they will furnish it. But they must be made clearly to see the need.

It will take hard and enthusiastic work by workers as warm-hearted as Senator Harris to carry the plan through to a successful conclusion; but it can be done.

A Job as a Dower

Appointment of Mrs. V. F. Henderson to the Poor Board Is in Accordance with Recent Practice.

The appointment of Mrs. V. F. Henderson as a County Poor Director to fill the unexpired term of her late husband, Dr. William L. Henderson, is in line with recent practice. Since women have become eligible for public office it has almost become the custom to offer widows of elected officeholders the jobs held by their husbands at death.

Mrs. Henderson, a graduate nurse, is probably better qualified for membership on the Poor Board than most of the numerous aspirants in the election last year, and there is no intention here of insinuating that a mistake was made in giving her the place.

There is danger, however, in making it a general practice to treat the public office held by a man who dies in office as part of his estate—as a sort of dower that should go to his widow as a matter of right.

A commercial organization would not think of pursuing such a course except in rare cases. Efficiency, and not sentiment, rules in private business. It would be to the advantage of the people if it ruled in the public business, too.

It must be admitted, on the other hand, that the women who succeed to their husbands' places on the public payroll are just as well fitted for the positions, notwithstanding their lack of experience and unfamiliarity with the duties of the position, as are many of the men elected to office.

It is a constant source of wonder that men without any special qualifications whatever should be able to step into public jobs highly technical in character—jobs involving intricate problems of finance, engineering, law, the administration of large institutions, and the like—and be able to fill them reasonably well.

The only possible explanation is that for a time at least the work is done by self-effacing chief clerks, while the officeholders sign on the dotted line as bidden, and take the credit for whatever is done.

Women can serve as figureheads as well as men.

More Books Are Read

Increase in the Use of the Carnegie Library Is a Gratifying By-Product of Idleness.

It's an ill wind that blows no good.

The enforced leisure imposed on many Pittsburghers by industrial slackness has been put to good use by some of them, as figures issued by Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Library, bear witness.

Mr. Munn reports that 503,610 more books were borrowed from the library last year than the year before, and that the circulation of books in the loan department has increased 31 per cent during the last two years.

Attendance at the schools and colleges has also increased since the mills slowed down.

Not a few of the men and women who have improved their education during the period of idleness will be qualified in consequence for better positions when they go back to work.

Order from the Chief!

The Dry Law Bogey (and bogey it is) continues to haunt High Places at Washington.

Budget pruners, busy for weeks, passed up only one tree—PROHIBITION.

Every other major activity of the Government will feel the sting of the cutting—Army, Navy, State, Justice, Commerce, Labor and Agriculture—but the Dry Law Bureau, pet of the militant drys, comes through in all its costliness unscathed. It will get $11,369,000 of the public funds next year, just the same as this year.

What a needless waste when "retrenchment" is the cry! Plenty of funds for political foibles, but only WORDS to allay the fears, the sufferings, the deprivations of the unemployed! No money to create jobs for EIGHT MILLION JOBLESS, but many millions to throw as a political sop to dry law follies!

Taxpayers, facing increased levies by city, county, State and nation, income tax boosts, and more and higher nuisance taxes, will pore over governmental budgets this year as never before. And in the light of the information they glean of official extravagances and sheer waste of public funds, they will point the way OUT of public office for those who waste public funds at the first chance.

Unpretentious Garner Earned High Position

By CLINTON W. GILBERT

(Copyright, 1932, by the New York Evening Post, Inc.)

(Reprinted by permission of the editor from "The Daily Mirror in Washington," in the February 23 issue of the New York Evening Post.)

IT SEEMS odd that John N. Garner should have been in the House for 30 years and yet should have been little known to the country generally until he became Speaker a couple of months ago. But it is easy enough to understand when you know the man. The last thing that he ever thinks about is advertising himself.

There is nothing of the actor about him. His district was always sure, so he never needed to attract attention to himself to hold his place in Congress.

His own state, Texas, barely knew his name as that of a member of its delegation in the House and had little idea of his quality as a man until he became Speaker.

He has never gone about the state making speeches. As a matter of fact he hasn't made a campaign speech in his own district in 15 years, being always sure that he could be re-elected without campaigning. And he has not gone about the country making speeches.

In the House, unless a man has a keen desire for publicity, he obtains little, for the reason that the House itself ordinarily receives little publicity, and only constant showmanship will make a member well known to the country.

ONE way in Washington that a member becomes known is by going about socially. And Garner never accepts dinner invitations except to the few dinners that it is necessary for him to attend.

He rises early so as to be at his office at 7:30 in the morning. He works hard all day, eats a very light dinner about 6 o'clock in the evening and goes to bed early. He has followed this routine for years to keep up his strength for his work in the House.

The only home in Washington he visited frequently was that of the late Speaker, Nicholas Longworth. He and Longworth were the closest of friends. So, outside of the House and Senate, he has not been well known in Washington.

NOT having been in the habit of thinking of his acts in terms of the publicity they would command or of the popular reaction to them, these are the last things he ever thinks about. So he always means exactly what he says. He never says anything for effect. The only thing he considers in determining a course of action is whether it is right, and by right he means whether as a Democrat it seems to him to be in the public interest.

His mind is so constantly on his work in the House and so little clouded by the question of his own re-election or by public reactions to what he does that he makes it up with extraordinary swiftness and sureness. It is not conscience, but front pages and direct primaries and elections that make cowards in Washington.

And it is because he is so different from practically everybody else in Washington that he is making an unusual impression on the country.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Ladies—And Love

Marriage, remarks the Cynical Bachelor, is the point at which a girl stops leaning on your shoulder when you're driving the car, and begins jumping on your neck.

* * *

If she told the truth, many a woman's answer to that question on the income tax blank, "Are you married?" would be "Yes—and no."

The sun's energy, they say, will last about 15 billion years—which ought to give almost any woman time enough to get a good coat of tan.

* * *

Hanging on a man's words may flatter him—but hanging on his neck merely frightens him and arouses all his instinct to battle for freedom.

* * *

Where is the girl who used to mix things in the chafing dish and get a thrill out of staying up after 11? She is now mixing headache powders and waiting up for a daughter who will razzle in around 3 a. m.

* * *

To find your mate—that is luck; to know him when you find him—that is inspiration; to win him when you know him—that is art; and to keep him when you've won him—that is a MIRACLE.

The main difference between the old-fashioned saloon and the speakeasy is that no lady ever entered a saloon—but the speakeasy has "that feminine touch."

* * *

A man never feels such a delightful glow of generosity, as just after he has relieved his mind by giving a woman a lot of gratuitous "advice."

* * *

Solomon was probably the only man who ever had 699 alibis when his wife detected an unfamiliar fragrance of his coat lapel.

* * *

Some women declare they won't be bothered with house-pets—and then go right out and marry gigolos.

Isn't It So?

Peace flourishes when reason rules.

If you have sense enough to be happy, you have sense enough.

No woman can make a fool of a man any more than he can himself.

Politicians worry very little about bread lines; they always have their crust.

Man is the only animal that can't exercise without buying expensive clubs for it.

A good many motorists are like the worm that turns—they never give any indication of their intentions.

At dangerous railroad crossings it is a good idea to check and double check, and also to watch and pray.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Three months is the average life of the de luxe speakeasy. Either a raid or the Manhattan urge for something different makes it difficult to hold patronage. Consequently those spots with the breath-taking grandeur must work fast and furiously.

Yet many in such a quick space have returned enormous profits to underworld backers. The speakeasy sponsors take greater risks than angels of the expensive musical shows. They must pay almost extortionate rent for a year in advance, aside from protection graft.

In the past six months a score have opened at a cost bordering on a quarter of a million. Just now they face the added hazard, in case of raids, of having the government seize and cart off entire furnishings. To clean up, the intake must be $5,000 a day for at least 90 days.

The Big Time for the glorified hushhut is along a quiet residential street on the fashionable East Side. The only outside show is a carriage canopy bearing the number. Many ask the patrons to quit their cars at the nearest corner and walk to stifle the jangle of cars.

Bulk of the capital comes from gangsters and bootleg rings. One of the most successful operators is listed a public enemy. A dummy management seems in control, and in case of trouble with authorities this management must take the rap.

Selling concessions is one of the big sources of revenue, the most lucrative being hat checking. Patrons are usually generous with such tips. The strolling orchestras in many instances work solely for gratuities and in some places bartenders also.

Backgammon and bridge teachers pay high rent for ante-rooms and so on down the line to starters who work free. The most magnificent bodega was recently ordered to remove its enormous bar and is now trying to solo to prosperity as a restaurant only.

* * *

Audiences were not always so tolerant of stage mumbling as today. At the Apollo in Atlantic City 15 years ago, Henry Miller was appearing with Ruth Chatterton. Important lines became a blurry jumble. At the end of the first act an irate customer stopped the show, shouting: "I paid $3 to see this and can't hear a word. I'm going to the box office for my money." Three hundred followed.

* * *

Then there was the flop floundering through a New York premiere. Finally in the middle of the second act someone arose in the balcony and in an ingratiating voice cried pleasantly: "Well, good evening, everybody."

* * *

Leon Errol tells of the character actor with a slipping set of uppers who had all his life played sheriffs, cops and house detectives. He told his agency he was tired of such parts and was asked what role he desired to play. He thought awhile and replied: "A civil engineer."

* * *

Charles B. Dillingham saw a sign proclaiming a movie version of an early play of his recently. He joined a sidewalk crowd and until handed a cup of coffee and a sandwich did not realize he was in a Broadway bread line.

* * *

* * *

Patti once visited a London insane asylum. In a corridor an aristocratic gentleman inquired if she were not the great Patti. For years he had worshipped at her shrine and recalled a particular night when she was in magnificent voice at Covent Garden. He had a profound knowledge of music and the singer could not believe he was an inmate. But he told her he had been railroaded by rich relations and nothing could be done. Finally she asked him to sit with her on a nearby bench. "I'd like to," he said, "but I can't. I'm solid glass from the hips down."

"Listen Old Dogsbody," writes Elderly Gent from a mid-town club, "I've read you for 12 years and you are not half bad."

Imagine 12 years to squeeze out a stingy trade-last like that.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Always the tears are near, these days; going among those desperate millions who are "waiting for something to break.' Watching their dogged struggle to hold on, seeing their brave and beautiful battle to save their children, if they cannot save themselves, from ruin.

Yesterday I saw rejoicing in a little shanty. An ailing, aging man; a ragged, battered woman; living by the miserable makeshifts of the poor. Yet they were happy, for they were going to be able to give young Jimmy another term at school.

Somehow they had managed it, God only knows by what scrimping and privation! But that didn't matter. Hunger, cold, sickness—nothing mattered as long as young Jim could "graduate from Hi."

Seeing their radiant faces, I turned my own away, ashamed. Such heroic unselfishness?—How much the world owes to it! Everything. And I thought of something Will Durant said in the story of his own life—"Transition." His parents, too, had toiled and hoped and sacrificed like that to give him his chance. Out of his gratitude he wrote:

"I have often reflected on this impulse, which seems to be so deeply rooted in every parent's heart, to give the children a finer rearing than their own.

"We are not such a bad lot after all, we funny theological apes; we utter a regrettable amount of nonsense on our parabola through the world, but we can love with a magnificent devotion.

"When I wish to renew my faith in progress, I consider the working and power of this instinct of parental aid; how it lifts the children upon the shoulders of the parents, generation after generation, and raises life to higher levels of enterprise and thought.

"ALL LAWS, ACTUAL OR PROPOSED, CAN BE ONLY A MODEST FORCE BESIDE THIS LEVER THROUGH WHICH LOVE MOVES THE WORLD."

Love moves the world. Despite our selfishness, our stupidity, our cowardice and greed, love works its brave and lovely miracle.

Have you, too, felt your faith in humanity waver? Wondered if we were worth all the effort that we cost? Seen, with disgust, the pettiness of the human plan? Then turn and look. All around you moves the answer to your doubt.

The tired, sloppy girl who brings your waffles at the short order counter—

The homeless, shapeless, middle-aged mother, haggling with the market man over a bunch of carrots—

The stupid young fellow who earns a few dollars driving a night taxi, after eight hours in the shipping room—

The shabby, lagging old fellow who carries the coal into your basement—

To you they are only dull units in a dreary, ant-like file of ignorant laborers. You forget them when you weigh the values of life—when you quote your cynical philosophy and decide that human beings are pitiful puppets in a contemptible comedy.

But you are wrong!

There is that within these weary workers which mocks your cynicism; which puts to shame your sneers.

There is love in them; there is courage; and there is a dream—A DREAM OF BETTER THINGS TO BE, A DREAM OF A NOBLER, LOVELIER, FREER WORLD WHICH THEIR CHILDREN MAY INHERIT!

And what does any sacrifice mean to them if, thereby, they may give their children greater life?

Looking out from your easy chair, you see the mud.

Looking up from their gutters, they see the stars, and, kneeling, let their children mount on them, as stairs!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Secret Stairway

In this old building is a secret stair
Set cunningly into the heavy walls.
The initiate only guess its presence there,
So viewlessly the oaken panel falls
Against its base. Yet up and up it sweeps
With lovely curves into a lofty room
Where sunlight dwells and beauty ever keeps
The place a sanctuary from all doubt and gloom.

You are the secret stairway in my life,
Where I ascend on steps of faith and hope;
Your cheer, your courage lead me up from strife
And shadowed halls where other mortals grope.
Through you I rise into a sunlit place
To find love's heaven mirrored in your face.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Match correctly:

1. Porfirio Diaz—Secretary of State who helped nations of the world to agree to the Pact of Paris.
2. Elihu Root—Commander of American Expeditionary Forces.
3. Gen. Leonard Wood—President of Mexico for over thirty years, until overthrown in 1911.
4. John Pershing—American medical officer who became military governor of Cuba.
5. Frank B. Kellog—Agent sent to Europe by President Coolidge to make clear America's position in the World Court.

Do you know:

6. What was the first American-built ship?
7. What is the highest point east of the Mississippi River?
8. Where is the windiest place in America?
9. By what name are mosquitoes called in the British Isles?
10. In what work did the English legendary hero, Robin Hood, make his first literary appearance?

Mark each statement as "true" or "false:"

11. America's leading industry in 1930 was railroads.
12. More people were employed in the manufacture of textiles in 1930 than any other industry in the United States.
13. France claimed the eastern part of North America because of John Cabot's discovery.
14. Coronado explored the interior of North America to the plains of Kansas.
15. New York was first established as a Dutch colony and transferred to England during the governorship of Peter Stuyvesant.

Answers to Today's Tests:

1. President of Mexico for over thirty years, until overthrown in 1911. 2. Agent sent to Europe by President Coolidge to make clear America's position in the World Court. 3. American medical officer who became military governor of Cuba. 4. Commander of American Expeditionary Forces. 5. Secretary of State who helped nations of world to agree to the Pact of Paris. 6. "Blessing of the Bay"—Boston—1631. 7. Mount Mitchell, North Carolina, 6,711 feet above sea level. 8. Summit of Mount Washington, New Hampshire, average velocity 110 miles per hour. 9. Gnats. 10. "Piers the Plowman," published in 1377. 11. False (agriculture). 12. False (agriculture—10,241,000 employes). 13. False (England). 14. True. 15. True.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you haven't a good memory, don't be a bluffer.

Probably you have had experience when your stories told at different times do not coincide or check up.

You have found it embarrassing.

This might have been avoided if you had made a practice of telling the unvarnished truth.

But you too often make an effort to appear greater than you are.

You have wanted to impress people and so you have exaggerated facts.

But the unstable reputation you have built up has not done you any permanent good, perhaps definite harm.

You certainly cannot keep up the deception.

Bluffing is often expensive because of the financial difficulties into which it plunges you when you least expect it.

Getting a reputation as a bluffer means that you will not be trusted by anyone who has an important job to have carried out.

Perhaps your inability to land a lucrative position hinges on the fact that you are considered untruthful.

It is a serious matter to gain a reputation for misrepresentation.
